AFL-CIO views on march scored

UNITY HOUSE, Pa. —"A masterpiece of noncommital noncommitment" is what A. Philip Randolph called the AFL-CIO executive council's failure to endorse the Aug. 28 March on Washington.

"The statement is so anemic that you'd have to give it a blood transfusion to keep it alive on its way to the mimeograph machine," said Walter P. Reuther, the only other council member to voice disapproval.

Mr. Randolph, chairman of the committee sponsoring the march, is an AFL-CIO vice president, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and the Negro American Labor Council.

Mr. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, has a long history of actively supporting civil rights in both word and deed.

GEORGE MEANY, AFL-CIO president, explained the council's action as personal views of its members — taking a middle of the road stand, neither approving or disapproving.

Meany, who has had several clashes with Mr. Randolph on civil rights, said he considers the march an unwise legislative tactic.

Members of his staff, however, drafted a statement which took a more liberal view — supporting the purpose of the march as well as commending affiliates planning to participate.

THE DRAFT, when submitted to council, was watered down and no mention was made of commendations for union affiliates planning to participate in the march.

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, had proposed that members of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and the automotive union be commended.

The right to participate, said Carey, is "a matter for individual union determination."

Carey said he identified his sentiments with those of Randolph and Reuther.

THE COUNCIL statement praised its own civil rights record and its "work against discrimination in all phases of community life," adding: "The sponsors of this march . . . are organizations determined to overcome prejudice and discrimination. So are we. They also are determined to meet the problem of joblessness. . . . We share that goal."

But the council said it could best contribute to the civil rights struggle by continuing "our own major efforts — on the legislative front and at the grass roots level."

The council did not vote any financial support for the march, but did approve a $10,000 donation to the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights which is lobbying for the passage of civil rights laws.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Evans. A reception followed at the church in the reception hall of the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white French Chantilly lace embroidered with sequins, designed with a square neckline, long tapered sleeves, and a dome-shaped skirt of lace extending into a court train.

Her fingertip veil of silk tulle was fastened to a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and orchids.

MISS FRANCES GAITHER was maid of honor. The junior bridesmaids were Miss Marsha Brown, sister of the bride; Miss Audrey Johnson, Miss Brenda Day and Miss Cynthia Gibson. They wore street length dresses of turquoise embroidered organza over taffetta with bell-shaped skirts.

Senior bridesmaids were Miss Venita Ross, Miss Carol Gaither, Miss Gloria Brown and Mrs. Joycelene Wallace. They wore turquoise full length gowns of embroidered organza over taffets. All the bridesmaids carried fan shaped cascade arrangements of white carnations.

2,000 from IUE to march Aug. 28

President James B. Carey of the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine workers, AFL-CIO, predicted today that IUE would be represented by more than 2,000 members from all over the United States, in the August 28th march for jobs and freedom.

The union official said that he agrees "Wholeheartedly" with the civil rights principle symbolized by the upcoming march.

Our union is making every effort to secure a mass turnout of our members for the march. "On August 28th there will be no question, the IUE will be there."

Carey added that he had attempted during the council meeting to have affiliated unions commended for

Camp Fire Girls seek expert help

Men and women who are experts in certain fields are needed as volunteers to aid the new Junior Hi Camp Fire Girls program by S. Miriam Stover, chairman of Adult membership announced today.

The fields in which experts are needed are home, arts, science, service, sports and game, outdoors and party fun. These are the areas from which Junior Hi Camp Fire Girls choose activities leading to Group Torch Bearer rank.

'Consultants are not called upon to give a greatt deal of attention or time," Miss Stover said.

"They act as resource persons to groups which are working on requirements for Group Torch Bearer rank.

"Usually, consultants talk briefly before one or more groups, giving advice in a general way, or suggesting specific activities," she said.

Those wishing to volunteer their services may do so by telephoning or writing the Baltimore Council office at 2100 N. Charles St.

School drop-out benefit to open social season Sept. 25

WASHINGTON

The most sought - after invitation in town will be the one from Attorney - General Robert Kennedy's office for the Stay - in - School - Fund Benefit set for Sept. 25, at the Palace Theatre.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, is the honorary chairman, while Mrs. Robert Kennedy, Mrs. David Brinkley, and Miss Flaxie Pinkett are the co - chairmen.

Why the benefit?

7½ million teenagers are expected to drop out of school during the 1960's. In the Washington community alone, 3,518 students dropped out of schools in 1962-63; 1,468 left junior high schools; and 1,340 dropped out of senior high schools and 710 from the vocational schools.

SOME OF THESE students drop out of school because of failing grades, frequent transfers, lack of interest, and frequently, for economic reasons.

Often, a child may need only incidental money. Just as often, this "incidental money" buys a few items that are not so "incidental."

Mrs. Arthur Goldberg, who has been working with the Urban Service Corps trying to tackle the drop-out problem in D.C. for sometime, tells of the heratbreak she felt when a boy looked so longingly at a pair of shoes marked size 5. A strapping youngster, he wore a 12 or 13!

The goal is $50,000 and the funds will buy such "incidental" items as a pair of shoes for a boy or girl who cannot afford them, consequently, cannot get to school.

The plan goes further than simply subsidizing students. More often, the students will be placed in part-time jobs in the schools, and/or other agencies and thus be able to continue their education.

THE BENEFIT itself will be a gilt - edged affair beginning with a premiere of a never - before - released film, with entertainment to follow. It is set for September 25 at the Palace Theatre. This represents a change of date.

Why so qjuickly?

Most benefits take months to plan, and put into action. The Attorney - General told the benefit sponsors, and the committee that met in his office Thursday a week ago that he could recall "Ethel seemed to be working on one benefit almost all year."

A SYMPATHETIC smile crossed the lips of the smartly - dressed women in the room, but the A. G. stressed that $50,000 was necessary immediately to keep this year's crop of youngsters in school.

School opens September 3.

This benefit gives many individuals, who verbalize a concern about this national problem that has reached 3,518 students in this local community already — and these students add to the list of unskilled, and unemployed—to put their money where their mouths have been.

USUALLY THE WASHINGTON social season begins in October. The Kennedys have quickened the pace with a glorious gala that aims to solve a problem instead of studying it to death.

We must be the most "studied" community in the country! If we were ever to line up the studies of our own community problems, the reports would reach end - to - end completely around the city, and then some..

ning shortly above the knee) and Etta Phifer were others. Weaver was chic in a combination of black satin, chiffon and lace. Margaret Diggs' frock was squared off at front top, deep at back, and had a delightful pouf skirt, in all black. Helena Edmonds wore peach lace, ruffled in chiffon at bodice top and skirt bottom.

Gertrude Urquart was charming in black organa, striped with bands of lace, underpinned in pink. Lillian Berry wore beige, brocaded in gold, a sheath affair. Theresa Waters turned to aqua chiffon, intricately draped at top. Ruth Jennifer was a picture in yellow (narrow bands of lace and linen alternated) fitted to just above the knee, and flared from there.

Pauline Watts' frock was a splash of brilliant yellows, blues, greens, purple print. Also pretty in print was Ivy Grinnage. And that three tier concoction of embroidered organdy that enhanced Dorothy Evens was a summer dream. Irma Dixon was dramatic in a pink brocaded frock with matching coat. Margaret Ewing selected a brocade in blue and silver to be striking in.

Barnett tries again to oust Meredith

JACKSON, Miss — Gov. Ross Barnett earlier this week made a last-ditch stand to try to prevent James H. Meredith from graduating Sunday. Meredith took his last examination Wednesday.

Already cited for criminal contempt for seeking to block the 30 - year -old veteran's enrollment at the University last fall, Barnett asked that Ole Miss withhold conferring a degree on Meredith.

He asked the chancellor and the state college board to holdup the awarding of the degree until an investigation of allegel statements made by Meredith is completed.

MEREDITH, said Barnett, did "clearly and unmistakable violate" a university rule against "inflammatory statements" when he "publicly criticized the courts of Mississippi, the juries and public officials."

The 30-year -old Air Force veteran, who has left the Oxford campus to be with his wife, refused comment. So has the college board.

He said his family, including his three - year -old son, would attend graduation exercises when he receives a bachelor's degree in political science. But his wife, he added, may not attend. She's recovering from surgery.

IN THE meantime, a 20-year - old coed, who declined to reveal her name, has taken the college board entrance examination in hopes of joining Cleve McDowell as the third colored student at the univesity.

Like Meredith the 21 - year - old McDowell has been admitted to the law school after forcing admission through the courts. The coed and McDowell lunched together in the cafeteria.
