Prayer For This Week

O God, who has seat us to school in this strange life, and has set us tasks which test all our courage, trust and fidelity, may we not spend our days complaining of circumstances, or fretting at discipline, but give ourselves to learn of life and to profit by experience. Amen.

The March On Annapolis 1942 Style

2,000 outraged citizens "marched on Annapolis" in 1942, held a meeting in the House chamber, and invited the governor in to hear their complaints.

At issue was the ruthless violation by police of the Bill of Rights, and the rebellion of the citizens, attorneys, and grand jury and the petit juries to prosecute, indict or convict policemen who mistreated colored citizens in violation of the law.

The committee concluded that the complaints of the colored citizens were "not without foundation."

In a case in which a soldier had been killed, Judge Soper's committee found "no legitimate reason why the grand jury should have dismissed the case."

The committee reported that the States Attorney's office was unable to explain the grand jury's action.

Finally, the committee termed, "unsatisfactory the failure of the police commissioner to take action to discipline a policeman or remove him from the force."

All of this happened in 1942.

What we are having in 1962 is recurrence of conflicts between policemen and colored citizens.

It appears to us that a new committee is necessary to investigate these conflicts, and make a report to the governor.

We urge Governor Tawes to appoint this new commission.

ALSO OUT of the "march on Annapolis" in 1942, came a bill introduced in the Legislature by Senator Melnicove. It would amend the Baltimore City Charter and authorize the governor to appoint a special judicial board, consisting of two members of the police force with the rank of captain or higher, and a member of the Baltimore Bar.

This board would have the power to hear complaints and charges filed against any officer or member of the police force of Baltimore City.

The purpose would be to require a thorough airing of citizens' complaints against police. Such boards are commonplace in other cities.

We would urge a re-introduction of the Melnicove Bill, or a similar measure, in the next Legislature.

Tragedy In The Night

Survivors and associates describe the John Butler family as 'devoted,' and 'pretty well-off financially.' They can offer no explanation for his actions.

But, mental health experts tell us that persons who are despondent enough to require institutional care, are likely to go berserk at a moment's notice.

In this instance, because the loving family wanted the head of the household at home, rather than in a hospital, all of them are dead.

It is necessary for us to educate ourselves to understand that people with sick minds are best cared for in institutions with trained personnel.

Often, in hospitals, trained physicians can cure sick minds, and prevent a tragedy like the Sunday night shooting spree which wiped out an entire family.

The bandit was 'a colored male about 35, weighing 200 pounds, wearing blue clothes, with dark hair, eyes and complexion . . .' said the clerk

The written police report contains a graphic description of the bandit's actions, how he taped the victim, and gathered up the $6800 loot.

But, lo and behold, this week, police, acting on a tip, found the 'robbery' to be fake. Instead, the clerk has been charged with larceny, and two accomplices are awaiting court action.

We shudder to think what might have happened if the tipster had not had a conscience, and if the investigating policemen had not been colorblind.

Here We Go Again

We hesitate to guess how many colored persons have been jailed because of mistaken identity, lax police investigation and false reports to police.

Familiar are the cases of errant women, afraid of jealous husbands. They cry 'rape,' and describe their attackers as 'colored.'

Another attention - getter is the story a clerk or money collector gives to cover up his own misdoings. The robber was 'colored,' they say.

As a rule, police go to work, line up 'colored' men who might fit the description, question them and place them in a lineup.

Sometimes, an innocent man is subject to untold discomforts, families and neighborhoods are disturbed.

The old theme 'a colored male did it,' reared its head again last week in the case of a 'robbery' of a Park Ave. check-cashing firm.

Dear Old Howard

Howard University, under its new president, James Nabrit, makes two announcements:

1. Rowing is now a college sport.

Howard long excelled in football, basketball and track until smaller schools caught up with and regularly drubbed the Washington institution.

So, Howard is the first predominantly colored school to turn to rowing.

2 Howard's Law School was the first to give courses in civil rights. Still first with the newest, Howard now offers a course in the "Philosophy and Methods of Non-Violence."

Now that Martin Luther King insists on going to jail as did Mahatma Ghandi, Howard will educate its students in the newest techniques of turning the other cheek.

To Be Sure, We Flunked

Science Research Associates tested high school students to determine how much they knew about civil rights. They called it a "Principles of Democracy Test."

61 per cent approved curtailed voting rights for people considered to have wild ideas.

66 percent would limit or prohibit historical films which make our government look very bad.

All of this public clamor for required prayer and Bible reading in the public schools stems from failure of parents and schools to teach the facts of the first Amendment.

If our kids do not understand the first ten Amendments, it is not surprising they fail to understand the 14th and 15th Amendments which guarantee the right to vote and equal citizenship to all.

The Tragedy of Cancer

Dear AFRO:

My son, Samuel Walker, 2, is in Sinai Hospital dying from cancer.

My reason for writing this letter is to call further public attention to cancer.

Several months ago, we knew little and thought less about cancer. Now that it has happened to us, people should know that it does happen. Cancer, as I've heard and am now seeing, does kill.

We are expecting Sammy to die any day now. Maybe by the time this is read, he will be gone.

We want to cherish the thought that he may not die in vain. To do something to prevent this is our major cause. Please support your Cancer Campaigns.

May God help him. (Interested persons may send donations to the American Cancer Society, 20 E. Eager St.)

ELDRIDGE M. WALKER SR.

(Editor's Note: Last year, 4,000 children under 15 years old died from cancer. One-half died from Leukemia, which many people do not realize is a cancer. More children die from cancer than from any other disease. An estimated 275,000 persons will die from cancer in 1962.)

'Humorous' Gregory

Dear AFRO:

Anent your editorial, "It Is Not Funny" (July 14), I heartily concur with its context, as I do not see how what method, or means, the NAACP saw fit to award comedian (????) Dick Gregory with a scroll, except for racial degradation.

If the type of "humor" he dispenses will contribute to the cultural uplift of the race, then we may as well have the college students, educators and leaders call off their sit-ins, non-resistant movements, economic boycotts and sacrificial activities, and start using "profanity" to win our cause!

I never heard of such "asinine proj-

A Backstage Look At The World Of Music

By ROBERT W. MATTHEWS

Every now and again, it is interesting to look behind the scenes in the music business.

Man responsible for the album was an A and R (artists and repertoire) man named Creed Taylor.

Creed had the idea of recording Smith with a big band. He approached the label to whom Jimmy is under contract. They turned thumbs down on the idea.

But they did release him to make just one record with another company on a reciprocal basis. And so the album was cut.

It was an instantaneous success, far beyond what was expected, so now the company who released Smith for the set is unhappy. They're saying that Creed didn't fulfill his promise since a couple of the numbers on the album don't have a big band background.

WAS CURIOUS as to how Ray Charles is being accepted overseas. His music has become "respectable" since "I Can't Stop Loving You" swept to the top of the top tunes listings.

Find that his popularity is just as great on foreign shores. The tune is number one in Israel and Ireland; Number three in England, Number eight in Norway, Number five in Sweden, Number seven in Brazil, Number four in Australia and Number eight in Rio de Janeiro.

All this is particularly amusing to me since my appreciation of Charles' brand of music started five or six years ago when we heard him do "He Brings the Tears."

IN CASE you haven't heard, the Newport Jazz Festival went off as scheduled this year and reports are that dignity was the watchword.

There have been many innovations at this particular festival, such as gospel singing and folksongs. This year was no exception.

They brought in men to demonstrate the dying art of tap dancing. A Dr. Marshall Stearns, professor of English at Hunter College, narrated history of the tap dance, and Bunny Briggs, Baby Lawrence et al, demonstrated the steps.

AFRO Credo

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—

Whether it has kept the faith with the common people;

Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured;

Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;

Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustices, race prejudice or compromise.

Women Want 'In' On Outer Space

By GEORGE W. COLLINS

This ancient cry belongs to another time and place. I first heard it while yet in knee pants.

It came from an elderly man who frowned on women occupying the pulpit.

In view of the march of events since that long-ago day, I'm convinced that it was too late—even then.

What with congressmen, women, judges, women drivers, women pilots, women dominated schools and churches, and other inroads they've made in all phases of human endeavor, I've long resigned myself to the fact that nothing on earth is beyond the deft touch of the "weaker sex."

Just as my masculine pride sank to its lowest ebb at the way we men have been challenged by women, it was buoyed up in the wake of the exploits of Astronauts Allen B. Shepard and Scott Carpenter.

"That'll show 'em," I told myself, "that we men are still on top of things — the world, in fact."

TODAY I FIND that I was lulled into a sense of false security.

This week three women —Misses Jerri Cobb and Jacqueline Cochrane, and Mrs. Janey B. Hart — appeared before a House sub-committee.

ARGUING THAT women will eventually go into space —and they probably will — the women pilots charged that National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials are discriminating against them.

Offering thousands of hours of flying time to support their claims of qualifications the three did a fairly good job of convincing the committee chairman, Rep. Victor L. Anfuso (N.Y. Dem.). Said he after the hearing:

"The whole purpose of space exploration is to someday colonize other planets, and I don't see how we can do that without women."

So again, men of the world uni. . . . never mind, it's no use!

Whoever started woman suffrage really started something!

THE CIVIC CENTER controversy recalls another bit of ageless philosophy: "Anything worth having is worth fighting for," it goes

If that be true, the center should be a beaut because it has been the 'center' of squabbling ever since it was on the drawing board.

Mr. Schaefer, vice president of City Council, wants an explanation as to why taxpayers are being asked to cough up $14 million for a job originally estimated to cost $4 million.

Come to think of it, a $10 million difference deserves some sort of explanation!

The councilman is also concerned about the "public's confidence" in the structure, and this too, is a good point. Especially since the ceiling began falling three months before its scheduled October opening.

I, for one, don't relish the opportunity of witnessing an event there and suddenly to have the walls literally come tumbling down!

THE ARGUMENT against legislation to halt segregation — nationally and locally — was again shot full of holes this week.

It occurred in the courtroom of Chief Judge Emory H. Niles when trespassing charges were dropped against 20 demonstrators, jailed in the two-year fight to desegregate local restaurants.

They were dropped, Saul A. Harris, state's attorney, said, "because the charges have become moot since passage of the Public Accommodation Ordinance."

Judge Niles said the court "was happy" to approve the action.

Restaurant owners listed as prosecuting witnesses in the cases now serve all customers without restrictions.

The critic whose stock reply to former President Eisenhower's contention that "you can't legislate people's hearts," seems to have had something when he said:

"But you can legislate their behavior."

THE PARK BOARD, by a unanimous vote this week, killed the "private club" swimming arrangement that several recreation centers had with the Carlin's amusement center.

The board's action came before, and consequently killed off the results of Park and Recreation Superintendent Charles A. Hook's "study" of the arrangement.

Mr. Hook, after the AFRO exposed the "private" setup, promised to "study" it.

Had the board not acted, it is conceivable that it could have developed into one of the longest "studies" on record.

I wonder too, if the board's decision also interrupted a "study" by Fourth District Sen. J. Alvin Jones, member of the board, who so far has said nothing about the all-white set up.

But again this is typical of the senator, who, according to an AFRO story, a while back, has been a man of few words since being named to the board.

PARKS AND RECREATION remind me of Enchanted Forest. Either there has been a change of policy there or its mailing list is garbled.

The Rev. Reginald J. Daniels, pastor of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, this week received an invitation asking him to announce to his congregation to write or phone for information on arrangements for group outings.

When the minister pressed a management spokesman for details on facilities, previously segregated, he was assured that this is a thing of the past.

It is recalled that when a church group attempted to picnic there a year ago it was given the alternative of paying a $25 "parking fee" or leaving. The group chose the latter.

Time does change things!

For Leon Brown

Dear AFRO:

I wish to take time to set the record straight for a few misinformed persons including one Mr. Ralph Evans whose letter on fair hiring and a professor at Howard University appeared in the July 7 issue of the AFRO-AMERICAN in the "Letters to the Editor" section.

I have known Mr. Leon Brown, head of the firm cited in the letter, for more than fifteen years and can truthfully say that nothing could be further from the truth than the assertions made in Mr. Evans' letter.

Since Mr. Brown came to Howard, he has worked diligently and untiringly to prepare the colored architectural student in such a manner that he would be as equally qualified as his white competitor.

POET'S CORNER

The Octoroon

One dro pof midnight in the dawn of life's palsating stream
Marks her an alien from her kind, a shade amid its gleam;
Forevermore her step she bends insular, strange, apart —
And none can read the riddle of her wildly warring heart.
The stormy current of her blood beats like a mighty sea
Against the man-wrought iron bars of her captivity.
For refuge, succor, peace and rest, she seeks that humble fold
Whose every breath is kindliness, whose hearts are purest gold.

IF YOU have not been to the YMCA Camp down in Huntingtown, Md. in the past few years, this is to report you wouldn't know the place.

From the time you see the clear highway signs saying YMCA Camp Mohawk until you see the nine canoes lined up on the well-kept waterfront, you realize the YM staff has made tremendous changes.

Campers talk about the flush toilets, loss of the old trails, lights in the cabins and the good meals. But parents notice the road which two cars can travel, replacing the old single lane where once you had to close the windows to keep out the dust.

There are new homes for staff, windows and screens on the cabins and best of all roads leading to all parts of the camp.

THE WATER FRONT is also something special. No longer do you have to sit on a hill to watch your youngsters perform. There is a clear beach.

Where once the trip from Baltimore took almost two hours, you now have a dual highway, almost all the way down to Huntingtown. A careful driver can make it in a little over an hour.

And, since you are tired and hungry on the trip back on Route 301, it is worth mentioning the good service you can get in the Howard Johnson's Restaurant. Yes, the old Camp Druid Hill, now camp Mohawk, has really changed, and so has Maryland.

And orchids, also to energetic Alonzo P. Moss, the present director.

And, don't forget Dr. Louis E. Harmon, who has headed the Y's campership program, and raised funds for the camp for many years.

'Exempt our people from all taxation'

"We want the U.S. Government to exempt our people from all taxation as long as we are deprived of equal justice under the law of the land," says Elijah Muhammad, leader of the Black Muslims.

Muhammad spoke Sunday at the McCormack Building in Chicago before an audience of more than 4,000 persons.

Isaiah Karriem, minister of Temple No. 6, 514 Wilson St., Baltimore, was among those hearing Muhammad's first major lecture this year. It was entitled, "What Does the Muslim Want?"

SEEKING TO ANSWER, Muhammad said, "We believe that inter-marriage and race mixing should be prohibited. We want the religion of Islam taught without hindrance of suppression.

"We want all black children taught and trained by our own teachers.

"The U.S. Government should provide free all text books and equipment, schools and college buildings.

"We want equal education but separate schools up to age 16 for boys and age 18 for girls, on the condition that the girls be sent to women's colleges and universities.

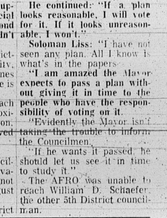
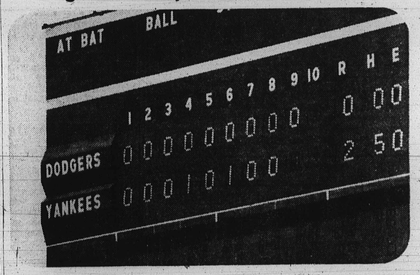
Ballantine Beer presents
Golden Moments in Sports
as told by... Roy Campanella



Tune in the Roy Campanella Show between games of every Yankee Doubleheader.



"This Golden Moment happened in 1956: Don Larsen faced the Dodgers in a hotly contested Dodger-Yankee World Series that stretched to seven games. Larsen won the fifth game 2-0 . . . threw just 97 pitches . . . walked no one and didn't give up a hit. No hits, no runs, no errors! The first no-hitter and perfect game in World Series history! A record that's hard to beat!"

Your Golden Moment happens every time you taste today's
