State poverty office OKs workers, grants

Maryland's Anti-Poverty Director, J. Donn Aiken, announced this week that Governor J. Millard Tawes has approved requests for 97 Vista Volunteers to work in the state among the disadvantaged.

The distribution of these volunteers will be as follows: The University of Maryland School of Social Work, 5; Baltimore Community Action Agency, 80; the Housing Authority of Baltimore, 12.

Mr. Aiken also said that a program development grant for Somerset County for a survey and study of poverty there, in the amount of $15,251, has been approved by tre Federal Government.

The funds will be used to employ a director and a minimum staff to determine the needs of the county's poor and to offer plans for ridding the area of some of the more pressing problems of poverty.

A 10 per cent matching contribution is being supplied by the county commissioners. The Sumerset program is being supported by local welfare organization and the school board.

The Office of Economic Development is supplying $126,660 of the total budget of $172,670.

The funds will enable the county to hire 39 men and 20 women aged 16 through 21. Employment will be for one year.

Baltimore County News

By PINNIE L. ROSS

The official board of Mount Olivet Methodist Church paid homage to the Rev. Alphonso A. Thompson recently at an appreciation dinner, attended by more than 150 friends and well wishers from the Catonsville and neighboring areas.

This tea was given to the Rev. Mr. Thompson in gratitude for the many wonderful things he has done in the church and for his seven years of dedicated service rendered in the church. The tea was given in the newly built Memorial Hall.

Presiding was stunning Mrs. Audrey Smith who did a grand job as mistress of ceremonies. Words of praise came from fellow ministers, the Rev. S. R. Bennett and the Rev. Charles S. Briggs.

For the community came words from Mrs. Nettie Paige, and Avon Collins, after which a solo was rendered by Mrs. Maggie Johnson. Words came from Elhana Washington (as a neighbor) and the official board by William Foreman, after which a solo was rendered by Arnold Eb, the Church School (intermediates) Miss De Ve Forman; youth, Miss Beverly Washington; parishioners, the Rev. Isabell Dorsey, another solo by Mrs. Elsia Bell. The Rev. Jentry McDonald, pastor of Morning Star Baptist Church, was toastmaster for the evening. Giftorian — Mrs. Rosalee Hall, words of gratitude, the Rev. Mr. Thompson, and words of courtesy — Mrs. Mary Harris.

Corsages were presented to several ladies: one, the oldest members of the church, Mrs. Annie Smith, also to Mrs. Thompson (two); Mrs. Esbelle Dorsey and to little Miss Julia Williams. The tables were beautifully decorated. The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were showered with many gifts from various organizations.

(Lovely) Mrs. Grace Jackson, who is always giving a helping hand when needed surprised the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson with a beautiful frosted pumpkin cake.

General Committee were: Mrs. Mary Harris, chairman; Mrs. Grace Jackson and Edward Carted, co - chairman; Mrs. Rosalee Hall, secretary; Mrs. Audrey Smith, treasurer.

Committee chairmen: Catering: Mrs. Irene Green and Mrs. Insley Mary). Hostesses were Mrs. Alice Fleming and Mrs. Yvonne Morris. Decorations: Mrs. Valerie Ready, Mrs. Bertha Myers Program: Mrs. Amy A. Warden, Mrs. Marjorie Carter: Waiters were the Methodist Men and Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Mrs. Joanna Smith and yours truly from the Provident Auxiliary Catonsville Twig were delegates to the 25th annual conference, District of Columbia, Delaware and Maryland, which was held at the Washington Hilton Hotel Monday in D.C.

Also representing the Twig were Mrs. Winfred Coe and Miss Mae Thomas.

Reminder: The League For Human Rights will have their meeting at Temple Emanual, Thursday, Nov. 18. Program: How to Dress a Demonstrator and Fashions for Social Actions. Don't miss it.

Mrs. Hannah Lindsley and Jane Sprenger thanks all who made contributions towards the rummage sale last week. It was a total success. On behalf of the League for Human Rights many, many thanks for all of your usable items.

On Dec. 16 there will be another Rummage Sale at 831 N. Gay St. This one will benefit the trustees of Grace AME Church. If you have available clothing and wish to discard them or if you wish to volunteer, call RI. 7-2318, Pinnie Ross.

Thought For Today: Always remember to stop complaining for there is always someone else in worse condition than you.

Sees quick rise for race in science

ATLANTA - A Clark College professor believes that more colored college graduates in science will go into the area of research in the years ahead and that they will occupy more prominent positions in this field at a younger age.

This is the opinion of Dr. John D. Withers, himself, the young holder of Ph.D. degree in biology from the University of West Virginia and chairman of Clark's Biology Department, whose faculty is nearly 100 percent doctorates and averages 30 years of age.

Pointing out that 80 per cent of Clark's June biology graduates are now in advance study oriented toward research, Withers feels that "medicine and dentistry will continue to attract most of the biology grads, but it's clear that there will be plenty of colored students who'll look toward careers for themselves in the research laboratories of American industry and government."

"The colleges themselves are doing a lot to promote this," Withers said, "Traditional undergraduate courses are being replaced by integrated Core programs in the first two years, so that the final two can be tailored to the needs of the individual student, enabling him to devote more time to problems in research and other programs.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Symphony concert sold out for Ulysses Kay's suite

The second concert of the Baltimore Symphony series proved to be a "sell - out" and deservedly so, from performance and content points of view.

Last Wednesday marked the first performance by the local orchestra of Ulysses Kay's "Suite," in five movements - "Fanfare," "Waltz," "Scherzo," "Ancient Tune" and "March."

It proved to be work of late romantic and contemporary trends that attracted rather than repelled. Without using definite folk material, it contains an intimate flavor and freshness.

Mr. Kay employs rich orchestration, stating his themes and developing them concisely and with telling climaxes.

Opening with a vigorous fanfare by the brasses, there followed long, melodic lines in the dance, a shimmer of color and arresting rhythms in the "Scherzo" (joke).

Admirable contrast between cello and horn themes marked the "Ancient Tune" and a exultantly confident "March" brought the conclusion to a stunning climax. Conductor Peter Herman Adler interpreted the "Suite" with zest and vitality.

The composer, who is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and "One of the strongest creative personalities of the present day," returned to the stage several times to acknowledge the generous tribute of applause.

"Sinfonia Concecertante "by Haydn, turned back the pages of musical history to the 18th century. With four solo instruments, violin, cello, oboe and bassoon, it was played by first chair members of the orchestra, with the full ensemble.

• • •

THE "concerto grosso," as it was called in the Baroque days, seemed to exhibit the solos instruments in contrast to the orchestra, rather than the more closely knit texture of chamber music.

With almost breathless interest the vast audience awaited the arrival on stage of the tall, youthful Van Cliburn.

His performance of Rachmaninoff's D minor Concerto, No. 3 was a marvel of virtuoso playing, as he surmounted the technical difficulties with sweeping brilliance.

It is a magnificent show piece, which exhibited the powers of the artist, who made history by winning the 1958 Tschaikowsky Competition in Moscow.

Mr. Cliburn is not a soulful, romantic interpreter, as he chooses to dazzle, apparently, rather than to evoke emotions. In moments of its splendid support, the orchestra seemed at times more poetic than the soloist.

A REPRESENTATIVE cross section of state and municipal cultural institutions and organizations filled the luncheon club at Charles Center last week to consider the newly established National Foundation of the Arts and Humanities.

William Boucher III, head of the Greater Baltimore Committee, presided over the gathering, which was called by Dr. Charles Kent, director of Peabody Conservatory.

Mr. Boucher opened proceedings by stating that "the meeting aims to acquaint those interested in the future of our cities with the necessary steps for cooperation with the National Foundation."

The guest speaker was Ralph Bigard, executive director of Arts Councils of American, Inc., a non-profit organization serving cooperative arts efforts in the United States and Canada since 1960.

Mr. Bigard stated the ACP serves 138 arts councils in this country by acting as a clearing house for cultural events, asisting in audience development, mail list coordination and aiding cultural groups in the acquiring and utilization of old buildings for the arts.

• • •

HE ALSO stressed the importance of "arts and politics cooperating in a healthy partnership on federal, state and local levels," yet "with the arts having freedom to think without domination from the top."

The executive gave a detailed description of the broad outlines of the bill signed by President Lyndon Johnson on September 29.

With authorization of 10 million dollars, the federal set up has a 26 - citizen National Advisory Board, which correlates humanities and arts.

The endowment for 1965 - 66 includes two million to be channeled thru the states. An art council may receive $25,000 as one - time initial grant, and up to $50,000 a year to be matched by the established council.

Direct grants to non - profit groups from a five million dollar fund are available, with 20 percent matching fund from the group.

There will also be direct grants to individuals, such as musicians, painters, sculptors, composers, authors, dramatist, actors, architects, photographers, dancers and television and radio specialists, to mention most of the categories.

Smaller grants for creative artists may include such expenses as travel, sabbaticals and copying of scores.

Mr. Bigard gave an interesting thumb-nail sketch of the highly successful career of the New York State Art Council, which has been in existence for 5 years.

Ted Vanaturas, assistant to Mr. Bigard paid special tribute to Maryland Congressman Carlton R. Sickles, who gave yoeman service in the preparation and passing of the Arts and Humanities Bill. He prophesied a "tremendous cultural renaissance in this country and lessening of the imbalance in the support of the arts and that of sciences.

Applications for Federal Funds under the bill may be made to the government by Jan. 1, 1965.

Judging by the numerous questions following Mr. Bigard's address interest is high in local and state areas. The Baltimore Arts Council was organized two years ago, with a calendar of events as its initial project.

Mike Agent, rising star in entertainment field

A highly promising, young singer is currently arising on the Baltimore entertainment scene. His name is Michael J. Agent.

Mike Agent, 31, is lustily baritone, in a style of his own, yet similar at times to Billy Eckstine and at others to Joe Williams.

A handsome six - footer, he sings both ballads, which he prefers and rock and roll. If you are a young oldtimer and remember the beautiful top songs of musical comedy heyday, then you know what Mike Agent likes.

• • •

CURRENTLY, HE can be seen and heard weekends at the Al - Hoe Tavern. 2700 block Frederick Ave.

Also, he is preparing to cut a recording with Pete (Crazyhorse) Martin, organist supreme who holds sway at Maceo's, Monroe St. at Walbrook.

Mike, who has sung with the Clyde Crawford Lord's of Rhythm, studied here under Merdith Burch, and is now preparing to enter the professional field in earnest.

The youngest of 11 children of the Rev. and Mrs. William Agent (his dad was formerly assistant pastor at Union Baptist Church, he is a supervisior in the paint department at the Maryland Dry Dock Co.

Mr. Agent is married and he and his wife, Mrs. Adele Agent, live at 3902 Colborne Rd.

Mike Agent —up and coming singer extraordinary, remember the name. It's one of which Baltimore's entertainment world is destined to be proud.
