—The Tripletts

is $35 per week for support and maintenance of the children until they are of age, all Blue Cross insurance and dental expenses, $200 counsel fees to her attorney, Charlotte W. Main.

He also transferred all furniture and their leasehold property at 3019 Piedmont Ave. to Mrs. Triplett with the provision that she make mortgage payments and pay upkeep expenses.

Their agreement dated Oct. 11, 1965, states also that Mr. Triplett is forever barred from all rights to the property that is conveyed to her free and clear from his claims.

Mrs. Triplett voluntarily relinquished right to alimony and agreed to transfer to Mr. Triplett right and title to a portable TV set, a b-1 room suite, a clock radio.

Mr. Triplett gained the right to see the children "at all reasonable times," generally and specifically to have them with him each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and for two consecutive weeks in summer vacation from school.

He also has right to have his sons with him two days every other Christmas and Easter.

MR. AND MRS. Triplett were married Dec. 31, 1952. According to testimony before the court, Mrs. Triplett filed for divorce in May 1963.

She testified they were separated on Oct. 25, 1961.

Mrs. Triplett alleged she suffered bodily harm and lived in fear of her husband. She said he suggested she leave the home.

During lengthy proceedings from 1962 through 1965 and a series of appearances in the courtroom, Mr. Triplett was under order to pay his wife $10 support per week for each of their children and $30 alimony.

Records of his 1961 audited income shoed earnings of $115 a week plus an automobile and expense account provided by his firm.

Mrs. Triplett told the court she was employed "on call" as a substitute teacher and until 1965, paid by the day and had no means of supporting children nor paying rent at an apartment into which she was forced to move.

She continued, "The day I was forced to abandon the home we shared together, he said I could pack and go to my mother or aunt's or some place, because he didn't want me there any more."

MRS. TRIPLETT also charged that her husband was unfaithful during the period he resided in the Piedmont Ave. home alone. A detective testified before the court in March, 1965 that a woman companion, Miss Gloria Annette Alston, 1900 block E. Oliver St., remained in the residence from 5:10 a.m.

points up an old cliche: children should not even be allowed to go unaccompanied to school.

"You can never be too careful where children are concerned."

Having to deal continuously with the problems of youth, Juvenile Court Judge Charles Moylan called on parents to be "especially careful" where their girls are concerned.

"Parents ought to make sure that they know who their girls are dating and who their girls' friends are," he added.

"The best way that parents can keep a watch on any situation is by working more closely with their daughters' school counselors," the Judge said.

"Moreover, tragedies like the death of Sharon Dale should make parents more aware of city dangers," Judge Moylan stated.

"I feel that PTAs can be of special help by devoting meetings specifically to the problem of training girls on how not to be 'picked up' by anyone at anytime, as well as traveling the streets alone on errands, as the Dale child was doing," the Judge concluded.

THURSDAY Sharon Dale was buried at Mt. Auburn Cemetery. The family must now find funds to pay funeral and burial costs.

Mrs. Dale and the nine surviving brothers and sisters will perhaps never reconcile in their minds whether the tragedy could have been avoided.

What happend to Sharon Dale should not, as a heartbroken mother feels, be allowed to happen again.

But unless parents are careful, it will.

Open housing to be topic of debate at Govans

Miss Eileen Zelesnick, speech specialist will also give a short talk. There will be a demonstration of the Massachusetts Vision Test. Refreshments will be served.

June 7, 1963 to 3:05 p.m. June 8, 1963.

Detective Robert B. Miller also told the court a woman companion was noted at the address on other dates.

Mr. Triplett denied all his wife's charges in a cross bill dated Aug. 1, 1964. Through his attorney, Sidney Schlachman, Mr. Triplett on July 30, 1964 questioned his wife before the court as to gifts, money and her expenses he alleged were paid by a Lawrence Morton Jr.

Mrs. Triplett denied the charges to state that Mr. Morton visited her family at her mother's home when she resided there on New Year's Eve in 1963 and 1964.

Later when she moved to property owned by Mrs. Ruth Allen, her aunt, Mrs. Triplett testified the aunt and her mother contributed to her support.

Joanne Williams is new Western Hi senior prexy

Two attractive seniors, the first of their race, have walked off with the top two student offices at Western High School.

Joanne Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin T. Williams, has been elected class president.

Marsha Chalmus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris F. Chalmus, has won the presidency of the Student Council.

Proving that brains and beauty are still a potent combination, both girls are finalists in the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Seniors, sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

AS CLASS president, Joanne is automatically president of the Gavel Club, an honorary, and has been a member of the "90" Club, the Dramatic Club, the German Club, the Glee Club and the Madrigals.

Having served as Junior Day chairman and a lab assistant, Joanne also participated in the summer science institute at Morgan State College.

She is current president of the CYO at St. Cecilia's Church.

Marsha has also been a member of the Student Council, as well as the concert choir and a member of the library aides. She ranked third in her class in the summer science institute at Morgan this past summer.

Outside of school, Marsha's interests are divided among politics and service to her church, where she is a member of the youth choir and Youth Fellowship.

ter, Sheila, briefly held his hand.

The Rev. Mr. Wood told the mourners of "this family that has suffered a great loss."

He recounted that only a month ago, Sharon's sister Mary had been baptized in his church.

"And I remember," the Rev. Mr. Wood said, "that when the time came for persons who had accompanied each baptismal candidate to stand as witnesses, how the large Dale family had all come to stand with Mary."

"We cannot bring her back," the Rev. Mr. Wood said. "God will welcome us at the end, and we will meet our loved ones again."

MRS. MAGDALINE DALE, the deceased child's grief - stricken mother, had a friend read these parting words for Sharon:

"My daughter was a sweet child, if only I could bring her back . . we will not forget you, Sweet Sharon."

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Smith, the victim's grandparents, had their sentiments read: "We do not know the pain you had . . you did not say goodbye."

It was recalled that the dead girl was leaving behind her twin sister, nicknamed, "Peanuts," nine brothers and sisters, three aunts and three uncles, and "many, many friends." Sharon Dale had attended School 115 and was in the glee club.

One of Sharon's brothers kept putting a tissue to his eyes, then back into the hatband of a well - worn hat, then would take it out to use it over and over during the service.

SPEAKING BRIEFLY, the Rev. Mr. Hammond said, "There are many questions which come up in the minds of people when faced by a tragic incident such as this.

"Through this tragedy we can hear God speaking to parents everywhere saying 'you can't be too careful, you can't be too safe.'"

The Rev. Mr. Hammond concluded, "As we lay away Sharon Dale, this budding flower, we need to be thoughtful and careful that this does not happen again."

Mrs. Sylvia Brown sang the final hymn.

As one of the many children dead the coffin to pay last respects, one of Sharon's classmates, said softly, "It's pretty. Sharon would have liked to see her flowers like this."

When the family of the dead girl was about to leave, several children came to the coffin to lift the dozen floral sprays from the funeral parlor. One of Sharon's friends collapsed and was carried outside.

The silent crowds on the street corners barely moved as the funeral cortege of automobiles drove off to Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

MEANWHILE, THE AFRO learned that 29-year-old laborer, William C. Robinson, 1000 block Dallas St., was to be taken before a special grand jury today on charges of killing Sharon.

The child's nude body was found on the second floor of a vacant house at 928 E. Eager St., a few doors from her home at 920.

Sharon, who would have been 15 on Wednesday, was waylaid en route home with goodies from a nearby store. Her mother, who usually would not allow the children out at such hours, permitted Sharon to leave about 10:45 to go to the store for her sister.

She never returned and after waiting 15 minutes the family went out to look for her. Police found the body in the vacant house.

Bahai to observe Rights Day here

Two days of activity will spotlight an observance of Human Rights Day, beginning on Friday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m. followed by a noon - time talk on Dec. 12 featuring William J. Burgess, of Wilmington, Del.

Fellowship hour and an exhibit will be included in both activities, which will be held at the Bahi Community Center at 5301 Gwynn Oak Ave. The public is invited.
