3rd mystery death baffles minister

The third "mysterious" death just a short distance from Gillis Memorial Church, Mulberry and Calhoun Sts., has raised a doubt in the mind of its pastor, the Rev. Theodore C. Jackson, whether the same arrow does strike three times in the same place.

Preaching the funeral Wednesday of Mrs. Theresa Barnes, 51, of the 1300 block Lexington St., who was found dead in her back yard last Saturday, the Rev. Mr. Jackson said:

In my 30 years as pastor of this church, it has been my sad duty to give the last rites to three people who died under mysterious circumstances just a short distance from this church."

The other two were a young girl and a young man, he said.

Some 200 persons attended the funeral at the church and 24 cars accompanied the body to its burial place in Locust Chapel Cemetery, Howard County, near Simpsonville, Md.

Western District police are still mystified over the slaying of the nurses' aide, who medical examiners report, had been beaten to death.

Her assailant is still at large.

Police are trying to locate for questioning a male friend who was scheduled to meet her Friday evening.

James Barnes, father of the matron, told police his daughter left home Friday night after a telephone call from a friend.

Police have been unable to trace her movements after she left home.

In addition to her father, survivors include her mother, Mrs. Emily Barnes; a daughter, nine years old.

Provident nurses graduation tonight at Trinity Baptist

Tonight, Friday, graduation exercises at Trinity Baptist Church, McMechen St. and Druid Hill Ave., will witness the Provident Hospital School of Nursing awarding diplomas to the largest class since 1948, at 8 p.m.

Fifteen young women will conclude the three-year professional nurses training course.

Awards will go to outstanding students and for the first time in the school's 68-year history, the Provident Hospital School of Nursing Alumni Association will give an award.

In addition, each nurse will receive a medical manual from Dr. Leonhard Fuld, Trenton, N.J. philantropist who has paid tuition costs for all freshmen student nurses at Provident since 1960.

Dr. Fuld, a Ph.D. in Health Education and Phi Beta Kappa key holder, is administrator of the Helene Fuld Health Foundation fund which also pays freshman tuition costs for other nursing school students in selected New York, New Jersey, Tennessee and North Carolina schools.

The 1962 Provident graduates have been closely associated with the benefactor during their three years study. He spent one day each month with them in Baltimore to chat and lecture.

Their caps will remain the same, the traditional Provident Hospital white cap with the black band.

The nurses come from eight states and the District of Columbia.

* * *

TWO OF three Baltimore graduates are of Eastern High School.

Miss Carmen Bullock, 21, daughter of Army career man, Austine Bullock, studied in a Japan high school prior to entering Eastern High in Baltimore. She and her mother, Mrs. Vernell Bullock, 5203 Kenilworth Ave., Baltimore, resided with Mr. Bullock on the Army base in Japan at the time.

Miss Marita Turner, Eastern 1958 graduate, completed nursing school as a scholarship student. Miss Mary Lynch, also of Baltimore, finished high school in Weldon, N.C.

The local graduates will join six others to remain at Provident as graduating nurses. Seven of the graduating nurses plan to serve on hospital staffs in their home towns.

Mrs. Lovell White Matthews, Farmville, N.C., married June 30 to Navy Petty Officer Randolph Matthews, will join her husband at his station abroad in October.

* * *

DR. IRVIAN TEMPLETON, executive director of the Baltimore Urban League, is graduation guest speaker.

Theodore Perkins, Provident superintendent, will preside. Mrs. Doris Reese, director of nursing, will award the diplomas as each graduate is presented by Miss Hilda M. Thompson, associate director of the school.

Howard Brown, a Provident laboratory technician, is piano solist.

The Rev. Herbert Edwards pastor of Trinity, will give invocation and benediction.

Following the ceremonies, a reception for the graduates will be held in the Hospital Annex.

* * *

MEMBERS OF the 1962 graduating class are: Misses Alice Anderson, Chocotah, Okla.; Gwendolyn Braye, Acme, N.C.; Carmen Bullock, Baltimore, Christina Featherstone, New York City; Doris Hill, Laurinburg, S.C.; Madgelean Huskey, Shelby, S.C.; Mary Lynch, Baltimore; Edna McCray, Bucksport, S.C.; Mae Thomas, Columbia, S.C.; Marita Turner, Baltimore, Angela Vasser, Danville, Va.; Lucille Webster, Washington.

And, Mesdames Doris Riley Brown, Philadelphia; Delores McCullough Maxwell, Mt. Holley, N.C.; Mrs. Lovell White Matthews, Farmville, N.C.

ON THE teaching staff, Miss Thompson, the associate director, serves as social science instructor.

Other instructors include Mrs. Louise Bullock, obstetrics; Mrs. Mary Coln, Miss Ruth Jackson, medical surgery nursing; Mrs. Loretta Cumbo, fundamentals of nursing; Miss Bernice Christian, the hospital operating room supervisor, operating room technique instructor; Mrs. Johnnie Garrett, hospital dietician, diet theory instructor.

Burned-out family lost belongings

"I would appreciate anything anybody could give me for my household," said Mrs. Leola Sydnor, 37, 2327 Barclay St.

She spoke also on behalf of her husband, Hewitt, and their four children who were burned out of their home in the 1100 block of Somerset St., Sunday.

The Sydnors lost nearly all of their belongings and furniture in the fire.

"I had $80," said Mrs. Sydnor, "on the side for my children." It got burned up.

"We only saved one wardrobe, two mattresses, one is pretty scorched up; two dressers and two beds, which my children will repaint.

"The Red Cross gave me thing — blankets, sheets, some money for food and clothes, a stove, a refrigerator, and three mattresses.

"We just need some tings to start all over again."

COMMENTING ON how the fire started, Mrs. Sydnor stated, "I smelled something burning like rubber. I was upstairs. I ran downstairs.

"I saw a fire in the big chair in the front room. The fire ran right up the side of the wall.

"I had wires plugged above the chair, The television, radio and refrigerator were all hooked up together on that same socket.

"The fire must have come from that socket.

"I couldn't call the fire department. I was all nervous and shook-up. I am afraid of fires."

MR. SYDNOR is a longshoreman who is working irregularly. Their children are Willie, 18; Willis, 16; Ruby, 15, and Ernestine, 13.

On the matter of employment, Mrs. Sydnor said, "I don't work. I been looking and can't find anything."

THOSE CAP MAY House Party gals gathered at Ethel Day's Tuesday evening to complete their plans for this year's trip to the beach resort. After a delectable dinner Mary Allen and Rebecca Brown led the planning session for their two - week stay at Honey Locust Cottage.

Others participating are Veronica Campher, Minnie Davis, Mattie Gwathney, Mary Brooks, Mildred Noble, Margaret Johnson, Lillian Watty and Juanita Young.

And how they do plan down to the last detail so that when they packed their cars and pointed their motors beachward on Sunday they had not only makings for the gals' preferred entrees and sippables but even their favorite toothpaste.

Rebecca Brown will leave the group early this year to join a cruise to Bermuda. Likewise Ethel Day will spend the latter part of her leisure in Orange, Va. with her brother, Roscoe Berry, together with her two littlest grandchildren.

Juanita Young is joining the group after her return from Schroon Lake where she spends part of each summer. Mary Brooks and Margaret Johnson will replace the early leavers the second week.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM JOHNSON
Married 53 years on Sunday

Johnsons exponents of 'Love at first sight'

If you do not believe in love at first sight, talk to the Johnsons.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, exponents of immediate attraction, celebrated the 53rd anniversary of their marriage, Sunday, and admittedly and visably just as excitingly in love as ever.

The reception was in the beautiful home of their son, Herman C. Johnson of Mt. Royal Terrace.

Hostesses for the evening were Mesdames Bettye Johnson, Madeline B. Dorsey and Ruth H. Reynolds.

Guests were served from a beautifully decorated table that featured a four-tiered wedding cake iced in gold and topped with a golden bell, under which posed a minature bride and bridegroom.

* * *

MRS. JOHNSON, charming in a black frock, draped at the side, a stunning white hat, white beaded bag and pearls, could scarcely been more beautiful when Mr. Johnson met her, more than a half century ago, and fell in love with her on first sight.

They were in Burlington, N.C., at that time, when he saw the petite 19-year-old Maxine Cousins driving by in a surrey and decided that she was the "One". And say they both, they have been as excitingly in love every since. Mr. Johnson was 25 at the time.

* * *

MR. JOHNSON has been a store window decorator for more than 45 years. And while it was not publicly announced that it was his work, has created a number of prize-winning windows for local furniture stores. He recently retired.

Mrs. Johnson, an expert dressmaker, has headed the alterations department for a prominent city women's apparel store.

THE JOHNSONS are parents of six children. Herman Johnson, their oldest son, was the first non-white traffic employee here. Their eldest daughter, Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, is secrtary to Dr. Jesse B. Weaver.

Webb Johnson is an interpreter with United Nations. Luther Johnson is with Parks Sausage Company. Burton Johnson is a salesman for a hand bag manufacturer in New York. Mrs. Frances Ware is a housewife.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson also have seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Messrs. Burton and Webb Johnson came from New Yor City for the reception. Also from out-of-town was a grand son, James A. Reynolds Jr. of Washington.

* * *

OTHERS PRESENT were: Messrs. and Mesdames Henry Byrd, Howard Nealy Jr., Harvey Robinson, Auror Taylor, T. A. Reynolds, Ellsworth Matthews, Wendell A Wilson, George Carter, Myra B. Wright;

Mesdames Bertha Peace, Lillie Selby, Mary Williams, Sarah H. Reynolds, Gladys V. Allen, Elizabeth A. Nalle, Margaret White, Glenna D Reynolds, William Carter;

Misses Edna Carter, Justine Carter, Wanda Ware, M Raslind Allen; Wiley Bunn Garleto Burton, Henry G Parks, Richard Long, Luther Johnson, Avon F. Ware, Sidney Ware, Michael Ware, and Dr. Jesse B. Weaver.

Miss Russell bride of Wayne I. Gaddie

Metropolitan Methodist Church, lovely in a profusion of white gladioli, was the setting, Saturday, for the wedding of Miss Elaine Joy Cynthia Russell and Wayne Ira Gaddie.

The high noon ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank L. Williams, pastor of the church. Nuptial music was by Maurice Murphy, organist; and Miss Myrtle Mack, soloist.

* * *

MISS RUSSELL, foster-daughter of Mrs. C. Mansell Lawrence, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Russell of Jamaica, West Indies.

She was given in marriage by her cousin, Lawrence Denton, of this city.

Her wedding gown was of silk organza over white peau de soie, the top of Chantilly lace re-embroidered in seed pearls. A panel of the lace enhanced the skirt, which swept into a chapel train. The sleeves were short and net in the neckline, squared at the front, dipped low at the back.

A matching crown of the pearl embroidered lace, held border of Chantilly lace.

She carried a crescent of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley, showered with ribbons tipped with pale pink petals.

MISS BARBARA JONES was maid of honor for Miss Russell. Miss Jones was gowned in ice orange frock, with a headpiece of orange and green with flirtation veil, and accessories in the orange. She carried gold chrysanthemums and roses.

Bridesmaids wore identical frocks in Nile green, with accessories an carried bouquets like that of the honor attendant.

Mrs. LAserence wore an en-
