So far, 1975 has been an excellent year for high school seniors who play basketball, as far as going to college is concerned. Tyrone McKay and Larry Gibson of Dunbar have signed with Maryland, Robert Valdesa of Cardinal Gibbons has signed with St. Joseph's, and Mervo's Tim Osborne is headed for the University of Missouri, just to name a few.

Several outstanding players for Towson Catholic and other schools outside the city, such as Towson's Larry Harrison, are also headed for big-time schools.

If college scouts are looking for some topline Baltimore talent, they can check out Walbrook's Nate Selman and William Smith, Northwestern's Tom Kinder, and Edmondson's Robert Alton, just to name a few.

Give a special eye to Milton Stanley, and to the entire Walbrook tennis team. Also watch for the tennis teams of Northwestern, Forest Park, and Northern.

More collegians seek 'hardship'

At least three more outstanding college basketball players have decided to follow the lead of Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley in seeking consideration as "hardship" cases under the National Basketball Association's method of early drafting.

Larry Fogle of Canisius, the leading college scorer in the nation two years ago; Ticky Burden of Utah, the nation's fourth top scorer this season, and Walter Luckett, who averaged 25.2 for Ohio University last year, have added their names to the list of ambitious pros.

In the weekly report on pro golf's leading cash winners, Elder is credited with $11,563 as earnings for the first three-and-a-half months of the year.

The only other black among the top 60, is Jim Dent, who leads Elder by nearly $1,300, at $12,852.

Dent is 55th on the list.

BACK TO BRAVES — Catcher-first baseman Earl Williams, as unhappy with the Orioles as they were unhappy with him, was traded to the Atlanta Braves Thursday for southpaw pitcher Jimmy Freeman, a minor leaguer, and cash. Williams performed of the trade as he was about to board Birds' plane for Boston at BWI Airport. He had not played in any of the O's six games to date

AL strike zone OK with May 'so long as they throw ball'

The four newcomers to the Orioles baseball club relaxed at lunch with the members of the Sports Reporters Association Wednesday at the Pimlico Hotel, and each displayed the sense of humor that is characteristic of most good athletes.

First baseman Lee May described his view of the "new" strike zone he is facing in the American League after nine years in the NL.

Pitcher Mike Torrez also gave his reaction to the "different target, and quipped about the weather that greeted him in his first start in Baltimore.

Outfielder Ken Singleton reviewed his "year of the hurts" and marvelled over the Bird defense.

And catcher Dave Duncan "exposed" the spitball techniques of his former teammate, Gaylord Perry.

It has long been contended that AL umpires do not operate with the same zones for balls and strikes that are used by their colleagues in the NL. The latter are reputed to favor low pitches while high tosses get more strike calls in the AL.

"I've played only five games in this league," said May. "but I don't think it will mean much as far as I'm concerned.

"All I want the pitcher to do is throw it up there, and it makes no difference what league I'm playing in. I'm going to be swinging.

"I don't play favorites; I go after anything I can reach."

• • •

Torrez, winner in his initial outing with the Birds, saw no reason to be concerned about the umpiring difference, if any. "High, low or in-between," he said "if the other guys are getting wood on the ball, you'll get hurt.

"As far as the 38-degree weather is concerned, I didn't mind it at all. That's a beautiful day in Montreal."

Torrez came to the O's from the Expos along with Ken Singleton in the Dave McNally trade.

• • •

"Elbow trouble, among other things, bothered me last year when I had the hurts," asserted Singleton. "In Miami it felt great, especially after I got to rest it a couple of days.

"I love this crowd of players and I can't believe some of the defense plays I've seen. I had heard about this Baltimore defense, but until I saw it, and became a part of it, I still couldn't believe

"With these fellows playing behind Mike (Torrez) and his sinker ball, he can be fantastic!"

• • •

Does Gaylord Perry throw the spitter? That was the inevitable question when the A-and-A period reached Duncan, who caught the big righthander when they were together on the Indians.

"In 1973, yes," was the reply. "He did not throw it last year, although he made good use of the psychological aspect. Opposing teams kept looking for it and Gaylord just rolled along winning with his fastball and forkball.

"He did throw it on the sidelines, though," Duncan continued, "because he didn't want to lose it.

— Asked how he got away with it, Duncan explained: "Gaylord loaded up in the clubhouse, mixing vaseline in his hair, on his chest, under his armpits, under the flap of his shoe, behind his ear and sundry other places.

"There was no way anyone could catch him at it because once the vaseline got mixed with his perspiration everything looked alike."

Now that Dave will be quoted in the papers and on the wire services, is he prepared to be knocked down when he goes to bat against Perry during Cleveland's visit next week?

"I said all that happened in '73, and that he stopped last year," was the replay to the AFRO query . . . LACY.

LEHIGH LEADER — Ralph Thomas of Washington, D.C. (right) has been elected manager of Lehigh University's crack wrestling team. The son of Mrs. and Mrs. Joseph S. Thomas of Lyman Place, N.E., will be a senior next year in the school of accounting. Lehigh boasts a 23-2 record and is the Eastern Intercollegiate champion having dethroned Navy. Shown congratulating him on his election is coach Thad Turner.

Sixteen-year-old Hubert Cuthrell III, Lake Clifton High junior, won the $400 first prize in the Big Sisters Club essay contest.

The $200 second prize went to Kris High, 18, Walbrook, who has already been accepted at Antioch College. The $100 first prize was won by Yvonne Croswell, 17, a Douglass senior, who is planning to enter the Air Force and become a certified public accountant.

• • •

The winners received their cash prizes, plus trophies, at an awards luncheon on Saturday at Morgan State College's new McKeldin student center. It was hosted by Dr. Thomas P. Fraser, interim president, Dr. Fraser and Dr. Roland N. Patterson, school superintendent, were honorary co-chairmen.

Present at the awards luncheon were principals, advisors, classmates and parents of contestants from the three high schools. All write on the subject, "Is Tomorrow Today?"

Judging was on the basis of coherence, unity, balance and purpose. Raymond V. Hayshert, Park's Sausage president, speaking for himself and the other two judges observed all the entries were excellent so picking the order of winners was difficult.

Judges did not know names or schools of contestants whose papers were labelled by number.

Other judges were Judge Robert T. H. Hammerman and Community College dean Christine J. Moore.

• • •

President Fraser and Dr. Patterson both commended Big Sisters and the schools and their administrators for their participation.

Dr. Fraser said congratulations were due to school principals for providing a school climate in which writing is given a high priority.' He urged students to consider writing as a profession because, "it will pay rich dividends."

Dr. Patterson offered special congratulations to principals and advisors of participating schools. They were: Lake Clifton, Bovce Mosley, principal; Miss Pat Hamilton, coordinator; Walbrook, Ms. Anne Emery and Mrs. E. Fordham; Douglass, Earl Hagan and G. Stills.

Other program participants: Dr. Paul Vance, associate superintendent of schools, who helped coordinate the program; Big Sisters Lillyan Slater, Credella White, Ernestine Press and Sara Giles.

William Bailey, Lake Clifton High Junior, electrified the luncheon audience with his singing of 'Holy City,' and 'In My Hands.' He performed without accompaniment.

The Rev. Robert Paulin, pastor of Roanel Heights Methodist Church, offered prayer.

Among special guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Roland Patterson, Mrs. Thomas P. Fraser, Mrs. Raymond Hayshert and State Senator Clarence Blount, who brought greetings.

Other Big Sisters who helped arrange the program were: Imogene Douglass, Glodine Adams, Burneita Fuller, Bernice Watson, Vivian Burnett, Norma Felder, Willa Bouldin, Grace Walker, Catherine Stanford, Gladys Packer, Dorie Wiggins, Ida Nicholas, Mae Chamberlain, Mamie Greene and Madora LoForse.

St. Matthews church gets new piano and organ

St. Matthews Pentecostal Church, 1944 Druid Hill Ave. recently purchased a new piano and organ for the church.

The church held a special dedication program with Mrs. Bettye Sweets presiding. The welcome address was given by Mrs. Mary Barnes. The Rev. Mrs. Dorothy Hines is pastor.

Among the ministers who participated on the program were the Rev. Samuel Hines, the Rev. Charles Harding and the Rev. S. Bullock.

Organist for the services was John Boston and Mrs. Margaret L. Toler was pianist. Solos were by members of the Sweet family, Mrs. Elizabeth Island and Mrs. Martina Hall. Others on the program were Donald Williams and Mrs. Irene McCray. Singing was followed by a silent prayer.

About 250 doctors and health professionals attended.

Carl Holman was one of the speakers at the panel discussion concerning, "Problems with Current Health Care Financing Systems and Suggested Changes."

Mr. Holloman stated, "It is estimated that at least 20 per cent of the population under 65 is wholly uncovered by any health insurance. Many of these are children and are poor.

"Medicaid covered about 17.4 million people in poor families with children in fiscal 1973. The poorer you are, the less likely it is for you to have health insurance."

Mr. Holman, who is president of National Urban Coalition, revealed, "Poor people put off going to the dentist and doctors because they are poor."

Dr. John T. Chissell is chairman of region II. Ms. Beatrice Smith is director of region II and Dr. Shirley R. Clinton is president, Monumental Medical Association.

A spokesman for the group stated, the sponsoring organizations believe that significant contributions towards setting priorities in the health care financing system can be made through the political and administrative decision making process when all concerned citizens are afforded an opportunity to learn and share their opinions.

The sponsoring groups, therefore, presented the forum wherein federal, state and local legislators and health officials, regional officers, health insurance representatives, hospital representatives private practicing physicians and other concerned persons met and discussed selected health systems, legislation issues, problems, progress and plans.
