Food stamp program helps Baltimore citizens

Families living on low and fixed incomes may get aid through the Food Stamp program.

The Social Services Administration has revised its eligibility requirements in order to give more needy persons the opportunity to participate in the program.

Although the program has reached some ineligible middle class families making more than $12,000 a year, this has not deterred those actual needy families from the program.

Over a ten-year period the cost of program to the U.S. taxpayers has soared from $36 billion to $4 billion. By June, it is expected that 22 million persons in the U.S. will receive the food coupons.

HOW TO APPLY

In order to apply for the program, first call the Client Information and Referral Unit 234-2222. You will be given the phone number and address of the Social Services office nearest your home

Call that office and an appointment will be made for you to meet with an interviewer who can help determine if you are eligible. You must carry with you to the interview, any pay stubs, rent receipts, insurance premiums and savings account books.

Eligibility is determined by the number of persons in a household, the next income of the family and any assets.

A family of four getting a $182 monthly welfare check and has an additional income of $99 a month. Rent and utilities costs are $135 so therefore $50.70 a month is deducted. This leaves a "net income" of $230. The family would then be eligible to buy $154 in food coupons for only $65 a month.

Once you have filed an application, you should receive a notice within 30 days. If you are approved there are many locations throughout Baltimore city where you may purchase your food stamps.

Stamps are redeemable at any retail grocery store, supermarket, dairy or bakery. Coupons may be used to purchase all types of food for human consumption.

You may not purchase alcoholic beverages, tobacco, pet foods, or non-food items like soaps and household supplies.

DEA calls James Carter top heroin dealer in city

JAMES WESLEY CARTER
"Big Head Brother"

James Wesley Carter, 34, also known as "Big Head Brother" was among 18 persons indicted by a federal grand jury.

The nine count indictment was unstaled in United States District Court in New York. Carter, also known as Bernard Douglass was charged with conspiring to smuggle heron and cocaine worth several million dollars into the United States for more than six years.

Carter is now serving time is Louisburg Penitentitary for narcotics violations. According to the Drug Enforcement Administration Carter was called the "number one heroin dealer in Baltimore."

The Drug Enforcement Administration is offering a $20,000 reward for information leading to Frank "Peewee" Matthews, a fugitive.

Matthews, whose aliases include "Big Book" and "Mark IV Frank" as well was arrested in 1973 in Las Vegas on earlier narcotics charges stemming in New York.

Only John Dillinger, the decression era gangster, has previously rated a $20,000 federal government reward, the DEA said.

The indictment accuses the defendants of conspiring to import and actually importing, selling and distributing large quantities of heroin and cocaine

Penalties on conviction for the narcotics charges include 15 to 20 years in prison and fines up to $25,000, and for illegal use of the telephone, four years in prison and up to $30,000 in fines, the DEA said.

Names of others indicted: Barbara Hinton, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Gattis Hinton, Freeport, N.Y.; William Beckwith, Atlanta; Donald Conner, New York;

Robert Currington, Fort Lee, N.J.; Charles W. Cameron, New York John Darby, Philadelphia; Thelma Darby, Philadelphia; David C. Bates, Philadelphia;

Walter Rosenbaum, Atlantic City, N.J.; Ernest Robinson, Philadelphia; James E. Martinez, Newark, N.J.; Scarvey McCargo, New Haven, Conn.; Fred Brown, Newark; Lucy Matthews, Newark; and Marzella Steele Webb, Durham, N.C.

400 honor Commissioner James Jordan at banquet

An overflowing crowd of enthusiastic friends, relatives and co-workers turned up at a banquet honoring retiring James Jordan, commissioner of corrections, at the Martin's West Wednesday night.

The affair, which attracted over 400 persons, was also attended by Sen. Verda F. Welcome, secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services, Robert Larry, Judge David Mason of State Appeals Court and former inmates.

Also present were members of his family and those of his wife, Mrs. Bernice Jordan.

Mr. Jordan 50, was forced by ill-health to step down from the top position he held nearly four years.

Among the many citations given him were a Certificate of Distinguished Citizenship by Governor Mandel, a plaque and a certificate from Classified Employees Association; a plaque and a certificate from Calssified Employees Association; a plaque from Divisions of Corrections and 16 guage gun from Hagerstown House of Corrections.

In glowing tribute Sen. Welcome described Mr. Jordan as an "exemplary, wonderful person," who understood the correctional system better than most people.

"He took up the responsibilities of a Commissioner at a time when few could boast of qualifying for the position," said Mrs. Welcome, adding that Mr. Jordan's background made him an excellent commissioner.

After recounting the life story of Mr. Jordan, Sen. Welcome said "He never considered his life without an objective. His training gave him special insight into the problems of the youths who as human beings need the help of relatives and co-workers quelling the Penitentiary riots of May 1973.

She said some of Mr. Jordan's brilliant acheivements include efforts to effect behavioral change in the correctional system, his having worked closely with the legislature, elevating blacks to administrative positions are recommending smaller prisons institutions to avoid overcrowding.

Sen. Welcome called for decentralization of correctional system to effect effective rehabilitation. The present institutions, she explained fail to send inmates into the society as useful citizens.

Secretary Larry wished Mr. Jordan happiness in his retirement, stating that the state correctional system saw many improvements under the administration of Jordan.

Rav Gill, press secretary to Congresswoman Marjorie Holt, called Mr. Jordan "a friendly man with an onen character." He presented Mr. Jordan with a citation and remarks about Mr. Jordan that Mrs. Holt had entered into the Congressional Record.

Mr. Jordan was named assistant warden for treatment at the Penitentiary in 1966. He served in that capacity for one and a half years before becoming superintendent of the Correctional Institution for Women. He was first of his race to be named head of Maryland institutions.

His achievements include:

1. Opened a Crisis Intervention Center at the Penitentiary for inmates in immediate need of psychological or psychiatric treatment.

2. Implemented a Division-wide policy and procedures manual for correctional employees.

3. Provided leadership in dles custody for inmates being transferred between institutions or other locations.

5. Established the precident of employing ex-offenders in full-time state positions within the division.

6. Developed a mass disorder plan which included having members of the correctional force attend session in disturbance tactics offered through the cooperation of the State Police.

Larry McDaniel, public information officer of the state correctional system, was the master of ceremonies for the banquet organized by committees from various state institutions.

highly successful food and merchandise businesses, bakeries and restaurants, schools and colleges.

With strict attention to the rules their dead leader laid down over three decades ago, they have grown in prestige and respectability in the city and state.

The Civic Center program came via closed circuit TV directly from the International Amphitheatre in Chicago and gave strong emphasis on the history of the black man's struggle for freedom.

This history has often been published in the newspaper, "Muhammad Speaks" which had the nation's largest circulation.

In essence the civic centre program was a review the life and teachings of Elijah Muhammad.

The film which turned into a memorial tribute, pictured the early days of Elijah Muhammad as he grew up in Corlene, Ga. It followed through to his later years in Chicago and Detroit.

The event was free to the public

Many local black businessmen and professionals contributed funds to help the Muslims pay expenses for the affair.

Among them were Atlantic Personnel Services, Samuel's Jewelry, WFBB Radio Station, Attorney Michael Mitchell, Dr. Donald Stewart and Flair Men's Wear.

Baltimore's Muslims try in every way to avoid any disturbance which might damage their image or give rise to a brush with the law.

As many citizens entered the Civic Center to watch the film, they were searched for matches and weapons by women dressed in white and wearing fezzes. The men wore blue military-style uniforms.

All persons also had to walk through a metal detector before they entered the auditorium.

A banquet was held immediately following the program at the Muslim Temple No. 6, 514 Wilson St. with all food served free to the public.

Officials of the Temple refused comment on the death of their leader "until all is confirmed."

Dissolved

The headquarters of the Moorish Science Temple of America Inc. of Chicago, Ill., has been dissolved and re-established at 762 W. Baltimore since Jan. 15.

According to a release from the group those who "have the Chicago address will be subject to prosecution."
