Xmas-Hanukkah observance Sunday at Fellowship House

With Lula Jones Garrett

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER (substituting for Mrs. Garrett who is on vacation)

Probably one of the most colorful of all the Yuletide celebrations is the Fellowship House Christmas - Hanukkah observance coming up this Sunday, Dec. 12, from 4 to 7 p.m. All are invited since the spacious residence, at 3300 N. Hilton, has long been known as "a second home for anyone who chooses to make it so."

The first hour of the celebration that combines traditions of the Christian and Jewish high holidays, is spent in decorating a floor for each one according to its customs.

Whole families attend. They get to know the stories, songs, prayer and religious significance as they come together (no one is too young or too old)—for the brief program. The menorah is lighted and then all share refreshments with Fellowship House members as hosts.

A recent report on Fellowship House shows it takes $1,500 a month upkeep. Yuletide presents, you may bring on Sunday, therefore, should be in cash.

Throughout the week, all are invited to stop by to meet the three new trainees from Neighborhood Youth Corps, Thelma Davis, Dorothy Holly and Spencer Sims. So, plan a few minutes during the holidays to welcome the young ladies who are helping with office duties and the young man, who would appreciate a man's point of view on the painting carpentry and minor repairs he is doing.

Highlighting recent events at Fellowship House was the Birthday Dinner, prepared in such a fabulous way by Naomi Camper that many friends, new and old, stayed, relaxed, dined or took carryouts away. With experts Mary Carter Smith and Naomi in the Kitchen, a sum of $200 profit was rung up and then the group presented Parren Mitchell with their 4th Leadership Award. Gifts from guests filled up the cupboard, happily.

The Tutorial Project has some teenaged volunteers. Gertrude and Kate announced the January Book Discussion Group, meeting Wednesday, the 5th, will consider Myrdall's "Challenge to Affluence" but right now they're discussing "Black Bourgeoisie" by E. Franklin Frazier.

THE COLONIAL Golf Club held its Ninth Annual Awards Banquet Sunday at the Elegante Room. Approximately eighty members, wives and guests attended.

Guest speaker was Willie Richardson of the Baltimore Colts, a golfer of considerable ability.

Attending as a representative of Provident Hospital, as well as a member of th club, was Henry Whyte. As administrator of Provident Hospital, Mr. Whyte accepted Colonial Golf Club' check for $100 from the President of the Club, Walter Rice.

Winners of trophies and awards for each tournament held during the year, and for outstanding services to the club were:

The Dr. Bruce Benjamin Tournament: Madison Crosby, Thornton Umphrey; Calvin Hall; President's Cup Tournament: Paul Scott, Dr. Julius Taylor, Frank Cook; Murphy Leg Tournament: Calvin Hall, Madison Crosby, Albert Dowdell; Colonial Special Tournament: Robert Pettigrew, Robert Harrison, Lemuel Johnson;

Colonial clambake: Al Tillman — medalist; John Staten, Lester, Wallace; William Parker-Oliver Haley; Calvin Hall-Dudley Henry; Frank Beaird—Embra Bowie; Clyde Bryant-Allen Wilson; Thornton Umphrey-Howard McAdory.

OVER 500 guests attended the simply beautiful wedding of Miss Alvis Mae Anthony, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Anthony Sr., to the Rev. Thomas Smith, associate assistant pastor of Parks Square Baptist Church.

Standing with the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Smith at the formal rites were Mrs. Delores Keel, maid of honor; Misses Joan Smith, Beatrice Brown, Marjorie Keel, bridesmaids; Raymond Robinson, bestman, and ushers Vernon Smith, Jr., Walter C. Smith and Belford J. Bale; Cynthia Howard, flowergirl and Kevin Jackson ringbearer.

The Rev. Gus Roman, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated. The bride, given by her father, wore a gown of delustered satin trimmed in alencon lace; Lavish appliques of lace scolloped the neckline. Her veil, finger illusion style, fell from a pill box crown also in alencon lace.

The maid of honor wore blue with matching veil and accessories and a waist corsage. Bridesmaid in matching pink frock and accessories, carried old-fashioned bouquets.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Anthony wore an apple green frock of crepe with lace bodice trimmed in same sequins, green satin hat and matching veil.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, son of the late Perry and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, was represented by his oldest sister, Mrs. Lottie Foster. Mrs. Foster were a dress of black and white, the bodice sequin-trimmed, her hat fashioned of white feathers.

Mrs. John D. Anthony Jr., soloists, was accompanied by the organist, John Nelson Jr.

The reception was held in the church Education Building and then the couple went on to honeymoon in New York.

Among guests were the congregations of both First Baptist and Perkins Square churches and guests from New Jersey, New York, Virginia, California, and Washington, D. C.

THE Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Payne will be at the Sheraton in Philadelphia attending the Federal Youth Opportunity conference. Also scheduled to take part in the sessions are the Revs. Frank Williams, Metropolitan Methodist; Moses Williams, Zion Baptist, Herb Edwards, Trinity Baptist, Matthew Silver, Concord Baptist; H. Hudson Bobbitt, Tindall Hill Baptist.

Meantime, Mrs. P a y n e (Odell) casteelor at Douglass High, is finishing plans for a couple of days holiday shopping in New York.

Dr. Arthur J. (the reverend) will be back in town for Christmas, sticking around, as he calls it, since his winter vacation is coming up for February in M e x i c o, gulf, et cetera, ie, Acapulco. If I s gang (quite a illustrious group) making this kind of safari somewhere South of the sun each year includes the Rev. Drs. Gardner Taylor, New York; Marshall Shepard, Philadelphia; Logan Kearse, Baltimore; Messrs. George Williams, Birmingham mortician; Jesse Thomas, New York YMCA executive.

MRS. EDNA KENNEY Waynesboro who opened a new beauty shop on Walbrook Junction Sunday was frocked in royal purple with a matching orchid corsage from Mary Burns, the florist.

What a day for the 77-year-old jolly, durable Mrs. Kenney, as she is so widely known. Besides the g r i n Open-House celebration for the luxurious, brand-n e w shop, the event marked a half-century in business in Baltimore.

A special call from the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Payne of Enon Baptist Church, her longtime friends and confessor when she lived in Catonsville. The Rev. Mr. Payne said, "Edna, you and I just keep on going.
