Keep teachers in classroom, chief asked

City Councilwoman Victorine Q. Adams, D-4th, has asked Dr. Roland N. Patterson, school superintendent, to consider keeping good classroom teachers in the classroom with increases in salaries as one solution to the explosive "teacher morale problem."

The proposal is not new, having been made to the superintendent by Councilman Robert Douglass, D-2nd, when he recently appeared before the City Council Education Committee.

Mrs. Adams says in her letter:

"Generally, when a classroom teacher shows evidences of dedicated and excellent services to her pupils and her school, she is rewarded with a promotion that takes her out of the classroom, along with her increase in salary.

* * *

"My suggestion is to find a way to keep many of the excellent teachers in their classrooms, increase their salaries and at the same time improve and enhance their status as classroom teachers.

"Of course, the teachers who prove to have executive or administrative abilities should be promoted to areas where they can excell. My concern is for the excellent teacher who loves to teach; who should be rewarded for teaching abilities while still serving the pupils in the classroom."

Funds sought for juvenile group homes

A meeting with Gov. Marvin Mandel to discuss allocating funds to insure the effectiveness of a Senate bill which mandates that non-delinquent juveniles shall not be confined in institutions with delinquents is being sought by a group of 20 civic organizations.

The bill was introduced by Sen. Clarence Blount, D-Balto., and becomes effective Jan. 1.

The problem, according to Mrs. Enolia MacMillan of the NAACP, is that the state appears reluctant to come up with the funds needed to insure that there will be adequate group homes for the non-delinquent juveniles or that these children be able to remain in their own homes under proper supervision.

* * *

A federal grant, which funded many of the group homes presently operating, is about to run out and the state has not yet indicated that it will allow funds to maintain the homes.

The group has received assurances that the group homes at the YMCA, Franklin Street, will be funded through July 1, by which time it is hoped that the state legislature will have approved the necessary funds, Mrs. MacMillan explained.

Parents. for Nov. 8 program

Mrs. Rose Smith and her cosmetology students have invited parents of children in the Early Admission Program in School Nos. 2, 8 and 4 to come for a Nov. 8 cosmetology participation.

Some 25 parents are expected to participate in a group. The affair starts at 12:30 p.m.
