and the county had promised it to the church's parish, which has since relocated.

"It would be pretty embarrassing to us if one day it's gone," Strott said, explaining why he ordered four laborers from the county's Central Services Department to take out the cornerstone this morning.

The city was not told, however, and when Alderman Barbara Ne ustadt drove by the church on Franklin Street at 8:20 a.m., she saw the county crew removing bricks from around the cornerstone.

She stopped her car, jumped out and ran into the house directly across the street from the church, which just happens to be where the mayor's parents live.

She called the city police, and that's when the skirmish began.

Sgt. Gale Cole and Officer Gene Austin, of the city police arrived promptly on the scene, and threatened Jim Brandenburg, a county laborer, with arrest if he didn't stop taking bricks out from around the cornerstone.

He stopped.

Seconds later, the mayor arrived with Police Chief Bernard J. Kalnoske. They had been touring the city together, discussing traffic problems, when Kalnoske received an urgent call on the "bleeper" attached to his belt.

He called his office, and was told the church was being torn down, and he and the mayor sped to the scene.

As they stood examining the bricks lying on the sidewalk in front of the church and admonishing Brandenburg for violating a court order, Eugene Lerner, the city attorney pulled up.

For a few minutes, it was the big chiefs of the city against the four laborers who said they were only following directions.

Finally, J. William Gregory, the county's director of Community and Industrial Affairs strolled up and said the county was not trying to raze the building, but to take out the cornerstone.

"The court says you can't tear down the building," countered the mayor.

"All we're trying to do is protect the cornerstone," answered Gregory. "I talked to the county executive and he said we're just going to store it."

Minutes later, Aposiol walked into his parents' house and got on the phone to Edward C. Webby, administrative assistant to County Executive Joseph W. Alton.

"Why the hell don't you guys say something before you do this?" the mayor said angrily.

When he hung up, he still had not decided whether to let the county go ahead and take out the cornerstone.

Brandenburg, the laborer interrupted in his tasks, offered a solution for the problem of the cornerstone.

"Let them go ahad and ... "Let them go ahead and steal the damn thing," he said.

Strota said afterward that the city's stand was a bunch of baloney," and that with "every little push and shove, they run to the police."

Later the city attorney, after talking with Circuit Court Judge James L. Wray, told Aposiol later that the court order forbidding the county from razing the structures means that "they're not to touch anything on that building at all."

The mayor said he has told Lerner to seek to have the county held in contempt of court for trying to take out the cornerstone.

Bowman, told the AFRO Dr. Julian suffered the heart upset at 11 a.m. Tuesday in his research laboratory, Julian Research Institute, located on Franklin Park, Ill.

Mrs. Bowman said the world-famed scientist is reportedly doing well after he had been rushed to the hospital in an ambulance.

"There has been no diagnosis and so we don't know what is the cause but he is feeling much better. He is resting comfortably and we hope he will soon be back on his feet," Mrs. Bowman stated.

Dr. Julian's scheduled talk has been postponed indefinitely.

tive' to administer the estate. He was excused from bond.

Mrs. Chissell's husband was Dr. R. Garland Chissell Sr., longtime Baltimore city physician who died in May 1964, at the age of 94. Mrs. Chissell was also 94 when she died in May 1973.

No estimate of the value of the estate or the extent of property holdin given in the will which was filed Sept. 27, 1973. An inventory is expected to be recorded within three months.

Other relatives of her husband who are to share stated percentages of her estate are:

Ten per cent o his niece, Mrs. Connie Young and her husband, Raymond Young, Bowie, Md.

Ten per cent to his niece, ew, Dr. John T. Chissell and his wife, Carolyn, of Forest Park Ave., Baltimore.

Five per cent to his nephew, Dr. Robert Brown and his wife, May of Elmira, N.Y.

Mrs. Chissell's sole surviving blood kin, a cousin, Mrs. Doris Cole and her husband, Judge Harry Cole, were left 15 per cent of the estate.

Two per cent each was left to St. James Episcopal Church, where she was a longtime member; to Provident Hospital and to the Baltimore brancy NAACP, where both Dr. and Mrs. Chissell held life memberships, and Mrs. Chissell headed the membership drive for years.

Mrs. Chissell's will was dated March 4, 1971, and was witnessed by Franklin Gerber Jr., an E. Franklin St. attorney; and a Marjorie Womack of the 3600 block Fernhill Ave.

Mrs. Chissell, who lived for years at 2515 Longwood St., died at the Belvedere Nursing Home where she had been confined for three years.
