Paris Scopes scores hit

A standing - room - only crowd, mostly fashion - conscious women, alternately aahed, ooed, applauded and drooled at the Bamboo Lounge, Sunday.

Reason was Ruth J's "Paris Scopes for '62," where the hat designer exhibited 35 of her original creations.

The hats, in an astonishing array of colors, styles, and shapes, were modeled by Mesdames Flora Johnson, Barbara Green, Dorothy White, Dee Dee Richardson and Connie Morrell.

Among names hung on the hats by Mrs. Fobie Johnson, narrator, were:

"Voom," "Matchless Magnificence," "Friendly Persuasion," "unforbedden Fruit," "The Arrogant Look," "The American Look," etc. etc.

Ruth J, who is Mrs. Ruth Croxton in private life, at the finale wearing an orangish outfit (hat, dress, and shoes), which created as much excitement as the two hour show.

Local musicians attend music educators conference

By ADAH K. JENKINS

EVENT - OF - THE - SEASON: Biennial convention of the Music Educators Conference (MENC) held in Chicago. According to Mrs. Gloria S. Stokes, of the music department at Clifton Junior High School, this was a most rewarding experience.

An event of particular interest was a concert by the interracial Teachers Chorus of Day County, Miami, Fla.

Emile Surposs, director of the music department of Baltimore public schools and Dr. Taylor, director of instrumental music conducted the All - City Junior High School Chorus and Elementary orchestra concerts.

Among the Baltimore music educators attending were Don Regier, Miss Alice Baer, Mesdames Hazel Phillips, Mary Irvine, Jean J. Haywood, Olive Williams, Lillian Baker and Stokes; Robert A. Smith and Iva Larkins.

THE SENIOR presentation of Ruthanna L. Miller of the Music Department of Morgan State College, held in the Murphy Auditorium, was marked by a careful and studious performance of classic and romantic piano music.

The sizable audience was enthusiastic at the premiere performance of two movements from "Sonata in G Major," composed by the young pianist. The Allegro (lively) movement contained well contrasted themes with massive chord effects in the development.

The work is conceived in the classic style, displaying commendable grasp of the from and materials. It was a project done in the harmony and composition class at Morgan. Mrs. Francis B. Hill of the music faculty, instructed Miss Miller in piano and composition.

Miss Miller collaborated with Charles E. Watts, a very talented violinist, in the Third Sonata by Handel. The young pianist, who will graduate this May, is planning to continue her training. With her ability and sterling background she should become an excellent pianist.

STUDENT OF intermediate level were presented by the Piano Teachers Activities Group at Coppin State Teachers College, with Mrs. Annie Laurie Williams presiding.

Participating were: Geraldine Bell, Wayne Dorsey, Shannon Smothers, Chirley Banks, Ethelda Hawkins, Paulette Gibbs, Kenneth Barnes, Yvonne Thompson, Kathryn Davenport, Carolyn McArthur, Marilyn Graham, Mela Faison, Deborah Edwards, Thomas Lynch, Laura and Sylvia Williams.

Members of the Activities Group are: Mesdames Mildred Bryant, Florence Carter, Alma Caswell, Gladys Davis, Gwendolyn Lassiter, Norma Franks, Josephine Turner, Katrine White, A. L. Williams and your writer.

On April 29 at 4 p.m. the group is sponsoring a workshop at Gospel Tabernacle, Rosedale and Walbrook Ave.
