Tropical air spices club's annual dance

Members of the Original Gardenia Bridge Club, whose annual parties are among the suavest formal dances of the season, were hostesses, Friday night, in the Alcazar.

The hostesses chose a decor which provided an atmosphere of a balmy night on a tropical isle. They provided an elaborate delicatessen bar and an ever-flowing fountain.

* * *

HOSTESSES WERE: Mrs. Mabel Driver, president of the group, who wore a frock of white nylon with embossed pink roses and under-pinned with pink taffeta. Her slippers matched her dress.

The vice president, Mrs. Lena Dixon, was gowned in gold satin lined with green, with matching green slippers. A frock of baby blue brocade, with matching slippers was chosen by Mrs. Ethel K. Freeman, who serves as financial secretary for the club.

* * *

MRS. BERDIE ADDISON, business manager, selected a shealth of imported embroidered linen, with which she wore matching slippers.

Mrs. Ann James wore embroidered linen, in a hot pink, with matching accessories and rhinestone jewelry.

Blue lace over blue taffeta was worn by Mrs. Margie Cole, treasurer; and Mrs. Edna K. Dungee, editor for the club, wore blue chiffon with white satin slippers.

Mrs. Florence Ringgold's frock was pink silk; and Mrs. Ruby Carter also wore pink, her gown being of chiffon.

* * *

EACH HOSTESS wore a corsage of gardenias. Their escorts wore bouttonaires of white carnations.

The hostesses were presented to guests, during intermission, by Herbert Gardner.

The escorts were Martin Driver, Eldridge Dixon, John H. Byrd, William Addison, Herman Smith, Elmer Cole, William Daniels, Johnny Carter, and Daniel Ringgold.

Women look at 'practical politics'

Thirty-four women, representing an equal number of organizations, sat in a workshop, to be instructed in ways and means of practical politics, Saturday.

The one-day workshop was under direction of the Institute for Political Education of Morgan College, and followed a workshop held on October 21 for "Busy business and professional alumni," for men and students.

The ladies were joined, on Saturday, by young women of the Political Science department at Morgan!

The workshop was held in the Faculty Dining Room.

* * *

AFTER WELCOMING remarks from Dr. G. James Fleming, director of the institute, a film was shown on "How to Enter Into Politics." This was followed by a down-to-earth discussion by Mrs. Victorine Q. Adams, executive director of Woman Power, Inc., on "How to Get Into Politics and How to Get Others into Politics."

"The Time to get into Politics is now," Mrs. Adams who is also a candidate for the House of Delegates from the Fifth District, urged. "If you are a mother you can begin telling your children why they should be interested in political affairs; if you are a school teacher you can sponsor election of officers in your classes and give your pupils an early start in their political interest.

* * *

"THEN THERE is beginning with one's self," Mrs. Adams continued. "Each of us above 21 years of age should be sure that she is registered; and that she votes regularly; then she can turn to see that her own family and all her relatives are similarly involved.

"Until we have enlisted ourselves and our relatives we are not ready to go out and 'sell' registration and voting to the masses of the people," Mrs. Adams declared.

The speaker also answered many questions on how she had organized Woman Power and how she had been able to attract so many people into working in politics.

* * *

ALL THE workshop speakers, and the films, stressed the importance of entering politics at the bottom. This point was demonstrated by Dr. Dwynal B. Pettengill, assistant director of the institute, in an illustrated discussion of "How to Organize and Work a Precinct."

He used the precinct in which he lives — precinct of the 27th ward, and showed how he had made a drawing of its boundaries and its several houses and streets. In this way, by the use of pins of different colors he could know, at a glance, which houses had Republican or Democratic voters, or non-voters.

* * *

HE PASSED around his card index of the precinct which allows him to find any voter, by name, or to reach the voters in a particular block, by their street numbers.

Dr. Pettengill, who was a precinct captain before he joined the Morgan College faculty, said:

"Most precinct workers do not know their precincts; all they do is hit or miss. If they really knew their precincts they would know the persons on whom they should spend their time and those to pass by; they would also be able to predict, fairly accurately, the outcome of most elections."

* * *

DR. MARTIN D. JENKINS, president of the college, welcomed the guests following luncheon.

The Institute for Political Education, the most comprehensive in the country, has done a magnificent job in the community, Dr. Jenkins told the group.

Pointing out that politics affect each individual, from taxes to welfare, from civil rights to international relations, he reminded the group that the whole gamult of affairs is determined by persons elected to office.

"It is scandalous to not vote, but it is even more scandalous to not know the issues of the day and to be unconcerned about them. You can't have a hand-off representation if Democracy is to survive and we are to get the kind of world we need." he said.

* * *

"VOTERS PUT an unfair burden upon office holders," Mrs. E. R. Pierson, president of the Baltimore League of Woman Voters, told the workshop members.

She spoke on "The Maryland Political Party System, urging that citizens learn of the services available from local government, rather than depend upon their representatives to get minor jobs done.

"You can get a hole in the street fixed by picking up the phone and calling the proper bureau", she pointed out.

Representatives' time should be put to better use, she added.

She upheld "political machines", telling the group that so-called machines are mere organizations. Good organization is needed, said Mrs. Pierson.

* * *

IN THE SAME vein, Dr. Fleming in closing remarks, urged the women to use a letter, a phone, a telegraph to let their representatives know how they feel on an issue. "Since politicians are human, and often afraid, they need indication of what their constituents want," he said.

* * *

ANOTHER SPEAKER at the workshop was Lee Benson, assistant director, Department of Legislative Reference, who explained how a bill becomes a law.

The workshop was attended by:

Mrs. Martha Allen, The Pals Club; Miss Helen V. Benton, Naomi Grand Chapter of Eastern Star, A.F. and A.M.: Miss Betty Childs, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority; Mrs. Gloria Cole, Colored Women's Democratic Club; Miss Gay Dickerson, Central Branch YWCA;

Miss Diana Edwards, student, Morgan State College; Mrs. Mary Ellis, The Pals Club; Mrs. Katherine Gorsuch, Central Branch YWCA; Mrs. Annis Gozaway, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority (Annapolis Alumnae Chapter);

Misses Marilyn Bernard, Elizabeth Borden, Katherine Evans, Evelyn McLeod, and Archie LeMone, students of Institute for political Education.

DR. D. B. PETTENGILL, assistant director of the Institute for Political Education of Morgan State College, explains organization of a precinct to, from left, Mrs. E. R. Pierson, president of the Baltimore League of Women Voters; Mrs. Joan Kinsey of the YWCA, and far right, Miss Pattie Holloway. All were participants in a One-Day Workshop in Practical Politics for Busy Organization Women and Students, at Morgan, Saturday.

Home beauty stressed at Perkins Home

More than 300 tenants of Perkins Homes were given pointers on how to improve and beautify their homes during a two-day spring home management program Monday and Tuesday.

The program, arranged by Mrs. Margaret T. Wheatley, management aide, was designed to show tenants the value of gardens, flowers and grass.

Consultants were Mrs. Charlotte Mebane, counselor of School 57; Milton Dugger, principal of School 25; Miss Ethel Bianchi, home demonstration agent; Mrs. Mary Harrington, principal of School 2; and Mrs. M. Francis Mackay, AFRO Clean Block director.

W. K. Gorsuch is the manager of Perkins Homes; Mrs. Jeanne Davis, management aide and Washington Triechok, maintenance supervisor.
