Kirk Douglass tops in new adventure

Give dynamic Kirk Douglas a role into which he can sink his teeth and the screen dazzles the senses with the impact of his portrayal.

Such is the celluloid salvo scored in Universal's "Lonely Are The Brave" which is now playing at the Harlem Theater.

Now since "Spartacus" has the jut-jawed star appeared to such effect.

Angie Dickinson stars in 'Jessica'

Until two years ago, Angie Dickinson was comparatively unknown by Hollywood standards. Today she is the star opposite Maurice Chevalier and Noel-Noel, of "Jessica," now playing at the Met Theatre, through United Artists release.

Her biggest break came when in 1958 Howard Hawks cast her as "Feathers" in Dean Martin's first western, "Rio Bravo." Martin introduced her to Frank Sinatra, who later asked for her to portray his estranged wife in "Ocean's 11" and she took off and is still running.

AT THE MET — Beautiful Angie Dickinson stars in the title role of "Jessica," now playing at the Met Theatre, in Technicolor and Panavision. Maurice Chevalier and Noel-Noel share top billing in Jean Negulesco's sunny, funny, saucy Sicilian romance with music. United Artists is releasing "Jessica."

"LONELY ARE THE BRAVE" (2-A)

AT THE HARLEM — Maneuvering his way out of a prison cell, Kirk Douglas plans his escape route after his friend, Walter Kane, decides not to join him in freedom. Scene is from "Lonely Are the Brave," the Joel production modern adventure drama released by Universal-International, now playing at the Harlem.
