MUSICAL MOMENTS

Varied works mark concert by Coppin Teachers Choir

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Those who braved the impending storm last Friday evening to attend the concert given by the choir of Coppin State Teachers College were rewarded by an evening of delightful music.

Henry N. Freeman conducted with exhilerating energy and discriminating musicianship a program of early classic, modern and contemporary works.

The early part of the evening was devoted to Netherland's Orlando di Lasso and the English composers, Thomas Morley and Orlando Gibbons .. These were masters of the motet (religious) and the madrigal (secular).

Frequently they were sung as recreation in the home, with the signers seated around a table and sight reading their parts, each with his own score, which did not include what the others were singing!

With admirable discrimination the Coppin Choir preserved the gay informality of the madrigal, rather than declaiming in the style of a dramatic oratorio. Clarity and independence of voice leading delicate phrasing, contrast in expression and precise diction characterized each number.

They neither belabored every note nor trudged heavily thru the scores, but sang with a resonant lightness and an engaging lilt.

* * *

THE "ECHO SONG", with the hidden quartet and "Cuckoo Song" were especially enjoyable.

In Nystedt's "I Will Praise Thee" and Hutson's "Trumpet Song", the influence of the classic period was seen in modern writings.

To the familiar Randall Thompson "Alleluia", the choir gave a mystical and reverent interpretation rather than one of rhythmic exuberance.

Featured in the group of spirituals was Hairston's "Elijah Rock" and "Fare You Well" (Moore). The William Dawson "Hail Mary" was a striking example of the use of a spiritual theme as the basis of a choral work.

Altho most of the concert was done a capella, several numbers were enhanced by the very musical accompaniments of Frances Ridout.

* * *

THE CLIMAX of the musical season at Douglas Memorial Community Church was the annual concert by the combined choirs under the direction of James S. Hammond, minister of music.

Complete Parts II and III of Handel's "Messiah" were given for the occasion. As the pastor, the Rev. Marion S. Bascom, Sr., declared at the conclusion of the service, "to most of us the 'Hallelujah Chorus' is the high moment of 'Messiah'; but, when we hear the final chorus 'Worthy Is the Lamb' and the 'Amen', we realize the greatest was yet to follow".

(Incidentally, when Part I is sung, directors usually add the "Hallelujah", which is really the conclusion of Part II.)

Like a magnificent structure, Handel built up choral climax after climax from "Behold the Lamb", "Lift Up Your Heads", "The Lord Gave the Word", to the finale, with its elaborate and difficult fugue for voices and organ.

* * *

THE DOUGHS Choirs displayed increasing familiarity and interpretive ability in this their second year with the two parts of the oratorio. Mr. Hammond held his forces together with sweep and vigor, yet with due regard for contrasts and expression.

Exacting roles for solo voices abounded. The slow pace of "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth" may have given Gloria Waller some problem in pitch, which were not evident in "If God Be With Us".

Kenneth Lockett, whose bass is so well suited for dramatic oratorical style, handled well the difficult coloratura passages of "The Trumpet Shall Sound".

The three tenor arias of Part II were in the capable hands of Wendell Wright, while Valerie White sang the appealing "He was Despised". Celestyne Hamlin was soloist in the famous "How Beautiful Are the Feet".

Donald King, guest organist, gave an artistic reading of the exacting score (written originally for an orchestra), giving well balanced support to chorus and soloists.

An informal reception followed in the church parlor, which was decorated with an exquisite Easter floral centerpiece.

Walt Disney film on view at the Met

When better animal movies are made, Walt Disney will make them, a fact fabulously proven in his latest Technicolor feature motion picture based on the animal kingdom, THE LEGEND OF LOBO, now playing at the Met.

This is the story of a great wolf — a wolf who lived and who, like the central figure in any legend, stands like a giant of adventure and courage among famous figures of the old west.

Lobo was big and tough and hungry, and although he and the pack he led ravaged cattle throughout the Southwest for many years, he was never caught.

To this day his fate is a matter of vivid conjecture among those who still remember the chill his name conveyed to ranchers at the turn of the century.

AFTER THE unpleasant situation in Cherry Hill involving police, two Sundays ago, it would be well if the community established a Community-Police Relations Committee in this district.

Many of us still remember the Riverside Pool incidents of last summer. Before any more unpleasantness starts, now is the time to begin, for the whole Sixth District, working out a program, so that we may have better community relations and an organization through which we may solve our problems, peaceably.

Dinah, Tony to star in Provident benefit

Tony Bennett, today's hottest male vocalist, and Dinah Washington, the versatile blues singer, will headline the New Provident Hospital benefit show at the Civic Center May 26.

The 5 p.m. concert, sponsored by the Baltimore Chapter of the National Negro License Beverage Association, will also star the 19-piece band of Quincy Jones.

Tony, currently riding the crest of the wave of popularity, is relishing in critical acclaim and top-ten rating for his "San Francisco" and "I Wanna Be Around" recordings.

Dinah, who earned her niche as a blues singer is expected to display her versatility on long-cherished ballands and bouncy pop tunes.

* * *

QUINCY JONES' aggregation has few peers in the ranks of currently popular big bands. In selecting him to background the talented Tony and Dinah was a smart move on the part of Frank Reddish and Floyd Bartz, national and local presidents of NNLBA.

Ticket sale centers around town are reporting brisk sales and sponsors are hopeful of drawing a capacity crowd for the 14,000 seat arena.

Proceeds from the concert will be given over to the Provident Hospital Redevelopment Committee, headed by George L. Russell Jr. and Samuel H. Hecht.

To complete the $8-million hospital the committee must raise $2 million to match funds already granted by city, state and federal governments.

UN group would throw out S. Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NNPA) — A recommendation calling for complete diplomatic and commercial isolation of Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd's Republic of South Africa was put forward May 8 by a special committee of the United Nations.

An all-nations committee on apartheid (racial separation) said that dispite previous appeals, about 20 member states still maintain diplomatic relations with the racist South African government.
