Diplomats to speak at Bowie State

BOWIE — Two diplomats from Jamaica and Barbados are scheduled to speak at Bowie State College during the month of April. The Honorable Martin Modeica, education attache at the Embassy of Jamaica in Wesnington, D.C., will discuss "The Economic Development of Jamaica within the frame work of the Caribbean Economy," today (Friday).

His Excellency Valorie McComie, Ambassador of Barbados, will speak on "The Caribbean Common Market and its function within the Organization of the Caribbean States," Monday, April 30. Both lectures will be presented at 1:00 p.m. in the Science Building, room 011.

"These lectures are designed to give students in the 'Geography of Middle America' class a better perspective of the area they are studying," explained Ralph Parris, assistant professor of history and geography, who is sponsoring the talks. "They will complement the class lectures and the text by contributing first hand information from authoritative personalities in the area," he added.

Morgan State faculty members awarded grants

Cash awards for faculty research and writing at Morgan State College were announced recently by Dr. Roger K. Williams, vice-president for academic affairs.

The stipends were granted following recommendation by the college's Committee on Research, chaired by Dr. Howard H. Bell, professor of history.

The research grants were awarded to the following for 1973: Dr. Carrol S. Perrino, assistant professor of psychology, to study "Possible Psychological and Personal Background Factors Differentiating College Drug-Users from Non-Users."

Professor V. B. Subramanian and Professor Carrolle Carr to study "Determinants of Labor Market Success Among Black Women Reentrants, Age 30-44 Years."

Dr. Vernon Gray, professor and chairman of the department of political science, to research the topics: "Black Politics: A Radical Alternative in the American Political System" and "Black Mayors, Political Power and Urban Policy." (These topics will be in collaboration with other authors).

Dr. Edith von Zemenszky, associate professor of foreign languages, to study "The Paneus of Baron Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben."

Dr. Lucy K. Hayden, associate professor of English, to do research on "A Biography of Mary Wollstonecraft."

Clifford D. DuRand, assistant professor of philosophy, to study "The Philosophy of Liberation."

None of the above grants, according to Dr. Williams, will require leaves of absences from the normal classroom teaching duties of the professors.

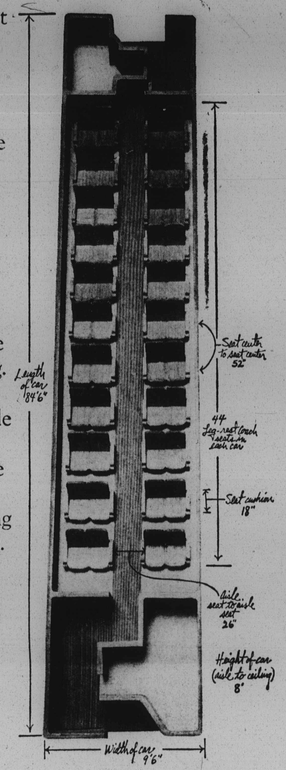
TAKE A SEAT. ANY SEAT. IF IT ISN'T COMFORTABLE, IT ISN'T AMTRAK.

Three's a crowd and Amtrak knows it. That's why wherever you go by train, Amtrak seats are always two abreast, never three abreast. This is the reclining coach seat we use on most short trips. It's got more leg room, more hip room, more sheer comfort than any seat on a bus or plane. And that little Foot-Rest gives you the support you need when you want to lie back and snooze.

Amtrak Foot-Rest coach seat used on most short trips.

Below, we present "Big Stretch," the adjustable Leg-Rest coach seat you'll find on most overnight or long-distance trips. How big? Well, a husky six-footer can stretch out virtually full length without touching head or toe to the next seat. (Try doing that on a bus or plane. Or even in your own car.) But on a train you're not confined to any seat, not even one as comfortable as this. You're free to get up and stroll, talk to people across the aisle or go up to the lounge for refreshments.

One thing more to remember about traveling Amtrak. We not only give you more space in your seat but around it. Take a closer look at this diagram of the interior of our Leg-Rest coach. Notice the two-abreast seating. The ample space between seats. The wide aisles. The fact is, Amtrak gives you more "riding room" per passenger than anything else on wheels or wings. Call Amtrak or your Travel Agent. Find out how little it costs to be really comfortable.



Note the wide spacing in this Amtrak Leg-Rest coach. Planes and buses squeeze more seats into this same space. No wonder you're always more comfortable on an Amtrak train.

We're making the trains worth traveling again.
