called that Immediately after the Civil War, amendments to the Constitution were passed to give America's colored people first class citizenship, and a Freedmen's Bureau was established to aid in the transition from slave to freedman.

However, as Mr. Randolph set in and ::in the south the noted, a counter-revolution set in and "in the south the courts and the police force were organized to surpress the freedom."

THIS CURRENT civil rights movement was described by Mr. Randolph as being a "counter - revolution against the counter - revolution" as "the people have reached the end of their patience"

In staging demonstrations Mr Randolph said the colored people of this nation are following the example set by labor when it too had to take to the streets to win recognition.

"There is no easy road to freedom," said Mr. Randolph. "Freedom is not free, you have to pay for it . . . You have to give up your freedom and perhaps even your own life."

Again, Mr. Randolph returned to the theme that time is growing short.

"You had better win this civil rights fight. If you don't we're through," he said.

Mr. Randolph also warned that the time for pleading and the time for begging have passed the colored man by.

"Nothing is going to be given to you, you've got to take it . . . There's no use in pleading or begging, for in our society, people who beg are weak and will be trampled upon.

"If you don't want to be trampled upon you will march for freedom."

THE SPEAKER was introduced by Dr. Furman L. Templeton, excutive secretary of the Baltimore Urban League, who described him as an "elder statesman" and reminded the audience that Mr. Randolph was responsible for a planned earlier march in 1941 that was called off when the late President Roosevelt signed a fair employment executive order.

Also appearing on the program were representitives of several organizations supporting the march.

These included the Rev. Gentry McDonald, executive secretary of the Baltimore NAACP; Harry Frankel, business agent of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union; Walter Carter of CORE; the Rev. Robert W. Newbold, Jr., Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance; Samuel T. Daniels, grand master of the Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Maryland served as master of ceremonies.

The invocation was by the Rev. Harrison J. Bryant, Bethel pastor, and the invocation was by Monseigneur Austin J. Healey, Saint Martin's Catholic Church.

The appeal was by the Rev. Vernon Dobson, assistant pastor of Union Baptist Church, soloist was William O'Mare and the choral music came from the Young People Choir of the Apostolic Faith Church.

A number of the groups have already indicated they will be sponsoring busses to Washington and persons who wish to participate in the March are urged to contact their local church, union or other non-political organization.

Tickets can also be obtained through the March Office 10 E. Centre St., LE. 9-4958, the YWCA, Madison Avenue, or the YMCA, Druid Hill Ave., starting Tuesday, August 20.

Mr. Randolph said after the winning of the fight for civil rights, America would also be faced with the task of winning economic rights.

He said automation and increased technical skill had reduced the number of jobs available, and that finding new jobs was one of the major tasks of the future.

SLEEP IN — Another dimension has been added to the ride in, wade in, kneel in, sit in movement for equal rights. These three demonstrators staged a sleep in at the offices of Levitt and Sons, builders of the all white Belair housing development. From left, are Thomas Plass, who plans to buy a home in Belair if it desegregates; Dr. Karl Gregory, who has been refused a Belair home because of his race and Richard Ochs, Prince Georges County CORE vice president. About 70 persons picketed Belair last weekend.

hibit a firm guilty of discriminations from bidding on future city contracts.

The Interdenominational Ministers Alliance, which has been heading the battle for fair hiring policies in the skilled construction trades as well as their apprenticeship programs, has told the city contractors and Mayor Theodore P. McKeldin that they have until Sept. 1 to hire more colored skilled workers.

If the Alliance recieves no redress for its grievances by that date, mass demonstrations and jail - ins have been proposed.

The following contractors were part of the survey:

Philip Vizzini and Sons, Inc.

Piracci Construction Co., Inc.

John J. Driscoll and Co. Inc.

W. H. Ward Contractors, Inc.

MEANWHILE, DAVID L. GLENN, executive secretary of the Equal Opportunities Commission, informed the AFRO this week that he and his staff will conduct a survey among local contractors building for the city.

His investigation will also concentrate on the subcontractors, especially those in the skilled fields, although as he explained, "under the city contracts, the principal contractor is responsible for the policies and practices of his sub - contractor.

paper and "what appeared to be" money from an unidentified man at Southland and Reedbird Aves. in Cherry Hill. He allegedly drove there in a car.

Calling the statement "false fictions and perjurous" Mr. Jones said that Southland and Reedbird Aves. do not meet, cross or intersect.

Gunning claimed the intersection meeting took place June 2.

Mr. Jones introduced a map from the Department of Public Works which showed the streets do not meet.

ON JUNE 6 Gunning swore, he saw Mr. Jones enter a shoe repair shop and came out after staying a few minutes.

Sworn affidavits from both the former operator of the shoe repair shop and a construction company owner shows the shop did not exist on June 6.

The former operator said the lease expired on May 31 and "was not renewed or extended" by his landlord.

The former operator, Lew Nesbitt, said he removed "stock, equipment and fixtures from the shop and surrendered the vacant premises and keys prior to Saturday, June 1."

Mr. Nesbitt added that he "personally knows there was no shoe repair shop open or operating in the center on Thursday, June 6."

ED DOHLER, the construction official, said he was employed June 1 by the owners of the shopping center to "remove the wall between the shoe shop and the drug store."

When he began working on June 1, Mr. Dohler said in his affidavits, the shop was empty of all fixtures, equipment and stock, and he had received the keys on May 31.

The contractor added that by Wednesday, June 5, the wall between the shoe repair shop and drug store had been removed and the entrance from the sidewalk had been eliminated and replaced with plate glass.

In asking that Gunning be chargeed with perjury, and/or cited for contempt of court, the petition declared:

"That the sworn statements of Officer Gunning are false, fictions and sworn to by said officer knowing that said allegations and observations were utterly false and untrue in an effort to mislead the court in direct defiance of his oath as a police officer, thereby making a complete mockery of the administration of justice."

William J. O'Donnell, Baltimore State's Attorney, said the case will be taken before the grand jury Monday.

The jury is still taking testimony in the Levee case and several policemen in the Rackets Squad are scheduled to testify.

GRAND JURY action on complaints which imply that gambling suspects are being framed, follows long and loud criticism of the Racket Squad by accused gambling law violators and defense attorneys.

"This has been going on for years," said one lawyer, "and it will not stop as long as they (police) get away with perjury."

Charging that many people have been jailed on warrants obtained on false observations and surveillance, another attorney declared:

"They sit up in the office and dream up these affidavits then swear to the judge that they are true so they can get warrants."

HANDLING OF warrants by policemen has also brought charge of other irregularities.

Policemen do not have to account for warrants in which no arrests are made, nor are they compelled to give an accurate accounting for property — including money — confiscated while executing search and seizure warrants, it has been charged.

Some warrants have been used for intimidation, bribery and other unauthorized acts, then squashed short of court action, some involved suspects have claimed.

CHIEF JUDGE Michael J. Manley of the Baltimore Supreme Bench, told the AFRO that no records are kept of the warrants issued by associate judges.

Nor are there any records which show whether warrants were executed, or whether property was confiscated in raids that did not result in trials, Judge Manley said.

"Only if the case comes to trial will the subject of the warrant come up," the chief judge pointed out.

Judge Manley said the Court Administrator probably keeps a yearly record of them, but he wasn't sure.

A spokesman there said they do not.

CHIEF JUDGE T. Barton Harrington of the Municipal Court, said no records are kept in the lower court of the issuance, execution and disposition of warrants.

He added, however, that they do not issue search and seizure warrants for gambling arrests.

Critics of the procedure say officers should be required to report on the final disposition of all warrants and account for any property taken in the course of raids.

Russians while stationed in London.

It was testified that Drummond aroused the suspicion of Naval authorities and he was transferred to the United States, where he continued to sell information to the Russians.

IT WAS charged during his trial-that the yeoman was so anxious to sell secrets to the Russians, they had to order him to stay away from embassy.

Drummond, a veteran of 17 years service with a base salary of $120, purchase a bar and grill in Newport, R.I.

The net finally closed in on him last Sept. 28 when FBI agents arrested him outside a diner in Larchmont, N.Y., as he sat in a car with a Russian agent, with government documents on the seat between them.

At his first trial Drummond escaped conviction when the lone colored juror held out for acquittal.

His second trial resulted in his conviction.

Church group vows to back D.C. trek

NEW YORK — A national church group which early gave its moral backing to the planned March on Washington Aug 28, this week announced it representatives will participate in the march and will also actively push pending rights legislation.

The National Council of Churches of Christ plans to sponsor an "Assembly of the Churches" in cooperation with the giant rights rally which promises to bring more than 100,000 equal rights sympathizers to the nation's capital.

The council's action came as a follow -up to its June 7 statement on religion and race which voiced approval of the march idea although details were still pending. The Council said the proposed assembly has a two - fold purpose.

THE COUNCIL said, "We issue this call to all Protestant and Orthodox Church leaders—

1. To demonstrate our solidarity in support of racial justice implemented through Civil Rights legislation.

2. To witness to the fact that this is a national moral issue and not a regional problem.

The council's latest statement also said "The churches have a stake in this march . . .We are pleased to join in sponsoring his massive witness to the nation's most important commitment — racial justice now."

IN ITS June 7 report, the General Board of the National Council of Churches included the following statements of conviction:

"The Church of Jesus Christ can make no compromise with discrimination against or segregation of his peoples on the basis of race.

"The Church and its members still be faithful to her master.

"Up to now there always has seemed to be time for gradual change, and modest tokens of progress in racial justice were accepted as the best we could do.

"But now the issue is being sharply focused in every corner of the nation citizens are moving quickly and with great commitment to action that often means suffering, harassment and sometimes death.

"Words and declarations are no longer useful in this struggle unless accompanied by sacrifice and commitment."

MEMBERS OF the Commission on Religion and Race of The National Council of the Churches of Christ include

CHAIRMAN:

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Missionary District of New York, N.Y.

VICE CHAIRMEN:

Bishop W. Julius Smith, Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Mrs. Mary J. Faust Tillman, vice-chairman of the executive committee of Women's Missionary Council, Presbyterian Church, Lynchburg, Texas; Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Dr. Robert W. Spike, executive director, Board of Social Responsibility, Methodist Church, New York, N.Y.

Dr. Robert H. Mikesell, executive director, Department of Church and Economic Life, National Council of Churches, New York, N.Y.

THE OVERALL purpose of the March On Washington For Jobs and Freedom is to provide evidence of the need for the federal government to take action on the national civil rights crisis.

The marchers hope to prompt Congress to pass meaningful rights legislation without a filibuster, to foster immediate desegregation of the nation's schools and to end police brutality.

They also have called for a massive federal Public Works Program to provide jobs for all the unemployed, federal legislation to promote an expanding economy and broadening of the federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

THE OFFICIAL calls for the march was issued July 12 by the following national leaders:

James Farmer, national director the Congress of Racial Equality.

Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non - Violent Coordinating Committee.

A. Philip Randolph, President of the Negro American Labor Council.

Roy Wilkins, Executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Whitney M. Young, Executive director of the National Urban League.

NAIRO to support mass march

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO), an association of professional intergroup relations workers, has voted to support the march for freedom on August 28 in Washington, D.C.

In its resolution, NAIRO stated "it firmly believes that such a demonstration conducted in an orderly manner is an effective and legitimate technique for seeking redress of civil rights grievances with both historical precedents and modern need in obtaining the goal of a free and equal society.

"We therefore," the resolution went on, "support the March for Freedom as a means of sensitizing the American people and its government to the need for fully integrating the more than 20 million Americans of minority identity into the mainstream of our society, and we urge our members to participate in the march and we offer our professional aid in whatever manner may be appropriate."

Pickets massing for Belair drive

By LES LEDBETTER

"Everyone who believes in civil rights should be out picketing Belair this weekend with CORE."

This was the feeling of Dr. Karl Gregory, whose attempt to buy a house in conflict between builder William Levitt and CORE.

The statement was made meeting Wednesday between builders and the President's Committee on Equal Opportunity for Housing.

Dr Gregory said that the statements by builders and the housing committee made it clear that if Levitt agreed to desegregation much of the country would follow his lead.

HE POINTED OUT that the question of whether cities were to become colored ghettos and suburbs all white would be answered by the decisions made by builders such as Levitt.

A member of Prince Georges County CORE said that Levitt, the largest builder of single unit dwellings in the country, would be picketed this weekend and every weekend "until our goal has been achieved."

The CORE member said that with the support of CORE chapters from other cities "We're going to pull out all the stops."

He explained that there would be several hundred demonstrators for this weekend's demonstrations. They will meet at St. Christopher's Church in Lanham, Md. at 12 noon, Saturday, and move in force to Belair.

"WE MUST CONVINCE Levitt and the other builders" said the civil rights fighter, "that we are determined and have the strenght to see this fight through."

ON WEDNESDAY, William Levitt announced that he would not desegregate his Maryland housing development unless competitors also desegregated their developments.

Levitt said in a seperate statement, that until such time he would not act and was prepared to have future demonstrations by CORE ended by arrests.

CORE chapter from Washington, Baltimore and other cities, along with other civil rights groups, will be marching on Belair this weekend to test Levitt's words.

Murder halts plans for 50th anniversary

Plans for a 50th wedding anniversary have been put on the shelf because a member of the family was slugged and killed following a tavern hold-up Tuesday.

Mrs. Pauline Sachs told the AFRO that invitations were ready for mailing for the anniversary celebration of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Zillis on Sept. 7.

Tuesday night her brother-in-law, Frank Haberkorn of 319 Audrey Ave., left his filling station on Hanover St. and stopped in a nearby tavern.

AS HE LEFT the tavern he was slugged by the "look-out" man. He died the next day at South Baltimore General Hospital.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Connie Haberkorn, an employee of The Maryland Auto Service. Funeral services are today (Friday) at the McCulley Funeral Home
