Politics discounted in Elections Bd. firings

Thomas D'Alesandro 3rd., president, Board of Supervisors of Elections, said Tuesday politics [illegible] not involvde in the firing of two members of his staff affiliated with the James H. (Jack) Pollack political faction.

Fired from their jobs Monday were:

William Hults, 4100 block Buena Vista Ave., supervisor in the IBM computing machine room, salary $4,600 a year, and Mrs. Ruth Boston, 1600 block Ruxton Ave., keypunch operator, salary 2,600 a year.

Mr. D'Alesandro told the AFRO afterwards:

"The board is taking the view it needs more trained personnel in its IBM department than those presently assigned.

"We are hoping to obtain state and/or civil service lists of people who are competent.

"It's not a question of political maneuvering, but one of improving the department."

THIS MEANS, Mr. D'Alesandro said, that these vacant positions will not be filled with political appointees, as such vacancies in this agency have been handled in the past.

The firing of the two Pollack faction affiliates stirred anew rumors that the forces of Gov. J. Millard Tawes were determined to cut off the Pollack faction patronage jobs.

This faction waged a bitter primary campaign against the nomination of Gov. Tawes, and supported instead George P. Mahoney.

The three-member Board of Supervisors of Elections is appoinetd by the Governor, and staff jobs are normally with his administration's approval.

However, Gov. Tawes has said previously that he would favor legislation placing jobs with the Supervisor Elections under the merit litical patronage plums. than let them remain as poagency's operation, rather system to improve the OBSERVERS ARE recalling though that since the as liquor inspectors with of the Pollack faction have been fired from their jobs the city's Liquor Board, and replaced with political affiliate who supported Gov. Tawes.

One of these, Aubrey A. Briscoe, 1800 block Park Ave., an appointee of Senator J. Alvin Jones who had the backing of the Pollack faction, was replaced by T. Shelton Coles, 3000 block Gwynns Falls Pkwy., campaign manager for Mrs. Verda F. Welcome, who defeated the Senator in the primary.

The Liquor Board, like the Supervisors of Elections, is a city agency under the Governor's control.

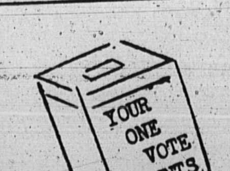
Welcome says vote valuable for both local, national laws



"What is true on the national level is also true on the local (level). We need the same weapon—the vote—to get certain legislation that we need so badly.

"We can't blame anyone but the electorate—the voter."

Mrs. Verda Welcome, House of Delegates, member from the Fourth District and Democratic candidate for the Fourth District Senate seat in the November election, made these statements as she went on the campaign trail Tuesday.

She spoke at the Frontiers meeting in the Druid Hill Ave. YMCA.

Delegate Welcome stressing the importance of the vote, and redistricting in the city, praised the Frontiers' work in civic and community projects.

She also referred to a statement by former baseball star Jackie Robinson, recently in which he said if people would use "their right of francise, they could change any undesirable situation."

Mrs. Welcome said:

"We know that statement is true because the politician respects the vote.

"This is why the registration campaign going on in the city today should be supported by every individual."

Mrs. Welcome said she wished every adult in Maryland could have seen the fight over one vote in the supervisor of Elections office during the May primary election tabulation.

"Maybe they would realize how important their one vote is.'

SHE EXPRESSED concern over what she called the "vicious system" of paid street-corner ballot passers.

Calling it a "farce" she said when the number reaches the 60's "Something is wrong."

On the matter of getting out the vote, she scored the apathy of registered persons failing to get to the polls.

We are butting our heads against a brick wall and will continue to unless we can devise some way to awaken the people—yes the registered voters—to get them out on election day, she stated.

Mrs. Welcome suggested that if each intelligent citizen would see to it that the people around him voted, we could swell the final results in each precinct.

"I think the time has come when we must insist on being included on most commissions and boards where we can qualify," she also declared.

Boards and commissions where there are no colored persons represented, she said, are: Governor's Advisory Board, University of Maryland Board of Regents, State Roads Commission, Real Estate Board, Parole and Probation Board, Md. Commission on Alcholism, Md. Traffic and Safety Commission, to name some.

In comparison Mrs. Welcome cited the state of North Carolina where colored are represented on 11 state commissions and boards.

Mrs. Welcome listed things of special interest to her as a state wide-public accommodations bill, compensation for Horace Spriggs, Day Care Centers throughout the state, revision of election laws, city redistricting, expansion of Coppin State land area and scholarships to deserving students.

Demos name 3 for new 3rd-5th D. House seats

The Democratic nominees for the three extra House of Delegates seats, granted Baltimore by the stop-gap reapportionment legislation, were named this week by the Democratic State Central Committees in the affected two districts.

Selected in the Third District, which receives two new seats for a total of eight, are — Martin A. Kircher, attorney, 6000 Hillen Rd., and Maurice J. O'Connell, 5520 Bucknell Rd.

In the Fifth District, which is allotted one additional seat for a total of seven, Gerald Siegel, attorney, 6227 Pimlico Rd., was selected.

Messrs. Kircher and O'Connell were unsuccessful House candidates in the May primary, on a ticket of the district's United Democratic Organization, a group headed by Hugo A. Ricciuti, former city solicitor.

Mr. Siegel is a former police court magistrate and a political ally of the James H. (Jack) Pollack faction. The three Democratic State Central Committee members in his district are allied with this faction.

* * *

THE SELECTION of Mr. Siegel surprised many observers, who had expected that Richard T. Rombro, out-going House member and an affiliate of the Pollack faction, would be named.

Mr. Rombro, an attorney, is currently a Fourth District House member. He moved to the Fifth District and lost his bid for a House seat nomination there in the past primary.

The three additional House seats brings Baltimore's total to 39. The other four districts in the city remain with six such seats each.

The General Assembly, under court orders, passed in a special session this year legislation authorizing 19 new House seats, to bring more equitable representation to the more heavily populated political sub-divisions.

Baltimore County receives seven new seats, bringing its total to 13; Montgomery and Prince Georges get four each, for a total of ten each, and Anne Arundel was allotted one additional, raising its total to seven.

The new seats increase the House of Delegates membership from 123 to 142.

The stop-gap reapportionment plan was approved, pending the General Assembly's enactment of a permanent representation law, based on population, to become effective for the 1966 state-wide election.

The Republicans, meanwhile, have yet to name their city nominees for the three seats in the Third and Fifth Districts.

Dr. Templeton named to reapportionment group

Dr. Furman L. Templeton, executive director, Baltimore Urban League, is among 14 citizens appointed Wednesday by Gov. J. Millard Tawes, to determine a permanent reapportionment plan for Maryland's General Assembly.

Dr. Franklin L. Burdette, director of the bureau of governmental research, College of Business Administration, University of Maryland, was named chairman of the commission.

Gov. Tawes wants the commission to have a reapportionment plan ready for submission at the next session of the General Assembly, which convenes in January.

Other members of the commission are:

Royce Hanson, president, Maryland Committee for Fair Representation; Walter J. Bierwagon, area vice president, Maryland-D.C. AFL-CIO; Stanford Hoff, Carroll County Republican and former chairman, Public Service Commission;

Dr. Roger Howell, former dean, University of Maryland Law School; Mrs. Helen L. Koss, of Wheaton, member League of Women Voters Samuel Hopkins, former chairman, Republican City Committee;

Senators Harry R. Hughes (D. Caroline) and H. Winship Wheatley Jr. (D. Prince Georges); Delegates Thomas H. Lowe (D. Talbot); John N. Maguire (D. Baltimore); Charles H. Smelser (D. Frederick), and Ridgely P. Melvin Jr. (D. Anne Arundel), who did not seek reelection.

* * *

APPOINTED AS ex officio members were Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director, Dept. of Legislative Reference, and Joseph S. Kaufman, deputy attorney general.

The General Assembly, unable to agree on a permanent reapportionment plan at a special session this year, passed instead stop-gap legislation to provide a degree of more equitable representation in the House of Delegates for the heavily populated political sub-divisions.

This temporary plan added 19 House seats. Two to Baltimore's Third District; one to the Fifth District; seven to Baltimore County; four each to Montgomery and Prince Georges, and one to Anne Arundel.

Two accidents on North Ave.

One man was injured and two parked cars were extensively damaged in separate auto accidents early Thursday morning on Madison Ave. above North.

The first mishap occurred shortly after 2 a.m. when an expensive 61 model car, operated by Charles F. Williams, 57, 1900 block Kennon Dr., struck two parked cars near Clendenin St.

One of the parked autos belongs to Dr. Louis E. Harmon, 2224 Madison Ave., and the other is owned by Edward D. Baylor, 2227 Madison Ave.

Mr. Williams, who was uninjured, told police he apparently fell asleep. He was cited for a traffic court hearing on a reckless driving charge 10 a.m., Aug. 21.

* * *

THE SECOND accident occurred at 9:20 a.m. at Madison and Druid Park Drive, when an auto, operated by Oliver Hanberry, 66, 1700 block Linden Ave., struck the rear of a taxi driven by Francis .X Bennett, 26, 300 block Melvin Dr.

Mr. Hanberry was treated at Provident Hospital for left arm injuries.

The taxi was stopped at the time, according to police. Mr. Hanbery was charged with reckless driving, and scheduled for a Traffic Court hearing 1 p.m. Aug. 17.
