said one of the men pulled out a pistol and forced her back into the house, threatening, gagging and forcing them into doing unnatural acts. She and her daughter were then sexually assaulted by the two of the men who at this time numbered four police record show.

Police said when the four asked for money, the mother gave them $20 she had in her pocketbook, but they issued more threats to kill her children before her if she failed to give them more.

MRS. CARRIE WILLIAMS seated with her daughter (left) Miss Betty Williams. The Williamses are neighbors of the family that faced recent tragedy at 1215 Holbrook St.

At this point, police said, one held the 10-year-old son at knife point and led him into the bedroom to show them where they could find more money.

Police reports show several yells were heard at the same time the child gave them two government checks of $253 each that were found in a family Bible.

At one suspect began brutually stabbing the weeping child, another suspect was heard to have reprimanded, "Stop man, you can't do this, we just got out of jail." When the child was released he fell to the ground unconscious, police were told.

• • •

He had been stabbed twice in the left chest, four times in the center of the back wne once in the right shoulder, according to police quoting hospital authorities.

• • •

"The whole thing is terrible, I'm still shocked about it."

This was the comment Miss Betty Williams gave the AFRO on the tragic incident that happened to her neighbors in the 1200 block of Holbrook Ave.

Miss Williams and her mother Mrs. Carrie Williams were two of the neighbors who heard the screams about 1 a.m. Wednesday.

These two neighbors immediately went to their windows to investigate the loud noise, finding a 15-year-old neighbor, unclothed and pounding on the door of John Davis, another neighbor for assistance.

• • •

The Williamses expressed sympathy for the family. Mrs. Williams stated, "It's getting terrible around here. My daughter and I are trying hard to get out of this area."

There are only eight houses that are occupied in the 1200 block Holbrook Ave. Eventually these houses will be torn down by the city.

by Joe Black

Black people continue to pull themselves up by their proverbial "Bootstraps," through the increased enrollment of Black youths in colleges and universities. A big step in the right direction for all of us because, despite the fact that we may think the education that we acquire in schools today is not relevant to the Black experience, it is still the "Tool" that is most used when we apply for the better and higher paying jobs.

I concur that if the educational process is going to be a truthful experience, then it must include Black history and culture. So I wonder why so many Black youngsters are bypassing the Black universities where they can be exposed to the Black heritage. Are the students' egos leading them to other places? Have our Black colleges become unfashionable? I sincerely hope not.

Now is the time when we really need the Black colleges. The Black communities must earnestly support these educational institutions. We must encourage our young people to attend the schools; we must give some of our finances for the support of these schools; and we must encourage these colleges to broaden their educational scopes.

A Black college or university can effectively reinforce a Black student's identity and it can also make it possible for more inner city educated Black youths to attend college. So if Black is truly beautiful, then it is about time for some Black people to find out just how beautiful Black colleges can be.

Prison reform seminar in City Jail Oct. 4-5

The Baltimore City Jail will be filled to capacity this weekend when one hundred church-going citizens will be locked up overnight.

The ministers, priests, nuns and lay persons will be among participants in a two-day conference on prison reform to be held in the jail.

Jail Warden Gordan Kamka agreed to host the reformers in the underused Women's Detention Center, which at last count had one inmate and capacity for one hundred.

According to the Rev. Joseph R. Wenderoth, a Catholic priest and conference coordinator, the sessions on Friday and Saturday (Oct. 4-5) are being held to focus public attention on the condition of Maryland prisons and rehabilitation efforts.

The conference is being spearheaded by Maryland Churches United, in cooperation with Church Women United, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the Department of Continuing Education of the School of Social Work, University of Maryland.

About 200 persons are expected to take part on a first-come, first-served basis. There is room in the cell block for a hundred to stay overnight.
