THE STATE OF THINGS

Watching three rings

By Don and Val Hymes

If you've been watching the center ring in Washington during impeachment, resignation, transition and now confirmation, you may not have had your eye on the other rings around the Capitol.

Because of Marylands unique location wrapping around Washington, there is a constant interchange of politics and political figures. It often goes unnoticed because it is constant and natural, a sort of osmosis from state and local governments.

Whenever there's a crisis in Washington, Marylanders are somehow involved.

Witness: Governor Mandel taking to federal Court the federal energy administrator during the energy crisis.

Whitess: the roles of Republican Larry Hogan and Democrat Paul Sarbanes in the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings.

Witness: the lonely position of GOP Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, ostracized by his party colleagues for his early call to President Nixon to strip the coverup from Watergate. But in two days last week he was in the White House five times.

And although Maryland's pride in having a native son as Vice President has long since turned to bitter ashes, there is another Marylander in the center ring now.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, an Eastern Shoreman, former Congressman and Republican national chairman, is part of the so-called transition team for the new President. That's especially significant because Morton is the only survivor of the first Nixon administration cabinet, and is now a member of the Ford cabinet. As they say in the commercial, "That's staying power."

Just as Maryland voters may be the most sophisticated of all because of this osmosis of issues and personalities, its politicians seem to be equally at ease at every level.

Witness: Baltimore City Councilwoman Barbara Mikulski, now a candidate for U.S. Senate, is chairman of the National Democratic Party's reform commission. Maryland lieutenant governor Blair Lee has played a major role in that group's work.

Witness: Louise Gore, candidate for governor, is Republican national committeewoman for Maryland, and was an ambassador to UNESCO.

Witness: Gladys Spellman, Prince George's County Councilwoman, a candidate for Congress, is past president of the National Association of Counties.

There seems to be no formula or seniority system for Maryland politicians.

They don't have to come up through the ranks of local-state-national politics if they understand the issues. There is a constant leap-frogging from local to national office that may be unique in the nation.

This is partly because of the proximity to Washington. Maryland's politicians have within their reach in-depth news coverage of Capitol Hill issues and their congressmen and senators are only a local telephone call away. And feedback comes quickly through some of the best weekly newspaper and local radio coverage in the nation.

One thing a good Maryland politician learns early is that the issues are basically the same at every level of government. As an example, on Capitol Hill in the past three weeks the Congress ran into the same

The Urban Services Agency (USA) and the Associated Catholic Charities are co-sponsors.

Members of the committee include Sister Helen, St. Veronica's Catholic Church; Mrs. Ruth Wilson, Catholic Advisory Committee; Alvin Steele Cherry Hill Director, USA; and Mrs. Sarah J. Bundy, Commissioner, USA.

More register this fall at Community College

Dr. Sidney Kobre

Because of inflation many employed persons are seeking more money to pay their bills for groceries, and clothing and household articles.

This accounts for the increasing number of adults who are now registering for the fall courses at the Community College of Baltimore, particularly the job and career-oriented courses, according to President Harry Bard.

* * *

Registration is being conducted on the Liberty Campus now from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Late registration Aug. 30 and Sept. 3-6.

"Residents are feeling the economic pinch and want to advance themselves on their present jobs and open up new opportunities in other businesses or industries," said Dr. Bard. "Women, now working in business, or those who are homemakers also desire to add to their families' incomes."

Dean Herman E. Westerberg, of the division of continuing education, sponsoring the evening classes, pointed out, "Workers realize that, as they become more valuable, with increased knowledge and skills, they can earn more. Because of the rapidly changing industrial and job picture, they want to be prepared for whatever happens."

In some companies, such as the Gas and Electric) hW no ept as the Gas and Electric Company, the Western Electric Company, C and P Telephone Company, management is paying full or part of the college tuition fees, because the officials wan better-educated, better-trained employes, he said.

The Federal government aids students financially. A number from the Social Security Administration are enrolling both at the cooperative courses given in the Woodlawn complex as well as the fuller programs on the CCB liberty campus.

Post Office employes, at the downtown headquarters and the district branches, are enrolling for CCB courses.

3,000 students return to Coppin State Sept. 3

Some 3,000 students pursuing courses ranging from degrees in nursing to criminal justice and law enforcement to special education will return to the West Baltimore campus of Coppin State College Tuesday, Sept. 3 for the opening of the institution's seventy-fifth academic session.

For the second consecutive year the college will follow the "4-1-4" calendar. Classes commence for the first semester Sept. 3 and end Dec. 13.

Students may use the intervening month for study and other academic activity. This was done last year through the highly successful mini-mester.

Classes for the second semester will start Feb. 3, 1975 and end May 16.

Construction will play a large role in the college's life this year. Students and faculty will find many innovative ways to circumvent the bulldozers and construction cranes which are busy at work all day.

Used for the first time at full working capacity will be the $1.5 million addition to the Thomas J. Pullen Gymnasium which houses classes for the Department of Health and Physical Education.

The college library is most visibly shown undergoing its new face-lifting at a cost of $4 million.

Work has begun on additions to the J. Millard Tawes College Center at a cost of $2.5 million. Within the academic session construction will begin on the classroom-office building which will house the Divisions of Education and Social Sciences and the Departments of Education, Foreign Languages, Philosophy and the Instructional Media Institute.

Connor Hall, the present Administration building, a landmark for so long, will be eventually razed. A new administrative complex will rise north of the present College Center.

In the planning stages are additions to the Percy Julian Science Building and the Pullen Gymnasium.

The college, in addition, is immensely proud to have acquired the Helene Fuld School of Nursing from Provident Hospital.

Under the direction of Mrs. Doris Reese, acting dean, the school will be the first nursing school in the state college system to grant the bachelor of science degree.

The program will be conducted in cooperation with various health-care facilities in the area as: Provident Comprehensive Neighborhood Health Center, West Baltimore Community Health Care Corporation, Bon Secours Hospital, Baltimore City Hospitals, Children's Hospital, Sinai Rehabilitation Center, Montebello Rehabilitation Hospital, Baltimore City Health Department, Dukeland Nursing Home, Wayland Baptist Nursery School and others in the surrounding metsopolitan area.

Admission to the college and the nursing school is granted to all applicants, male or female of any race, color or creed, whose academic and personal qualifications show evidence for successful completion of the program.

For the coming year the school expects to enroll a total of fifty-six students, both male and female.

In addition, new administrators at Coppin include Alvin Watson, vice president for business and finance, and Ronald K. DeSouza, as vice president for student services.

During the academic session, the college will commemorate its seventy-fifth anniversary with a number of specially planned events and activities. These will be announced to the public during the fall semester.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain And Itch Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

Exclusive formula gives prompt, temporary relief from such pain and itch in many cases. Helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues due to inflammation.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Try doctor-tested Preparation H. There's no other formula like it. At drug counters everywhere. Ointment or suppositories.
