Score one for The System.

GM's Maximum Mileage System produces gratifying EPA test results.

1975 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs tested in the EPA study lived up to our expectations. We believe their findings–which show a sales-weighted average fuel economy improvement of more than 20%, 1974 to 1975–lend support to our statement that "The System" is the most advanced engineering and technology we can offer on 1975 General Motors cars.

The System offers other benefits, too.

For 1975, you can also cut maintenance and operating costs, enjoy our best performance in years, spend less time in service, and drive a car with fewer exhaust emissions.

What's in The System? To begin with, it incorporates our new Catalytic Exhaust Converter and High Energy Electronic Ignition, which, while they might sound old hat, are dramatically different from anything we've ever had.

These, combined with our new Fast Warm-up Carburetor and GM Specification Steel-belted Radial Tires, add up to what we think you want in GM cars for 1975. Lower operating costs. Performance like the "good old days." Longer periods between servicing. And cleaner air for everyone.

How the Catalytic Exhaust Converter contributes to savings.

The Catalytic Converter was conceived to help us meet this year's more stringent EPA requirements for hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions . . . which it does.

At the same time, by shifting some of the "cleaning chores" to the Catalytic Converter, we were able to recalibrate the engine for lower idling speeds, quicker warm-up and smoother overall performance.

Unleaded gas can save you money on maintenance, too.

If you were to use regular gasoline with The System, the lead in it would, in time, form a coating around the catalyst, spark plugs and valves that would reduce efficiency. But by using unleaded gasoline, you get cleaner air, your spark plugs last up to 22,500 miles, you can go up to 7,500 miles between oil changes, and your tailpipe and muffler should even last longer.

The muscle behind The System—GM's High Energy Ignition.

Electronic ignitions have been around for some time now, but there's never been anything to match our new High Energy Ignition (HEI). Its name comes from the fact that it can deliver higher voltages, which means it can fire marginal fuel mixtures under adverse conditions and still give you quicker starts. What's more, there are no points to require periodic replacement and no ignition condenser to wear out. Think how much that alone will save you on tuneups.

The System has a warm heart.

In cold weather, an automobile engine simply needs more gasoline during starting and warm-up to overcome the gasoline's slower vaporization. But for 1975, many GM engines have a new Fast Warm-up capability that allows the choke to disengage faster.

This, combined with the fact that the HEI will ignite gasoline/air mixtures over a wider range of temperatures, means you can help stretch your gasoline dollar.

GM Specification Tires help, too.

The GM Specification Steel-belted Radial Tire is available on all 1975 GM cars. It offers better traction in snow and wet, plus lower rolling resistance. The sum total is that you get longer tire life and better operating economy.

To sum up.

We think the new Maximum Mileage System on GM cars offers you a big plus this year over previous years. The EPA tests conducted by using a dynamometer to simulate city driving conditions showed a substantial improvement in fuel economy alone. You'll like the performance we've restored. You won't have to go in for service as often. You'll enjoy improved overall operating economy. And you'll be driving the cleanest cars in GM history.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

We want you to drive what you like and like what you drive.

State's Attorney Allen hits opponent's message to whites

Swisher is spreading fear of 'animals in city jungle'

Racist campaign smells like 'jail all blacks'

State's Atty. Milton B. Allen has bluntly accused opponent Bill Swisher of a "frightening" and "frankly racist" law and order campaign in which city dwellers are intimated to be animals in a jungle.

Allen, who is conducting a write-in campaign, is reported by aides to be deeply disturbed by the potential dangers of a gun-ho prosecutor terrorizing the inner city — his "jungle" — in a futile effort to "instantly solve" all Baltimore's crime.

The state's attorney also lashed out at Swisher's complaint about his use of an agency run by supporters as another of his "phony questions and a pretense at expertise that he never had."

Allen said there is no impropriety in the use of the Harlarad Enterprises, which have been employed by other black candidates, explaining it to be an ingenious method of saving for his campaign the 15 per cent cost other agencies charge candidates.

Allen's campaign managers said they would not be governed by any "double standard" and would make records available when other agencies such as those that handled Swisher's and Gov. Marvin Mandel's advertising did so.

Injured Douglass guard improving at hospital

"Maybe it is time for them to start giving us weapons. If they knew security officers had weapons, they would have never come in the school."

Speaking from his bed at Provident Hospital, Leroy Jacobs made the above statement to the AFRO. Mr. Jacobs, 42, was shot three times on Monday at Douglass High School, 2301 Gwynns Falls Pkwy., by two youths who did not attend the school.

At AFRO press time, his condition was listed as "satisfactory." Mr. Jacobs has been assigned to Douglass as a guard for two years.

Northwestern District police state, "There has been no arrest made and the case is still under investigation."

Explaining how he was shot on Monday, Mr. Jacobs told the AFRO he had received a call for four trespassers in the school.

He states, "I walked out of the cafeteria area and asked one of the boys did he go to the school. I told him he was under arrest for trespassing.

"When I told him to hold out his hands to be handcuffed, he started fighting me and called for help.

"His friend came out of the cafeteria and pulled out a gun. The boy that was wrestling with me also had a gun." Mr. Jacobs said between the two

VOTE NO – Question M is students' nightmare

"Education decision-making in the hands of the Board of Estimates could turn a student's dream of creative education into a nightmare."

The Charter Amendment (Question M) which will appear on the ballot for voters on Nov. 5, will affect the students of the Baltimore City Public Schools.

This year many students were assigned to different schools during the month of August because of the desegregation order of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

After the junior high school students were assigned to their schools, the Board of School Commissioners ruled that students at six junior high schools could transfer to other schools.

The transfers resulted in some schools needing more equipment, materials, and

Orchard St. church is on its way

The Orchard Street Church building, 510 Orchard St., just off Druid Hill, was formally turned over to the Committee For Preservation Oct. 22. After a long, hard struggle, the 142-year old edifice is on its way to its right place in history.

A drive for $150,000 restoration fund now in progress will result in its becoming a museum of black history.

Mayor Schaefer presented the keys to the building to Mrs. Blanche Hughes, Preservation Committee chairman, in ceremonies at the church with the entire City Council and members of the state legislature on hand.

Also attending were members of the Preservation group, comprised of the Maryland Commission on Negro History and Culture, the Oxford Street Improvement Association and the Society for the Preservation of Old Churches.
