Principal Sorrell Honored For New Idea

By ELIZABETH OLIVER

A junior high school principal who has been teaching 50 years has proven conclusively that a teacher of the "old school" can be modern.

Recently, Frank J. Sorrell, principal of Houston Junior High School No. 181, Baker and Calhoun Sts. was awarded a citation in the 1962 Secondary Principal of the Year competition from a list of the nation's outstanding principals in the fourth annual search by Croft Educational Services, New London, Conn.

A teacher in the Baltimore school system since 1911, he received the coveted citation for the homeroom centered program he developed to meet the demands of changing times and changing attitudes in education.

Mr. Sorrell's name was entered in the contest by his 70 teachers, who wrote a letter telling the nine judges of their principal's accomplishments.

THEY ALSO pointed out that they felt he is "distinguished by his sensitivity, warmth, and deep compassion for the 1,841 pupils who troop into the school every morning."

On Friday, the AFRO talked with Mr. Sorrell in his office at Houston.

He was dressed in gray suit, white shirt, dark tie, and behind his glasses he wore a pleasant smile which crinkled his eyes at the corners.

On his orderly desk was a dish garden. In the corner of the large room was a tall green plant. Outside the room in the adjoining records office were plants.

Mr. Sorrell explained gardening and tropical fish are his hobbies. "But," he stated, "children are my first love."

Twelve years ago, as the old row house neighborhood surrounding Calhoun and Baker Sts., showed signs of change, Mr. Sorrell took a long careful look at his pupils.

ALWAYS CREATIVE in his thinking and alert to the needs of children in general, he noticed that the home life of the school population was also changing.

Some of his modern-day, post-war children seemed to be suffering the effects of broken homes where there were frustration, anxiety and insecurity.

The school where they were spending the greater part of the year, was serving as the only stabilizing force in their lives.

He told the AFRO;

"Here were little 11 and 12 - year-olds entering the seventh grade in a great, big, building a block square, four stories high, who could get lost in so many ways.

"Youngsters coming from elementary school where they had one teacher who served as mother and teacher, suddenly were faced with eight or nine of varying personalities.

"With so many changes coming down on them, I saw where they could get lost, and perhaps never find themselves.

"I thought if they could only plan the seventh grade so that one teacher could teach many subjects, serve as a homeroom teacher, and give them counseling and guidance at the same time, part of their problems could be solved."

WITH THE above ideas in mind, Mr. Sorrell initiated his prgroam revolving around the homeroom where his seventh graders spend about 100 minutes of the day.

Their teacher, a strong one as Mr. Mr. Sorrell describes her, listens when they get lost in the big building, helps solve problems of a changing world, a changing neighborhood, and changing home life, teaches them language arts, social studies, health and science.

As a result, this understanding and guidance has cancelled out discipline difficulties, helped the childrer toward higher scholastic achievement, and the forming of good habits for good citizenship.

In addition, Mr. Sorrell's unified mathematics program, used in the seventh, eight and ninth grades, has also worked wonders.

He started it by encouraging the head of his math department to study this program at the University of Maryland.

He also urged his teachers to investigate and study emotional problems and methods.

Now, children with deficient background in a subject, even those who had developed a dislike for math, are exploring the entire field of mathematics from arithmetic to calculus.

They are liking it and making good grades.

And, the program is so effective that it is now offered in all of the mentally retarded children.

Through his methods, these children were successfully taught under a special curriculum in a comprehensive junior high school for the first junior high schools in Baltimore.

YET ANOTHER program was set up at No. 181 by Mr. Sorrell.

This is the special curriculum for time in the history of public education in Baltimore.

Many have become leaders in the student council and are active in choir, the athletic program, and school clubs.

This experiment is now part of the curriculum of all the junior high schools in Baltimore.

Mr. Sorrell who resides in Morgan Park with his wife, Mrs. Nellie Bragg Sorrell, is graduate of the old Colored High School, Pennsylvania Ave. and Dolphin St.

He finished old Coppin Normal and Morgan College and took three summers at Columbia Teachers College.

In 1950, he received a master's degree from NYC in education.

Before coming to 181, he was vice principal of the old Hill Street and Dunbar High Schools.

He was head of Douglass High School math department 10 years, also serving as math supervisor of junior-senior summer high school.

He has been a member of St. James Episcopal Church 30 years.

DR. GEORGE B. BRAIN, superintendent of public instruction, paid tribute to Mr. Sorrell and presented him a specially illuminated scroll at a meeting of the Administrative and Supervisory Staff of the Baltimore City Public Schools held Tuesday in the auditorium of the Eastern High School.

Commenting on the award, Dr. Brain stated that the Baltimore Public School system is very fortunate to have a member of the staff receive the Principal of the Year award and citizens of Baltimorecould feel justifiably proud of this achievement and honor.

the deplorable state of affairs, but Mrs. Clora Ruffins decided to do something about it.

Mrs. Ruffins was not entirely new at this sort of thing. She had worked for years in the AFRO Clean Block Campaign as a supervisor and had a knack for getting things done.

She went to the BURHA field office in the area and complained about the lack of recreation facilities and the general rundown condition of the area. BURHA assigned an investigator to the matter. A survey confirmed Mrs. Ruffins' opinion.

Realizing the necessity for community action, Mrs. Ruffins talked with her friends and neighbors and obtained their support.

They formed the Aggressive Neighbors Association and set out to make their community a better place in which to live. They lacked money and influence and professional leadership. But they had an ample supply of determination.

The Aggressive Neighbors obtained the Pratt Library's permission to use an abandoned library building at Pitcher St. and Fremont Ave. as a meeting place.

The building was dirty; they cleaned it. They needed equipment and with their limited funds they purchased some; other equipment was given to them.

Now they needed a professional director of recreation activities. They contacted the Department of Recreation and Parks and were told that funds were not available at the present time, but an effort would be made to include them in the 1962 budget.

The Park Board later approved a $17,000 budget request for the operation of the center. The money, if approved by the Board of Estimates and City Council, will make it possible to open the now abandoned library building early in 1962.

Actually, by being aggressive, the neighbors received more than they expected. In addition to a full - time director, which they requested, they will receive a janitor for the building, several part - time employees and $2,000 for renovations.

The Aggressive Neighbors Association now has some 300 members, the support of numerous city officials, and the confidence that comes from getting a big project under way.

When, and if the Pitcher Street Community Center becomes a reality, it will be a monument to the civic - minded residents of the area who saw a job that needed to be done and decided not to let "George" do it.

The neighbors moved aggressively against the demoralizing social forces that breed juvenile delinquency and disease and crime. In tackling a neighborhood problem head on at the neighborhood level, they are a shining example of what can be done when determined citizens organize for the common good.

ing because of the long lines of unemployed standing outside."

We recall that one of the reasons for erecting the DES building at a cost of $5,135,000 was to bring under one roof the various departments of the employment service which were then scattered over the downtown section.

Now, when America is waging a life and death struggle with communism and needs every dollar it can muster; when the City of Baltimore is hard-pressed for tax sources; when the State of Maryland is seeking ways of getting money to increase teachers' salaries — The Department of Employment Security wants to disperse again.

A DES spokesman said clerical and professional job seekers "consider it beneath their dignity" to enter the multi - million dollar DES building because of the lines emanating from the structure.

Any professional or clerical job seeker who would abandon his search for employment for such a frivolous, childish reason obviously lacks the maturity to hold such a job in the first place.

We hope that Governor Tawes will nip this wasteful proposal in the bud. If he fails to do so, then he alone must bear the responsibility. Marylanders cannot afford the luxury of irresponsible "tax and spend" government.

Before taxpayers' money is spent to rent office space, there should be a clear cut need for the space. The Department of Employment Security no doubt wants to move its clerical and professional section downtown.

A secondary reason for the proposed change is that the rented office space would be nearer to the downtown offices which would ultimately hire the clerical and professional job seekers.

This contention is even more ridiculous than the first. The Department of Employment Security should not be concerned with an unemployed person who is too lazy or indifferent to go five or six blocks in search of a job.

The AFRO is opposed to the removal of the clerical and professional sections of the State Employment Service into rented space downtown.

against a mob such as attacked us in the afternoon.

About 9:20 p.m. they pulled in and vowed to get us through, protection or no.

We filed out into different cars and the cars started rolling. Anniston seems to have more stop lights than any similar size city. We caught most of them red.

It was nerve - wracking. Ever corner and every car was suspect.

I asked my driver if he knew the hot spot they were coming into to get us out and he said they did.

"It would have looked mighty bad for us not to risk our lives to come in and get you all, after you had risked your lives to get this far," he added.

Proud Hank Thomas lay on the back seat unable to talk, wrapped in my coat, his head in Mae Frances Moultrie's lap.

It was 9:50 p.m. now and Anniston lay behind, Birmingham and safety ahead.

This was easily the worst day of my 34 years under the American flag.

Thurgood's hearing slated for Monday

(NNPA) —Sen. Olin D. of a Senate Judiciary sub- Johnston (D-S.C.), chairman committee set up to consider appointees to federal judgeships, has announced that the hearing on the nomination of Thurgood Marshall will be Monday morning, April 16.

Marshall, now serving an interim appointment on the bench of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, is a former legal counsel of the NAACP.

He was one of the principle architects of the legal battle that resulted in the historic Supreme Court school desegregation decision of 1954.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY sent his nomination to Congress at the beginning of the present session.

In addition to Senator Johnston, other members of the subcommittee are Senators John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), and Roman L. Hruska (R-Nebr.)

The hearing has been set for 10:30 a.m., in Room 2228 New Senate Office Building. A capacity crowd of spectators is expected.

The Subcommittee will forward its recommendation to the full 15-member Senate Judiciary Committee headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.)

IN ADDITION to Eastland, Johnston, McClelland and Hruska, the other committee members (six Democrats and five Republicans) are:

Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), John A. Carroll (D-Colo.), Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.), Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), and Edward V. Long (D-Mo.).

Also, Alexander Wiley (R-Wisc.), Everett McKinley (R-Ill.), Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), Norris Cotton (R-N.H.) and Hiram L. Fong (R-Hawaii).

At the weekend, all indications pointed to a favorable hearing with eventual confirmation.

D.C. has power to zero in on housing bias, U.S. told

By EDWARD PEEKS

Federal and District governments were urged this week to crack down on segregated housing along all lines during hearings before the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Prepared statement by the Washington Urban League and the Central Northwest Citizens Association called for immediate action in the metropolitan area at the two-day probe that began yesterday (Thursday).

Sterling Tucker, executive director of the League, told the commission that "practically nothing constructive is being done in the suburbs... (where) segregation patterns are firmly entrenched."

The League called for establishment of a metropolitan housing agency with powers to plan for housing needs in the entire Washington area.

EUGENE DAVIDSON, president of the citizens association, stated that District government has the power to deal with segregation patterns and real estate practices in the city.

He cited laws placed on the books in 1937 and 1961 covering the issuance of licenses to deal in real estate.

He urged District commissioners to crack down on members of the lilywhite Washington Real Estate Board guilty of practicing and perpetuating housing segregation.

District government should revoke the license of any broker for listing or selling property with restrictions based on race, creed, color or national origin, he said.

HE ASKED the commission to prevail upon the Washington Post, the Evening Star and Daily News to "refuse to accept and to publish advertisements for the offering or properties for rent in which race is specified."

He further recommended that the Washington Real Estate Board endorse open occupancy and that it open up its membership ranks to colored brokers.

The League called for a housing law against discrimination in the District with adequate enforcement power.

Mr. Tucker told the commission:

"Nothing in current methods and philosophy of real estate operators, bankers, absentee landlords or suburban landlords would lead one to believe that substantial changes can be effected in housing patterns..."

He stated that without the help of law such patterns will persist "as long as these real dictators of housing patterns are permitted to operate with impunity in a 'business- as- usual' fashion."

The League repeated its standing recommendation for a central relocation service to assist all families displaced in the District by urban renewal and other government action.

Mr. Tucker said that some 7,691 families will be displaced between 1961 and 1965.

THE LEAGUE deplored what Mr. Tucker described as the tendency of city planners to "remove one slum area only to reconstitute it elsewhere."

Results are crime, educational inequalities and poor municipal services that characterize an overcrowded neighborhood, he said.

The commission scheduled a list of 33 witnesses, including Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver and District Commission President Walter N. Tobriner.

Housing for African diplomats and their familites reinforced the international tones of the hearings in the State Department Auditorium, 22nd and C Sts., N.W.

Md. employers to save $1½ million on insurance tax

Maryland employers will save more than $1,500,000 in unemployment insurance taxes during the fiscal year beginning July 1, the Department of Employment Security has announced.

Initial computations made last March 31 show that for the first time since 1958, the Unemployment Insurance Fund has shown an increase, instead of a decrease, over the previous year.

Stephen C. Cromwell, DES executive director, reported to Governor Tawes that the fund totaled $65,599,196.48 on March 31, 1962, an increase of $12,174,482.58 over the March 31, 1961, total of $53,424,613.90.

Until this year, the Unemployment Insurance Fund had steadiy decreased from $111,047,136.59 in 1957 to $65,599,196.48 on March 31.
