Miss Holliman receives her MS degree from Juilliard

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Jamesetta Holliman, one of Baltimore's talented instrumentalists, received her Master of Science degree, majoring in piano, at the recent graduation exercises of the Juilliard School of Music.

For her graduate recital she played an exacting program that included Beethoven's Fifteen Variations and Fugue, the Chopin B minor Sonata and Bartok's "Out of Doors" Suite.

Miss Holliman, who received her first degree from Oberlin, spent a season in Europe as an exchange student. She was valedictorian of the 1955 class at Dunbar High School, where she received a music trophy.

Her first piano recital was given at the age of 9 at First Baptist Church. The gifted young musician studied locally with the late Mrs. Lovey Husketh and Louis Shub.

LAST YEAR Miss Holliman received a scholarship to the summer music workshop in Vermont. At present she is on the faculty of the East-Tremont Y.M.H.A Music School and assistant in the music department of the Lutheran Church of the Advent, both in New York.

She is among the young artists chosen to appear next season at Town Hall. As the result of a competitive audition she will play this summer at the exclusive Park Avenue Colony Club, being featured in concert programs on their "Hours of Music." This is the first time one of our musicians has won this opportunity.

During the summer Jamesetta will take post graduate courses in accompanying at Juilliard. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Holliman, both well known Baltimore musicians.

AT THE ROYAL — Troy Donahue and Sandra Dee are teenage lovers in "A Summer Place," Technicolor production now at the Royal with "Black Gold."

rector of the Baltimore Community Orchestra, which gave a recital recently at Calverton Heights High School, has announced that the group will continue rehearsals, time and place to be announced.

Culminating a highly distinguished season, the Bach Society of Baltimore gave the Bach St. John Passion at Goucher College Center.

Under the virile and exacting direction of George Woodhead, the singers, with a 30-piece orchestra, harpsichord and organ, gave an impressive interpretation of the passion, death and burial of Christ.

The text is largely from the St. John Gospel, interspersed with chorales (German hymns) and was written for a Good Friday service in 1724.

It is highly dramatic, with the story related by an "Evangelist" and the leading characters taken by soloists. The mob scenes and chorales are sung by the choir.

At the Goucher concert admirable playing was done by the orchestra, with special plaudits for the top - flight work in the viola, cello and flute sections.

The vocal acores are especially difficult, since Bach wrote for human voice as if it were an instrument.

Ronnie Freeman did the nearly impossible by taking two roles — the Evangelist and the tenor arias.

He conveyed the vast difference in vocal texture and interpreation with admirable effect, altho his voice seemed tired at times under the burden of the exacting recitatives.

NORMAN McNEIL was in excellent voice in the three lengthy bass arias, two of which were enhanced by the ethereal choral sections.

In the aria of lamentation, Lauretta Dorsey, recent Peabody graduate, lent an expressive lyric soprano. Betty Lou LeBrun, conveyed an appropriate brilliance in "I follow Thee," one of the few joyous moments in the Passion.

A moving interpretation of the alto aria "Est ist vollbract" (It is fulfilled) was given by Jeanne Kent.

Peter Jordan gave an authoritative rendition as Pilate and Peter, while the sorrowful dignity of Jesus was Michael Sexton. Supporting roles were sung by Carolyn Cotchett and Van W. Black.

Massive intensity as well as appealing tenderness marked the choral contribution of the Society, which includes in addition to Miss Dorsey, Jeanette Waters and Donald Staggers.

The Bach Society, which was founded by Dr. Wolgang Schroeder, is supported by sustaining, sponsoring and contributing members and friends.

JUNETTA JONES, Baltimore soprano, and one of the top winners in the recent Metropolitan auditions, received the distinction of a standing ovation at he graduation from Jordan Hall.

Miss Jones, who holds an artist diploma from Peabody, received her master of music degree this season from New England Conservatory.

Her concert program included "Et incarnatus est" (He was incarnate) from the Mozart C minor Mass, the operatic aria "Depuis le Jour" and a number of German and French art songs.

The singer was accompanied by Ross Reimueller, of the faculty and Andre Lizotte, clarinetist.

Miss Jones is now in New York, preparing for her debut at the Met next season. She has been invited to appear for the opening concert of the Jewish Community Center recital series.

JERUSALEM TEMPLE No. 4, Prince Hall Shriners, crowned Hansonia Caldwell, pianist, winning queen in the ship contest held at the Allen Memorial Temple.

Lauretta Dorsey, Miss Jerusalem Temple of 1962 and one on thenational winners, performed the ceremony assisted by Illustrius Potentate John T. Stokes and Arthur L. Hatcher, chief rabbas.

Miss Caldwell now a student at the University of Boston School of Music.

played a Brahams Rhapsody. She will attend the August national competition in Pittsburgh, all expenses paid by the local temple.

Vera Abrams, soprano from Edmondson High School and Phyllis Harris, contralto from Peabody won second and third honors.

Also competing were Linda Johnson, soprano from Douglas High, Lena Powell, dancern High, Mary Clegg violist from Peabody and Marian Artis, soprano from Morgan State.

Judges were Mrs. Celia McLeod, Gerald B. Wilson and George Collins.

Mr. Wilson, who announced the decisions, stressed the criteria of the judges, which included evidence of superior training as well as natural gifts.

'Dr. No' in 4th big week at Met

He has been compared to Brando and some persons have seen him in a special kind of spark and spontaneity reminiscent of the earlier Cary Grant.

So if Sean Connery, newest and already one of the most stongly entrenched of stars, can remind separate viewers of two such diametrically contrasted screen colleagues, the future ought to be a rosy one.

The rugged, athletic, six-foot - two newcomer, whose "Dr. No," United Artists' Technicolor release is held over for the 4th big week at the Met Theatre.

NAPE unit rejects picket resolution

The Baltimere branch of the National Alliance of Postal Employees learned this week that the host branch for the District 2 Convention to be held in Richmond, June 15-16 is protesting the local group's resolution calling for a hotel picket line.

John White, president of the local NAPE and candidate for the national office, said the resolution was supported by his group to express disapproval of a Richmond hotel chain's refusal to house all the delegates under one roof.

He said plans were made to hold the convention at Virginia Union University after the rebuff by the hotel.

THIS WEEK the local received a letter from William B. Jeter, Richmond N A P E president and C. J. Tayler, convention chairman, refusing to take part in picketing and threatening to decline as host unit if the demonstrations are insisted upon.

The two said they were vigorously opposed to the picketing resolution and that "we believe in certain principles that are greater than the anti-discrimination measure, we fight so diligently for."

Three reasons listed for not wanting to picket the hotels were: the last executive board meeting there reached the decision not to, because picketing would have a bad effect on the cohesion of certain other groups friendly to the Richmond branch and refusal to picket would show due respect to the new Rich-mond postmaster.

The Baltimore delegation, to be led by Anthony Ward, includes

Fred Waters, E. O. Hunt, James Meek, John Dixon, James Martin, Arthur Lewis, Moses Canada, Levi Dozier, Milton Holmes, Albert Dowdell, Mildred Weaver, Walter Cook, George Goodwin, Calvin Parker, Theresa N. Harris, Clifton Harris, Melvin Smith, Leon Proctor, George E. Ford, George Pinder Marshall T. Bright Sr., Clarence Harris and Rosanna Wood.

ADLAI STEVENSON, U.S ambassador to the United Nations: "Every instance of racial bigotry and violence in this country damages America's bid to win friends in Asia, Africa and South America. A democracy qualified by color will win no hearts in Africa and Asia."

Sophia Loren stars in lavish Harlem film

The delightful interpreter of "Two Women" and "Boccaccio '70," Sophia Lorean, who earned the coveted "Oscar" as "Best Actress," essays a most extraordinary character . . . a woman of the people . . . in Joseph E. Levine's latest lavish entry, "Madame."

The Technicolor and Technirama 70 mm production, filmed against a background of France's Napoleonic era, is now at the Harlem Theatre.
