Student's death ruled accidental

The death last month of a 15-year-old A-student at Polytechnic Senior High school, earlier reported an apparent suicide, is now officially termed accidental.

The medical examiner's office has ruled the manner of death of Edward Jackson Alston Jr., as "accidental hanging."

The young honor student died Oct. 15 and funeral services were held Oct. 19 at Gillis Memorial Church.

Alston was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Alston Sr., of the 4100 block Woodhaven Ave.

He graduated from Garrison Junior High as an honor student at the age of 13 in 1963.

Members of the Alston family have been life-long members of Gillis Memorial, which led the Rev. Theodore Jackson to say during the funeral services:

"In my 32 years as pastor here, I know of no finer family."

He also said "This fine young man who had every promise of being a great educator or scientist, may have been beckoned by God to awaken the young people of our day to a sense of duty to good and God . . . to a sense of how they should live to be saved."

Mrs. Vivian Bundy, principal, found dead

Mrs. Vivian J. Bundy, 51, of 1910 Madison Ave., was found dead in her home this morning (Friday), apparently the victim of a heart attack.

She had been at her post as principal of Abraham Lincoln Elementary School No. 141, Payson and Mulberry Sts., yesterday.

After school, she visited a doctor for treatment of a cold and returned home to announce she would 'definitely' be in school today.

A NIECE, Mrs. Melvin C. Watts (Marie), told the AFRO, Mrs. Bundy had been treated last year for a heart ailment and told to slow down, 'but she seemed to go faster.'

The Elliott Funeral Home is handling arrangements for the funeral which will likely be held Monday at St. Peter Claver Church.

In addition to her niece, Mrs. Bundy is survived by a sister, Mrs. Thelma M. Jones.

MRS. DAVIS FIRE VICTIM

'You just don't know how horrible it was'

'You just don't know how horrible it was unless you saw her. When I went to the hospital, I couldn't believe it. . .'

Mrs. Theresa Ebb was speaking of the death of her sister, Mrs. Isabel Davis, 61, 305 Sanford Place.

Mrs. Davis, a onetime school teacher and Bureau of Engraving Employee in D.C., suffered first, second and third degree burns over 85 per cent of her body early Thursday.

FIRE DEPARTMENT reports show she was taken to Provident Hospital by ambulance and died on Friday afternoon.

The report further indicated the fire began when the victim fell asleep while smoking in a second floor rear bedroom.

Her husband, Salem Davis, 71, suffered minor burns on the hands when he attempted to extinguish the flames.

FUNERAL SERVICES for Mrs. Davis were held Tuesday morning at St. Pius Catholic Church.

The Kelson Funeral Home handled arrangements.

There was no review of remains.

Mrs. Davis was a member of a well - known Northwest Baltimore family.

Shortly after she was born in Washington, the family moved to Baltimore and lived for years on Druid Hill Ave. They were lifetime members of St. Peter Claver Church.

Her late mother was the former Margaret Noakes. Her father, the late Adolphus Woodward, a well-known barber.

Mrs. Davis . . attended Baltimore public schools, and was a graduate of the Old Coppin Normal School, where she finished as valedictorian.

She was married first to Vance Sharpe, the barber. He died in 1945.

In addition to her husband, Mr. Davis, and the sister, Mrs. Ebb, Mrs. Davis is survived by a son, Vance Sharpe; two daughters, Mrs. Audrey Allen and Mrs. Margaret Bass, both Baltimore area teachers;

And, nine grandchildren: Eric, Kathy and Michael Allen; Debbie, Kim and Junior Bass; Vance, Karen and Tony Sharpe.

Also, two other sisters, sisters, Mrs. Veronica Carr, wife of the physician; Mrs. Irene Hall; and a nephew, Adolphus Woodward of D.C.

Death row inmates seek 'oath' out

Two death row convicts are trying to save themselves from the gas chamber by asking the Federal District Court here to void their indictments in light of the recent Maryland Court of Appeals decision which tossed out a 100 - year - old requirement that prospective jurors had to believe in a supreme being before qualifying for jury duty in this state.

Johnnie Brown, 42, and William Ralph, 32, have filed habeas corpus petitions which contend that the grand juries which indicted them were improperly constituted and that everything which was done on the basis of those indictments is therefore null and void.

A quick decision is expected from Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen who heard argument last Tuesday on the filed petitions.

His decision, whether he rules for or against the two men before him, will affect all those who are at present in Maryland prisons, some 6100 men and women.

Apartments for elderly being built

Ground - breaking ceremonies for an apartment for the elderly at Linden Ave. and McMechen St. were held Wednesday with Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin participating.

The apartment building tract is located in the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency's Madison - Park South project, and will be 12 stories high on a three and a half - acre lot.

It will consist of 286 apartments, 60 percent of which are to be efficiency units.

Rentals will be from $85 to $114 a month, open to all persons over 62 years of age.

The project is under sponsorship of Memorial Episcopal Church, Lafayette Ave. and Bolton St., and is to be completed by end of next year.

CRC matures, banquet a hit

By GUY CRUMP

Reservations and hostility of allied city agencies notwithstanding, the Community Relations Commission, Baltimore's human relations enforcement arm, has won acceptability and support from the citizenry at large.

This was evident last week when nearly 400 persons gathered at the Emerald Gardens for CRC's first Annual Awards Dinner and to hear an address by Dr. Luther Holcomb, vice chairman, Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Dr. Holcomb restated the Federal Government's determination to support and undergird the national crusade for equality of treatment for all citizens and urged local citizens to support city and state agencies in pushing President Johnson's "Great Society" programs.

Highlights of the banquet, chaired by H. Warren Buckler, CRC chairman, included presentations of awards to an individual, a firm, and an organization as recognition of their contributions to making Baltimore a "better place to live" for all of its citizens.

Dr. Leon Sachs, retired charter member of CRC, was presented a plaque on which was affixed a newspaper column lauding him for his leadership in the commission's struggle for survival and growth.

* * *

TITLED "A Tough War Horse Goes To Pasture," the column was written by AFRO City Editor George W. Collins and praised Dr. Sachs' tenacity, and strong will in rescuing the agency from oblivion.

Stanley Panitz, president of the board of directors, Baltimore Neighborhood, Inc., accepted the award in Dr. Sachs' absence. He was attending a business meeting in New York. Mrs. Berniece S. White, CRC director of community education, made the presentation.

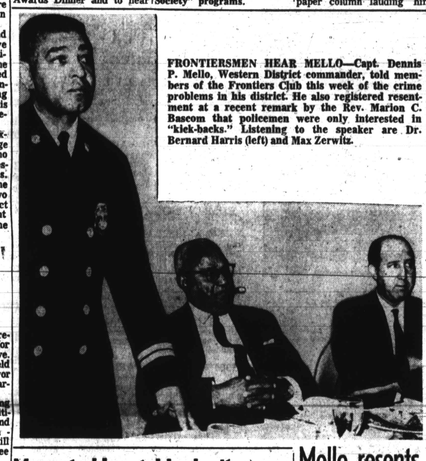
Stanley Hollins accepted the award for the Hecht Department Stores for setting an example of fair hiring and upgrading policies.

Gene Noble, CRC senior representative and chief investigator, presented the award to Mr. Hollins.

Mrs. Katherine Black Massenburg, CRC commissioner, cited Baltimore Neighborhoods, Inc., for its long-standing efforts to stabalize neighborhoods.

CRC, under Samuel T. Daniels, executive director, CRC has incurred the disfavor of several city agencies—and some politicians—for its recent role in exposing the real forces behind the spread of blight and slums in the inner city.

These objections notwithstanding, the agency is pushing its efforts to launch an all-out clean-up campaign and stricter enforcement of building, health, and sanitation laws.



FRONTIERSMEN HEAR MELLO—Capt. Dennis P. Mello, Western District commander, told members of the Frontiers Club this week of the crime problems in his district. He also registered resentment at a recent remark by the Rev. Marion C. Bascom that policemen were only interested in "kick-backs." Listening to the speaker are Dr. Bernard Harris (left) and Max Zerwitz.

Mayor tackles stables in city

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin's campaign against blight in residential areas has reached out to the matter of horse stables in the city.

Thursday, the mayor ordered George Radcliffe, Zoning Commission chairman, to make a study of whether they should be allowed to continue to exist.

This is the result of a case before the Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals Tuesday, involving a stable in the 800 block N. Castle St. which area residents termed a nuisance and a health hazard.

The Board ruled it had no power to close the place, for it had existed long before the Board's authority was established.

THE CASE was brought before the Board by Lloyd Taylor, neighborhood development counselor, Community Action Agency, whose anti - poverty project covers that East Baltimore sector.

Mayor McKeldin said he is proceeding on the assumption that the Board's ruling is legal, but he wants a report from Robert E. Farber, health commissioner, on whether there are any health law violations at the stable.

Should any be found, he said, the stable's operation "shall be abated to the full extent of the law."

Mello resents 'kick-back' panel remark

"I resent the comment made last week on a local anti-poverty panel that Baltimore police are only interested in their "kick-backs," western district police Capt. Dennis Mello said as guest speaker to the Frontiersmen's Club luncheon Monday at Maceo's restaurant.

Captain Mello is the city's first colored captain and is in an area referred to as "Hell's Kitchen" and which he says has more crime than any other big city district in the country.

"We had four murders last week alone, the Captain told the businessmen.

The area is also known as "San Juan Hill" for the rough-riding teen-age gangs responsible for the many yokings, cuttings and robberies which occur weekly.

* * *

"TOO MANY kids are drinking wine and taking pep pills called "dummies" just before the crimes are committed," Captain Mello stated.

There are some policemen whose actions have been called "brutal" Captain Mello said, "but until we have the support of the people behind the police, there is little that

Charge father of 6 shotgunned one-legged wife to death

(Special to AFRO)

BETHUNE, S.C. Leo McCaskill, 35, is confined to Kershaw County Jail in nearby Camden, charged with the Nov. 8 shotgun death of his wife, Mrs. Dinah King McCaskill.

The 36 - year - old mother of six who was expecting her seventh child, has relatives in the Md., D.C., N.J. and N.Y. area, as does her husband, who has several brothers and sisters residing in Baltimore.

Police report that the McCaskills, wed 13 years, had been having marital difficulties.

Kershaw County Sheriff D. E. Hilton reported Mrs. McCaskill was shot in the back.

The accused will remain in jail without bail until the February session of the General State Court, Sheriff Hilton said.

* * *

'SHE WAS a very nice person. I have known her since we were in school together, I remember she always had just one leg. I never knew how she lost it, but she never complained,' a friend of the deceased woman told the AFRO on Wednesday.

Funeral services for Mrs. McCaskill were held here on Sunday at Sandy Leveal Baptist Church with burial in the adjoining lot.

The surviving children range in age from infancy to 12 years.

Provident Auxiliary holds first workshop

Provident Hospital Auxiliary launched its 1st Workshop Luncheon Saturday with an emphasis on Education and "In depth" training for and others interested in its members of the auxiliary work.

Citing a need for a project of this type, Mrs. Willia Bland, 1st vice president of the auxiliary and chairman of the day's activities, explained "that the workshop is designed primarily to provide a good working atmosphere for the exchange of ideas, for auxiliary members to become better acquainted with mutual objectives, the organization and with each other, and to encourage the growth of leadership."

The day began in a festive mood with coffee being served under the direction of Mrs. Madie Mitchell, hospitality chairman. At the same time registration was conducted by Mrs. Pinnie Ross, member of the Catonsville Twig. Opening prayer was offered by Mrs. Juanita Selph, Auxiliary chaplain. A tour of the hospital was ed by Charles Tildon and Mrs. Doris Cumbo, R.N., staff member from the education office. Student nurses assisted in the tour and with other general hostess duties.

THE DISCUSSION period that followed centered on five areas of auxiliary function. The areas, with their discussion leaders were:

Administration, Henry J. Wnyte, Provident Hospital, administrator.

Program, Mrs. Ruth Tibbs past chairman of Provident Hospital volunteers activities.

Senior Volunteers, Mrs. Ethel Morsell.

Fund Raising — Gift Carts, Mrs. Shaver, representative of the American Hospital Association.

Public Relations and Education, Charles Tildon, development director Provident development program.

Greetings were brought to the assemblage from Mrs. JoAnn Smith, president of Catonsville Twigs, Mrs. Victorine Adams, member of the board of Provident Hospital, and Dr. Emerson Walden, president, Maryland Medical Association.

A special feature of the luncheon was an address by Wiley Daniel, program director of Radio Station WEBB, on "Prescription for Effective Speech."

Mrs. Beatrice Avery, vice president of the auxiliary, summed up thusly, "as the building of the New Provident Hospita, becomes a reality, the hospital will turn more and more to its auxiliary for volunter and financial support and for the realization of special projects. Its especially important now that we plan for the work ahead of us and that we are as well informed as possible about the function and responsibility of the auxiliary."

Mayor orders check of Kennison apartments

Myaor Theodore R. McKeldin has ordered an investigation of complaints by members of the West Arlington Improvement Association that a newly constructed apartment building at Rogers and Kennison Ave. does not comform to city code regulations.

The investigation is being handled through David L. Glenn, administrative aid to the mayor.

Residents of the area, composed of individual homes on spacious lots, fought construction of the apartments for over a year, arguing specifically they would not conform to lot space requirements with the widening of Rogers Ave.

The Boad of Municipal and Zoning Appeals approved the construction, however.

TWO MEMBERS of the association, Mrs. Ethel Johnson and Frank Hyman, both of whom reside on Kennison Ave. near Rogers, recently visited the mayor's office to personally lodge the organization's complaints.

In addition to the non - conforming lot space allegations, they also charged the building was so poorly constructed it presented a hazardous structure for the neighborhood, as well as the tenants.

Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Hyman presented a number of other complaints which Mr. Glenn is currently checking out through the affected city agencies.

Goodwill gets new director

Harvey E. Kettering II has been named executive director of Baltimore Goodwill Industries. He comes to Baltimore from Flint, Mich., where he served in the same capacity.

Mr. Kettering had previously served five years in the Maryland area with the Goodwill Industries. He is a graduate of the College of Business Administration at Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia.

The new director is a member of the National Rehabilitation Association and the National Association of Sheltered Workshops.

Baltimore Goodwill Industries provides employment for 250 of Maryland's physically handicapped citizens.
