Douglass alumni meeting scheduled

A meeting is scheduled Sept. 19, at Douglass High school to re-activate the school alumni association, Mrs. Lillian M. Murphy principal, announced this week.

Former Douglass students are invited to attend the meeting in the school auditorium.

The September meeting was set following a meeting of the Alumni Association officers and members.

Attending were Dr. Robert Hill, president; James H. Murphy, treasurer; Mrs. A. Katherine Gross, secretary; Meredith Addison and Col. Melvin Cade.

Miss Essie Hughes and James A. Spencer, Douglass vice-principals, also attended.

SUGGESTED PLANS included an Alumni Day to be held prior to the February, 1963, graduation, sports competition between the alumni and varsity, cultural presentation in music, art and drama, and an annual ball to be held in a city auditorium featuring top-flight talent.

Mrs. Murphy said there is a great need to re-activate an alumni association which numbers thousands across the United States and abroad.

She urged every alumnus to become affiliated.

97 to study at Coppin in evening

Some 97 persons have already registered for evening courses at Coppin State Teachers College, which begins for the first time in September, Dean Grace Jacobs announced.

The feature course will be "Modern Africa," which will be taught by Prof. Lawrence D. Reddick. Registration for this course will be on a "first come, first served." basis.

Other course offerings will depend upon the number of persons who wish to take a particular course. High school graduates; college students and other adults should write to Dean Jacobs at 2500 W. North Ave., or call Lafayette 3-1111, about the courses desired.

5-week day camp at School No. 112

A five-day a week day camp, 9-12 p.m., is being operated by volunteer teachers at William M. Alexander Elementary School No. 112 Laurens and Calhoun Sts., for 70 pupils, 6-8 years old.

The camp, running five weeks, June 25-July 23, is an outgrowth of the desire of parents and teachers to carry "the children's experiences beyond the four walls of the school," Mrs. Missouri Wright, school principal, explained:

"It's a wonderful program and we think the children have profited immensely by it.

"We are hoping that it helps to improve their language in the field of arts and crafts, and gives them a look at the world around them, "Mrs. Wright added.

THE CHILDREN take two trips weekly and have toured the Zoo, the harbor, Enoch Pratt Library, Howard Farm, Walter's Art Gallery, Fort McHenry and Baltimore City. A weekly minimal fee is charged each child to defer transportation cost.

In the classrooms they engage in arts and crafts which include stuffing animals, papier mache, making baskets from old records, molding clay, painting, weaving, singing, viewing films and reading.

Mrs. Sara Howell, teacher, thinks the program is "simply wonderful.

"We're very excited about and think we will try it next year.

"It often runs until two in the afternoon because the time just flies away before we know it," Mrs. Howell added.

Other teachers in the program are: Mesdames Ruth Cleaver, Victoria Jones, Laurie Gaines, Josephine Neal, Mary Garner, Bernice Taylor, Florence McDonald and Miss Sylvia Witerspoon.

Dunbar art teacher to show paintings

An exhibition of paintings and drawings by Cornelius Griffin, Baltimore artist, will open July 30 in the Enoch Pratt Free Library's Pimlico branch, Park Heights and Garrison Aves. The show will continue through Sept. 7.

Having studied at the Philadelphia Museum College of Art as well as Teachers College, Columbia University, Mr. Girffin holds both a bachelor's and master's degree in fine arts and fine arts education.

Chairman of the art department at Dunbar High School, and art instructor at Morgan State College, he has had one-man shows in the Prang and Creative galleries in New York City, and the International Gallery in Washington.

• • •

IN ADDITION, he has been represented in group shows at the Baltimore Museum of Art, and the Corcoran Gallery in Washington.

Mr. Griffin last year won first prize in the capital's Market Gallery Show. H. Thomas Walker and Mrs. Charlotte Kaufman, of the Pimlico library staff, are in charge of arrangements for the coming display.

THOMAS AND VERONIA GREENE of Marley Neck Road leave no wheels unturned when they entertain annually for the members of "The Organization" and their husbands and escorts. Attractive beach umbrellas and lounge furniture graced the Greens' lawn. Their clubroom had been attractively decorated with balloons bearing the members' names and colorful lanterns to give an oriental effect.

The togs selected by the group added to the beauty of the occasion — the ladies having selected some of the smartest and fanciest of pants—to say nothing of the outfits selected by the men. Continuous music was provided from the tape recordings of Clarence Jones.

Being the hostess she is Veronia made the whole evening a memorable one for all her guests. Jeanette Johnson (quite a dancer in her own right) introduced new dances to the group. Linwood Koger Sr. kept the group in hysterics with his wit and humor. Tom played a dual role-first as head chef and then as master bartender (He is proficient at both). The Greene's were very ably assisted by their teen-age daughter, Nona.

About and enjoying the fun of it all were: Marian and Joseph Amprey, Mae and Emile Cornish, Henrietta and Clarence Jones, Aurelia and Clifford Lonesome, Needham and Ernestine Lewis, Alphna and Henry Williams, Lillian and Elroy Wilson, Mary Bacote, Jeanette Johnson, and Linwood Koger Sr.

Special guests included Felker and Mary Ward, Joseph and Helen Lee, Mabel Prescoe, Veronia's mother from Philadelphia, and Thomas Greene Sr., Tom's father.

The young people who attended as Nona's guests included, Barbara Lee, Joseph Lee Jr., Zenobia Cornish, Sheila Williams, Ernest Cornish, Joseph Amprey Jr., and Wendell Amprey.

POT-POURRI: Olga and Rayner Parker have moved into their elegant new home on Ellamont Road. We had gotten a preview of the rancher, a couple of weeks back, just after its completion, when Olga entertained the Baltimore Chapter of Girl Friends. Her meeting, however, was in the home of her sister, the Leon Williamses, who are next door.

We had oh'd and ah'd over the beautifully spacious glass - walled living room with its raised fireplace . . . and been more than impressed with the sleeping suites, the master one (bath, umpteen closets, connecting study for the Mr., etc.) and that of the boys on opposite ends of the house.

We had loved the colorful kitchen, and turned on the switches which pipe music in every room of the house; we had traipsed down to the clubroom . . . but most of all we had been intrigued with the foyer which boasts a domed class ceiling above an immense sunken aquarium.

ALL OF THE Swags and their wives (including their widows, Gertrude Urquhart, Maude Woodland and Olga Chambers) swung up to Frederick, Md. for a session with Dr. and Mrs. Ulysses Bourne, Sunday . . . and all of the Links (and their Connecting Links) swung down to Arundel - on-the-Bay for a picnic at the place of Dr. and Mrs. W. Leroy Berry . . that is all but Dr. and Mrs. Ted Phifer, who were with the Swags.

The Swags include Messrs. and Mesdames Talmadge Hill, William Stanford, Charles Law, Edgar Ewing, Elmer Patterson, William Gosnell, Theodore Brown;

And Drs. and Mesdames James Johnson of Elkton, Van Thompson of Frederick, Thomas Clayton of Coatesville and Louis Harmon of hereabouts.

The Links and their husbands included:

ON SUNDAY, Tau Gamma Delta Sorority rendered a vesper service program in the chapel at the Veteran's Administration Hospital, 3900 Loch Raven Boulevard. Soror Gabrella McNair presided.

The Call to Worship was given by Soror Ann Gregory and the scripture was read by Soror Clarissa Matthews. Soror Juliaetta Harris lead the responsive reading with readers being Sorors Ann Gregory, Gloria Ruff and Dorothy Tate. Selected readings were given by Soror Juanita Mills.

The Eastern regional director, Soror Noma O. Scott, gave the inspirational message, in which she urged the patients to have hope, charity and above all faith in God, because he understood.

Solos were sung by Sorors Delores Brooks and Dorothy Tate.

The organist was Soror Dolores Brooks, who provided background music throughout the program.

The music was under the direction of Soror Tate.

After the program the chaplain, the Rev. Edward Gualt took the sorors and their guests on a tour of the hospital.

The tour ended when the girls sang songs on the ward, closing with "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Attending were:

Sorors Christine Bland, Dolores Brooks, Ann Gregory, Juliaetta Harris, Mary J. Jenkins, Frances Lee, Clarissa Matthews, Gabrella McNair, Juanita Mills, Noma O. Scott, Dorothy Tate and Hattie Turner.

Guests who worshiped with them were Mrs. Estelle Matthews, Misses Dorothy Dixon, Evelyn McNair, Jean Harris and William Harris.

On Saturday the sorors will have a workshop in Fellowship House, Hilton Rd. Mrs. Margaret Wheelock will be guest speaker. This project is under direction of Sorors Lucille Anderson and Hattie Turner.

Soror Gabrella McNair is basileus of Pi chapter.

Hanover scores big hit in 'save-label' contests

"Save the Label" program inaugurated by the Hanover Canning Company in Baltimore, Md., and Danville and Roanoke, Va., continues to gain momentum as the days pass.

Groups have been encouraged by the numerous and handsome gifts offered for the church property and kitchen and for some outstanding personality in the church.

The catalogues have created much excitement among the participating groups. Among the selected items are: Wallace Silver Tea Service, Wear-Ever Punch Bowl set, Javamatic (50 - cup coffee urn), Anchorwhite Dinnerware, and quantity cookware.

• • •

COMMUNION SERVICE sets, baptismal bowls, communion table covers, missal desks, alms basins and hymn boards are but a few of the articles which may be redeemed for a required number of labels.

The interest of the participating churches is equaled by that of the Hanover Canning Company as they watch their first in a series of community activities among church groups.

Members are urging friends to save the labels from any of the Hanover products, which are sold in the leading chain stores and independent markets.

If your church is not yet active in the label redemption program, write Hanover Label Redemption Program, Box 3875, Philadelphia 46, Pa.
