THE PROGRAM Committee, made up of Richard Motz, chairman, Mrs. Madelyne Murphy and Dr. Saunders recommended strict procedures for accepting or rejecting new programs.

The proposed projects will be evaluated on a priority basis, Mrs. Murphy said.

The committee report, approved by the commission said, in part:

"The proposal must reflect true expressions of need from residents in the action area. Documentary evidence of true, meaningful contact with action area residents must be contained in each proposed project.

"The proposal must realistically relate to programs presently funded or those anticipated in the plan for action."

In an obvious attack on the rash of proposed projects, "designed by persons anxious to get their hands on federal money," the report declared:

"Priority should be given to those proposals which document, in adequate fashion that the poor have actually participated in the development of the proposed project.

"Gathering of information from residents, incorporating this into the proposal and subsequent proposal review by poor residents do not constitute involvement of the poor per se.

"However, in depth involvement of poor residents in every stage and phase of the project proposal development and planning does constitute the type of involvement of the poor set forth in the act."

MR. MITCHELL reported the opening this week of five new neighborhood centers. They will be located at:

941 N. Bond St.
1306 E. Eager St.
1919 Jefferson St.
112 N. Wolfe St.
1813 E. Pratt St.

It was also announced by Mrs. Murphy that the commission, in a further effort to streamline the multi-million dollar war on poverty effort, is seeking to have current funded programs evaluated by Management Technology, Inc., or similar firms.

Purpose is to halt duplication, overlapping and ineffective programs.

Mr. Mitchell and staff were instructed to check these firms and have them submit proposals fir the evaluation job.

What 18th century discovery makes martinis drier than British wit?

Crisp-cool, crackling dry Gordon's. The glorious, gleaming gin that's England and America and in all the rest of the martini-relishing world. Next time you find yourself in possession of a few drops of vermouth, mix them with Mr. Gordon's celebrated 18th century discovery. The result will be drier than British wit. And possibly even more entertaining.

MR. PRESSMAN had these comments on the matter Thursday:

"Miss (Esther) Lazarus (Welfare Department Director) tells me she has this under study. This is a vexing problem.

"I think there ought to be an effort made in providing better facilities. Some of these places, I understand, charge as high as $1.50 for cashing a check.

"There is possibly this solution. There could be checks payable for food only, and checks payable for rent only. This would stop many of the people from spending their welfare money on booze.

would help in cashing the checks. This whole matter loan company which had sent him the letter, and a settlement was held on August 28, 1964.

At the time, Mr. Hobb, who was described in the suit as "a man of limited education and business sense," was under the impression that the consolidation of his prior debts would not involve any additional liens on his property.

Concurrently with taking out the new loan, he borrowed an additional $200 on what he then believed to be "fair" terms.

When he left the settlement, he thought that his debts totalled $1,195.67, and that he could fulfill his obligation through low, monthly payments.

The next time he heard anything more about the matter was on Oct. 6, 1964 when he received a letter and a payment book from the Greater Mortgage Company, 4308 N. Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa.

From the letter he learned that the company had secured a mortgage which it claimed he had executed and on which $3,300 was due.

He was advised to begin making monthly payments of $55 leach. At that rate, he faced 60 instalments.

Progress Associates is a party-defendant in the suit filed by Mr. Hobb who not only claims that the mortgages was acquired fraudulently, but that it is also usurius since his debts are now wav beyond the six per cent interest which the Maryland law allows.

MRS. ARMSTEAD, who lives in the 100 block of N. Aisquith St., is the widowed mother of four children and has lived in Lafayette Courts since 1956. Her mother and her niece live with her.

As treasurer of the Parent-Teachers Association of School 139, she has worked closely with many school activities and was employed as a teacher aide in the Headstart Program.

Now working with the Early Admissions Program, she still finds time to volunteer her services for the Campfire Girls. Y-Teens and as a Sunday school teacher and child care supervisor at Grace Presbyterian Church, where she has been a life-long member.

Mrs. Armstead is interested in entering college to prepare herself for work in the education field.

MRS. BROOKS, of the 1600 block Balmor Court, is divorced and has lived with her 13-year-old son in the Gilmor homes since 1957. In her capacity as a volunteer of the Job Corps, she has been tireless in her efforts to find employment for Gilmor teenagers.

She is a volunteer recreation leader and helps to program Golden Age activities. When the Gilmor Homes Tenant Service Organization was formed in the summer of 1965, Mrs. Brooks was elected vice president.

As president of the PTA of School 161, she was cited in the school newspaper. A member of Jones Memorial Methodist Church, she also has worked actively for voter registration and for the Neighborhood Fund and is a member of the Anti-Poverty Action Committee.

MISS LOUISA REEVES, a resident in the 200 block N. Dallas Ct., has lived in Frederick Douglass Homes for 25 years. One of her major concerns is the welfare of children, and throughout the years she has served as a foster mother.

She is now leader of the Girl Scout Troop at Lafayette-Douglass, director of the Kiddie Club and was a captain during the AFRO's Clean Block Campaign.

She is also a member of the Eastside Community Choir, the Golden Age Clubs of two projects, director of a sewing class, an enthusiastic gardner and a member of St. Francis Xavier Church.

MRS. SCHULTZ, who lives in the 200 block Ballou Ct. of Perkins Homes, has been chairman of the Golden Age Club and is a member of the Perkins Welfare Committee.

Each year she has organized and made clothes for and dressed over 100 dolls for the Children's Christmas Party. She also sponsors an assual bake sale for the benefit of the Golden Age Club.

RICHARD L. STEINER, director of BURHA, stated Tuesday that the date of the awards that will be made annually from a fund established for this purpose by the friends and fellow workers of the late Harry B. Weiss, former director of Housing Management, to honor his memory.

Nominations for the awards were made by the managers of the housing projects and were submitted for review and recommendations to a committee consisting of Mrs. Harry B. Weiss, Mrs. Frances M. Froelicher, Planning and Housing Association and three BURHA staff members.

The recommeadations received the approval of the BURHA director and commission.

IN A TWIST to the investigation, the mother of the baby, Mrs. Cecelia Evans, 20, has been charged with child neglect of Fentress and her two other children, two boys aged three years and five months.

She is being held under $500 bail in the City Jail.

Police said they first went to the row house in the 1300 block of Stricker Friday in response to an anonymous call to check a case of child neglect.

At the scene police found that one of the three children — one-year-old Frentress — was missing.

The mother, who was on welfare, reported that the baby, left at home, had been abducted when she took an older child to a near-by store, police said.

"The first we knew anything was wrong was when police came investigating and then took apart the furnace," she said. "It's strange the things you run into."

Meanwhile police, who are thinking the same thing, are continuing their intense search and asking themselves "Where?"

St. Augustine's College told must relate teaching to current revolution

RALEIGH, N.C.—"The day you graduate from college you are obsolete." "The job you are intent upon when you enter college as a freshman may be extinct when you finish your senior year," Marvin C. Josephson, director, American Church Institute, told Saint Augustine's faculty, students, and distinguished guest of the College's 98th formal opening.

"The world has changed," stated the speaker, more rapidly from 1906 to 1965 than the pace of change that went on in the world from the birth of Jesus Christ to the beginning of the twentieth century." We have had population explosions, urbanization explosions, and we now have another familiar term, 'the explosion of knowledge.' We have become used to dealing out information seriatim," noted the speaker, "but in our uresent generation information must relate to all of the physical and social sciences." This calls for a revolution in the standards of learning," the speaker noted.

"I would like to talk for a moment about the student," stated the speaker. "Many of our larger institutions have become so involved in outside concerns that the sense of community among teachers and learners has been lost. In recent months many of our colleges have been the arenas for unrest and agitation for reform." Many observers place the blame on the tendency toward depersonalization of the college population and the revolt of the student against the power structure.

"Some of this concern has a basis in fact; however, I do not share the general alarm created by this turn of events," noted the speaker.

"I remember all too well teaching at a large university back in the 1950's the complacency of the students of that time who seemed disinterested in the events taking place in the world around them and whose value systems were success at any price and conformity in spite of individual excellence.

"I would much rather face the student who is motivated by forces around him and is dedicated to the uncongenial of a previous generation.

"Now a word to the faculty. Times have indeed changed for the professional educator," he said. It is not so long ago that the education was one of the most desirable of professions.

"With the coming of the scientific age, the status and, especially the salary, there has been added in recent years an increasing sense of importance.

"The college professor is in a seller's market. His skill and knowledge are very much in demand, and universities bid high prices for his services, so that we are witnessing the rise of what the President Clark Kerr terms 'the affluent professor. The college professor is no longer the absent-minded professor with an ivory tower, underpaid and unnoticed."

Apex student council install new officers

APEX, N.C.—The officers and class representatives of the Apex Consolidated High School took their oath of office at the weekly assembly period climaxing a week of bustling activity in which one of the most interesting and inspiring student body sang, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," after which, Mr. C. C. Bryant rendered a prayer.

Administering the oath was Hoover Webb, followed by remarks by Alva Wooten, newly-elected president. Miss Wooten thanked the student body for its support and asked their aid and continued support. Other elected officers were:

Vice President, Joseph Howard; Corresponding Secretary, Frances Thomas; Recording Secretary, Yvonnie Page; Treasurer, Bethel Clay; Parliamentarian, Bobby Holly; Reporter, Barbara Walden.

Highlighting the program were two musical renditions—"For the Beauty of the Earth," by the Faculty ensemble and "Dear to the Heart of God" by Jesse Gunter, a talented member of the 11th grade.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. C. D. Keck, principal; Mrs. L. Lowe, guidance director, described Mr. Keck as "one who has grown dear and has won the confidence of students since he has become a part of the family. He has a unique distinction in that he has become the father of our clan."

Mr. Keck's theme, "What Must We Expect of Youth" Mr. Keck emphasized the importance of a good student leadership in its infancy, yet "it can grow into something of which we all can be proud."

He recalled the fact that throughout history man has striven toward self-government He cited examples of the desire for self rule which has been in all parts of the world.

"The faculty at the Apex Consolidated High School share with you the great honor that comes with being elected to this body. Yes, we shall expect much from you when we think you are wrong; we shall praise you when you have done a good job. Understanding, guidance, and advice you may expect from us, just for the asking."

He urged the student body to stand by the elected officers and representatives; and, in conclusion, spoke of the intangible rewards received for service in connection with the "homecoming" and of us that responds to challenge.

Mr. Keck received overwhelming applause at the conclusion of his address, after which the voices of the students joined in singing the Alma Mater.

Advisers to the Student Council are Mrs. J. Hill, Mrs. S. B. Lucas, and Hoover Webb.

Homecoming set Nov. 6 at Elizabeth City College

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — A gala homecoming, with a record attendance is anticipated today at Elizabeth City State College, celebrating its 75th Anniversary this year, according to the co - chairmen, Evelyn A. Johnson and E. N. Smith.

The annual gridiron classic, between the "Vikings" of Elizabeth City and the "Broncos" of Fayetteville State College is Viking Stadium, will begin at 2 p.m.

Students from the various academic areas, clubs and organizations, have been building floats for the parade which suggest the general homecoming theme — "Years of Burnish, Now to Glow"

The parade, resumed this year after a two-year lapse, will start from the National Guard Armory at noon.

During half time ceremonies, Elizabeth City and Fayetteville State College queens, the 1965 Alumni Queen, with Miss Dorothy Lee Bishop and the President's Box will be presented by President Walter D. Hadley, assisted by Isaac A. Beitle, General Alumni Association president. The outstanding musical floats will also be announced.

Dances in William's Hall for under graduates, and at the National Guard Armory for Alumni will conclude Homecoming Activities.

New library program to spark reading

HIGH POINT, N.C. —The faculty and administration at William Penn High School have instituted a new program of library usage as a step toward helping students learn to enjoy reading as a worthwhile pastime.

Formerly students went to the library on their own free time, and it was found that only a fraction of them were actually using its facilities. Under the new program the student will select, under the guidance of his English instructor, books which he will enjoy and that are on his particular reading level.

THE READING done during these sessions (held twice per month in the library) is not for the purpose of reports. It is hoped that writing, both descriptive and creative, will be enriched as a result of the student's contact with a wider range and a more detailed study of subjects.

Another purpose is to increase students familiarity with the many library facilities and their uses which will help the student in all of his studies.

The New program is being watched and evaluated closely, and teachers are reporting satisfaction at the result so far.

The last session will consist of thirteen Resource - Use Education emphasis workshops designed to meet the needs of principals, teachers, students and parents in "Building the Great Society Through the Conservation of Human and Natural Resources."

Apex student council install new officers

APEX, N.C.—The officers and class representatives of the Apex Consolidated High School took their oath of office at the weekly assembly period climaxing a week of bustling activity in which one of the most interesting and inspiring student body sang, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," after which, Mr. C. C. Bryant rendered a prayer.

Administering the oath was Hoover Webb, followed by remarks by Alva Wooten, newly-elected president. Miss Wooten thanked the student body for its support and asked their aid and continued support. Other elected officers were:

Vice President, Joseph Howard; Corresponding Secretary, Frances Thomas; Recording Secretary, Yvonnie Page; Treasurer, Bethel Clay; Parliamentarian, Bobby Holly; Reporter, Barbara Walden.

Highlighting the program were two musical renditions—"For the Beauty of the Earth," by the Faculty ensemble and "Dear to the Heart of God" by Jesse Gunter, a talented member of the 11th grade.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. C. D. Keck, principal; Mrs. L. Lowe, guidance director, described Mr. Keck as "one who has grown dear and has won the confidence of students since he has become a part of the family. He has a unique distinction in that he has become the father of our clan."

Mr. Keck's theme, "What Must We Expect of Youth" Mr. Keck emphasized the importance of a good student leadership in its infancy, yet "it can grow into something of which we all can be proud."

He recalled the fact that throughout history man has striven toward self-government He cited examples of the desire for self rule which has been in all parts of the world.

"The faculty at the Apex Consolidated High School share with you the great honor that comes with being elected to this body. Yes, we shall expect much from you when we think you are wrong; we shall praise you when you have done a good job. Understanding, guidance, and advice you may expect from us, just for the asking."

He urged the student body to stand by the elected officers and representatives; and, in conclusion, spoke of the intangible rewards received for service in connection with the "homecoming" and of us that responds to challenge.

Mr. Keck received overwhelming applause at the conclusion of his address, after which the voices of the students joined in singing the Alma Mater.

Advisers to the Student Council are Mrs. J. Hill, Mrs. S. B. Lucas, and Hoover Webb.
