8 tan players named

NEW YORK — Eight colored players were named Thursday to the 22 - man All - American football squad, selected by United Press International.

The board of selectors chose three of the eight on the first offensive team and the other five on the first defensive unit. There also were six tan athletes picked for the second squad, four on offense and two on defense.

• • •

EARLIER in the week, the Associated Press, UPI's rival news service, named six colored stars — two to the first offensive unit and four to the defensive eleven.

The AP's second units included five colored prospects — three on offense and two on defense.

• • •

SELECTED by both outfits to their top units were halfback Mike Garrett of Southern California, and guard Dick Arrington of Notre Dame. Garrett last weekend was named winner of the 1965 Heisman Trophy, which goes annually to the player believed to be the best college performer in the nation.

In addition to Garrett and Arrington, UPI named end Freeman White of Nebraska, who will be seen in the Orange Bowl Game New Year's Day against Alabama; end Aaron Brown of Minnesota, tackle Bill Yearby of Michigan, end Charley Smith of Michigan State, and halfbacks George Webster of Michigan State, and John Roland of Missouri.

Brown, Roland and Webster were chosen on the AP's first defensive unit. But the AP placed White and and Yerby on its second teams.

• • •

HALFBACKS Floyd Little of Syracuse, and Clinton Jones of national champion Michigan State, are on the second team in each service's selections.

And UPI includes ends Gene Washington of Michigan State, and Tony Jeter of Nebraska, on its second team, along with halfback Willie Gaskins of Washington State.

Thacker rejoins Royals

CINCINNATI (U%I) — Guard Tom Thacker was reactivated by the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association today while guard Art Heyman was placed on waivers.

Thacker, who reported late this season, averaged 2.5 points in 55 games for the Royals in 1964 - 65.

Why is white America against Cassius Clay?

BY BERMAID GARRETT

For want of a strong back the world's heavyweight championship has not been returned to America, as Floyd Patterson promised before going 12 rounds last Monday night in Las Vegas and proving only that he can go into the ring without being eliminated in the first round.

And that can be catastrphic. Some people are worried because we won't leave Vietnam and others wonder what Moscow and Peking will think of next to lessen American prestige abroad. But at least we know where they are.

Cassius Clay won the belt last year in Miami.

Why, things are worse now than when a citizen of Hitler's Germany promised to take the championship to the Deutschland during the Thirties.

• • •

AT LEAST, this is what many Americans would have us believe. Too many – both colored and white—call Ali's antics "disgusting."

True, there may be honest indigence over his ability to accurately predict how he will carry a fight, but often the resentment is over his Black Muslimism.

As far as is known, the Supreme Court has not waived the freedom of religion provision in the Constitution to exclude Muslims. And not even Alabama — which considered it criminal a few years ago that such, as thing as the NAACP existed — has taken official action against the seat.

Why then is there so much reluctance to recognize the right of the Black Muslims to their belief? Why have "rabble-rouser" and "troublemaker" become synonymous with a follower of Allah?

This opinion comes from one who does not believe the curent king of the ring would have bested Joe Louis, Rocky Marciano, Jersey Joe Walcott or any of the other greats in their primes.

But even if Ali literally sent every contender into orbit with one punch, he would be discrediated by the religious critics and anathema for that one statement he made after his second victory over Liston "I have faith in Allah."

Billy Conn, a white brother mind you, put the whole thing in its proper perspective when he said three days before the fight, "I don't care what religion he is. I want to know can he fight."

NYLON WHIP

Sailor's way to keep ends of rope from unraveling is to whip ends with marlin.

Modern way is to wrap with electrician's tape or dip in glue. With nylon, burn ends over stove until they melt and fuse together.

Morgan five awaits debut against Union

Morgan State College basketeters, spurred by a desire to match the achievements of their Orange Blossom-bound football contemporaries, open the 1965 - 66 season tomorrow (Saturday) night with Virginia Union visiting the Hurt gym.

With the gridiron Bears engaging Florida A and M in Miami's Orange Bowl at about the same time, coach Brutus Wilson's charges will be itching to get off on the right foot for a campaign they hope will better last year's 11-12 second - division finish.

• • •

LEADING THE Morgan attacks in all probability, will be Baltimore - born Lee Cornish. Though only 5 - 11 and 165 pounds, Cornish has been one of the Bears' most reliable point getters over the past three years.

Joining Cornish, who is a senior, will be two juniors and two sophomores in the starting lineup.

Bob Gordon, 6 - 3, 185-pounder from Lawrenceville, Va., and James Hall, 6 - 4, and 175 from Baltimore, are the juniors. Jeff O'Neal, a 6-foot Washington, D. C., product, and Frank Hammond, 6-5, from Plainfield, N.J., are the sophomores.

Rounding out the Bear cage squad are Al Atkins of Crisfield, Md., Charles Denby, Eddie Gibson and Garry Cole, from Baltimore, and Gilbert Moore of Elizabeth, N.J.

Aaron comfortable after operation

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Braves outfielder Hank Aaron was resting comfortably after undergoing minor surgery here Monday.

The operation was completed to correct a condition that had troubled Aaron during the latter part of the 1965 baseball season. It was pronounced successful.

It was the second operation within a year for the power-hitting right fielder. He had ankle surgery last spring and missed the start of the season.

Will your gift be the most expensively made Bourbon in Kentucky... and probably in the world?

This is where to find it. In the Old Fitzgerald Four Seasons Decanter. Old Fitz is the most expensively made, by far, of Kentucky's famous Bourbons.* Appropriately, the four Kentucky seasons which slowly breathe great mellow character into Old Fitzgerald are honored in this decanter.
When your friends receive a gift like this, shouldn't it come from you?
As always, at no additional cost.
Your Key to Hospitality
Regular fifth available in handsome gift wrap.

Morgan faces heavy odds in Miami 'Blossom' tilt

By SAM LACY

MIAMI, Fla. — Notwithstanding a highly impressive 8-0-0 record for the season and No. 1 rating in defense for small college teams in the nation, Morgan State College takes the field here tomorrow (Saturday) night in the Orange Bowl in the cast of underdog.

Despite publicity to the contrary, the Golden Bears of coach Earl Banks have their work cut out for them when they hook up with Florida A and M, in this year's renewal of the traditional Orange Blossom Classic.

The Baltimore aggregation finished its regular season November 20, with a 53-0 drubbing of Virginia State College. This, coming on the heels of thorough beatings to A and T, Norfolk State, Delaware State and other respected units in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, served to establish Morgan as the favorite in her clash here with the thrice - beaten Rattlers.

• • •

ASIDE from their spectacular showing against conference foes, the Bears, on Thursday, were given top rating by United Press International in its evaluation of small - college football.

Morgan had a No. 1 defense rating on the basis of only 732 yards allowed, an average of 91.5 yards per game by the opposition. A similar ranking was accorded in rushing defense, the Bears having surrendered only 120 net yards to the competition for a per - game mark of 15.

• • •

TENNESSEE STATE which routed Florida, 45-6, last month, and which appears next week in the Grantland Rice Bowl at Murfreesboro, Tenn., is beneath Morgan in both categories.

The Tigers from Nashville are third in total defense and second in defending against the rush.

Nevertheless, an objective look at the Orange Blossom Classic game produces a degree of skepticism in the Morgan College camp. As is the case with all coaches who bring their teams to Miami for this post - season tangle with Jake Gaither's Rattlers, Banks realizes the tremendous odds which confront a visiting club.

• • •

IN THE first place, few teams operating in colored conferences have the opportunity to play night football. Fielding punts, catching passes and any other execution which requires locating a flying spheroid, are experiences that visiting players lack.

Moreover, Gaither and his charges commence prepping for this Blossom extravaganza with the opening game of the FAMU season.

Whereas Florida knows it will be in the Bowl, none of its prospective oppenents has as opportunity to concentrate on the game until at least three - fourths of its regular campaign is over.

This means that the Rattler camp is in a position to learn all it needs to know about a likely adversary, while the latter may or may not be wondering whether it will receive the invitation.

• • •

ANOTHER marked advantage the Rattlers have over their Orange rivals became obvious in 1962, when the Bears were last here. Florida's 78 - man squad more than doubled the Morgan unit, and the constant insertion of fresh troops took its toll on the Golden Bear manpower.

This was particularly noticeable in the late stages. Going into the final quarter of the game, a courageous Baltimore aggregation had held off the Rattlers — then with their famed backfield of Bob Hayes, Bob Paremore and Bobby Felts — and were trailing by only 13-7.

The final score was 30-7.

• • •

IN AN effort to forestall or reduce to a minimum these disadvantages, Banks and his assistants — Jesse Thomas, Nat Taylor and Brutus Wilson — dropped the hint in early November that there was a chance the Bears would be in the Classic.

This had a tendency to gear the players psychologically.

• • •

ADDITIONALLY, Earl took the precaution to bring his squad to town well in advance of the game and the assorted social activities that attend the promotion.

Arriving Wednesday, the Bears checked into their Moulin Rouge Motel quarters only long enough to room their luggage. Within a few hours they were running a light drill at nearby Flamingo Park.

On Thursday, they worked out in the Orange Bowl under the lights, with Banks laying emphasis on the fielding of punts by Eddie Hayes and George Nock.

Also getting much attention was a precision exercise in passing, with quarterbacks Russ Jolivet and Gilbert Moore throwing to Ev Fullwood, Gerald Boyd and Ron Deskins.

OUTDOOR TIPS

SAFETY FIRST

Always carry a safety pin with you. It holds hooks, small swivels, anything with an eye on it. Mends rips and tears too.

But here's a new wrinkle. If your lure is too light for casting, clip the pin in the hook eye.

Extra weight may do the job and act as a fish - getting "wobbler."

FRESH MILK

Many back - in campers freeze milk in cartons. Cold helps with refrigeration and keeps milk okay to drink.

But freezing spoils flavor. Try this tip before you depend on it. . . but it sounds interesting.

Heat milk just to (but not over) boiling point. When lukewarm pour into airtight container.

Keep in dark place, as cool as possible. Supposed to keep drinkable several months.
