Police seek suspect in 20th St killing

Homicide detectives are still hunting for a 19-year-old man who allegedly broke into an East Baltimore home last Tuesday morning and brutally butchered a woman to death.

Police state Miss Gertrude Parham, 1 9, 400 block E. 20th St., was found face down on her mother's bed with a knife wound to the upper stomach. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Her assailant, for whose arrest is a warrant is obtained, is described as tall and wearing black pants and black shirt. Investigators state they believe the suspect was known to the victim.

The family of the victim told the AFRO Wednesday they are unable to raise enough money to bury the victim. Donations are welcome and sympathetic readers are urged to send their donations through the AFRO LINE by calling Mrs. Steele at 728-8200.

Police said they found a handless four-inche knife on the living room carpet after the victim's mother had summoned them to the house. Detectives suspect the assailant entered the house through a rear window on the first floor.

Mrs. Pauline Parham, 43, the victim's mother, is quoted as saying she heard her daughter, sleeping in the bedroom next to her, yelling: "Someone is in the house," and heard her running into her bedroom.

As the victim hit the side of the bed face down, Mrs. Parham told detectives she observed a man with a knife entering the bedroom. The man put a knife to Mrs. Parham's throat threatening to kill all of them because "someone had put him to it," according to police.

After a while police said the suspect released Mrs. Parham who broke into a run yelling for help. Police theorize that the suspect entered through a rear window and that the fist attack occured at the doorway leading to the victim's doorway and her mother's.

Community education workshop

Educators, civic leaders, and interested citizens invited to attend the National Community Education Workshop being held Sept. 21-24 at the Sheraton Park Hotel on Connetieut Ave. in Washington, D.C.

The theme of the workshop is Community Education, What the Country Is Coming To, A Capital Idea. Here is an outstanding opportunity for parents, public service personnel, and professionals to learn o this new educational concept which is gaining popularity throughout our country.

The program offers visits to prominent community schools, blaits to governmental offices and national organizations, congressional visitations, speeches by national leaders, and small group workshops addressing community problem-solving and citizen participation in education.

Discussion topics include "Can Community Education Facilitate Interagency Cooperation and Career Development," "Can the Concept Make An Impact on the Quality of K-12 Instruction," "Community Education and School-Parent-Community Involvement," and "Analysis of Community Education for Newcomers."

Registration for the complete workshop which includes the registration fee, four meals, and resource material will be $25. There is also a special one day package which includes registration and materials, each costing $10.

A complete program is planned each day for interested community members as well as educators. There will also be special events including restaurant, night club, and theatre visits, and activities for children.

To obtain further information and the National Community Workshop pamphlet call Adult and Community Education in Baltimore at 396-6704.

Michael Davis' family hit by tragedy twice in month

Mrs. Etta Smith, grandmother of slain 20-year-old Harold Michael Davis, died Saturday at Sinai Hospital after a fall at her home. She was 63.

Her daughter, Mrs. Marie Davis, told the AFRO Mrs. Smith suffered the fall in the kitchen of her home, while attempting to walk down some steps. Mrs. Davis told the AFRO her mother had been ill for sometime and had been left very weak.

Mrs. Smith's death comes almost one month after a sniper shot and killed Harold Michael Davis in the 5300 block of Sinclair Lane on Aug. 11.

According to the report Mrs. Davis gave the AFRO, Harold was left sitting on a bench with a girl while her oldest son, amuel and his girlfriend went inside his residence.

While they were talking, a car pulled up and a man inside began shooting, killing Harold and wounding the firl.

Funeral services were held Thursday for Mrs. Smith just 30 days after the murder. She is buried in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mrs. Smith was born Jan. 17, 1912, the daughter of Samuel Murray and the late Mrs. Susie Matthew Anderson. She attended Dungar High School and was crowned "Miss Eastside" for gghe 1955 to 1959.

Mrs. Smith was a member of the usher boards of Christ Methodist Church and Timothy Baptist Church.

She was also formerly a member of the Sweet Beaulah Lane No. 29, Order of Reindeer, the Alphine Pledge Club, and Elizabeth Blair Palace, Order of Reindeer.

Mrs. Smith was planning to join the Cornerstone Church of Christ at the time of her death.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her two daughters, Mrs. Alice Rogers and Mrs. Marie Davis; her foster daughters, Ms. June Fergunson and Ms. Helen Crawford; two brothers, James Green and Thomas Anderson and a sister Ms. Laura Cornish.

She is also survived by 10 grandchildren, two great grandchildren, and one uncle.

Dr. Hytche named UMES head

Dr. William P. Hytche has been appointed acting chancellor of the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore.

A member of the Eastern Shore faculty for 15 years, Dr. Hytche has served in several important positions on the campus. When he joined the faculty in 1960, the institution was known as Maryland State College. He was an assistant professor of mathematics at that time.

Later Dr. Hytche became dean of student affairs and served in that position for two years during the tumultuous sixties. In 1971, he became head of the department of mathematics and computer science, as well as director of the 13-college curriculum program.

Recognizing his ability to organize and his talent for leadership, the University administration appointed Dr. Hytche acting chairman of the division of liberal studies in 1973. His appointment as acting chancellor of UMES became effective July 1, 1975.

Dr. Hytche earned his B.S. degree by majoring in mathematics at Langston University in Oklahoma from 1946-50. He continued his study of mathematics at the University of Heidelberg, Germany in 1951, and in 1967, earned the doctor of education degree at Oklahoma State University.

Married and the father of three children, Dr. Hytche lives with his family in Princess Anne, Md.

House fire suspect insane?

Anthony Lee Blackwell, 19, charged with six counts of homicide, six counts of burning with intent to murder, one count of arson and one count of using a molotov cocktail, pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in Criminal Court.

Blackwell, of 200 block N. Mount St., appeared in Court on Wednesday for arraignment before Judge Solomon Liss.

Blackwell is charged with the Laurence St. fire which claimed the lives of six persons. The court was told Blackwell has been examined by the doctor and is "capable of standing trial." However, a trial date has not been set.

Blackwell will remain in City Jail until he appears in court for trial. Those who perished in the alarm fire were Miss Rochelle Gwynn, 15, Miss John Lene Gwynn, 18, Edward Gwynn, 2; John Gwynn, 12; April Gwynn, 8; and Laverne Nelson, 18.

Man helps city youths find jobs

James King, a retired Civil Service employee of the Federal Government, launched a one-man campaign early in the spring to obtain summer employment for young men and women.

Mr. King, who lives in the 2400 block of West Lafayette Ave., said that he started looking for jobs for young people who, without the income from summer employment, would be unable to begin or, in some cases complete their college education.

Being a novice, Mr. King reported that he simply went through the telephone book seeking out large Baltimore firms who might have summer openings.

Finding one job here and two there, Mr. King finally made contact with The National Brewing Co.

According to Mr. King, and the figures were verified by a spokesman for National, the local brewing company provided jobs for a total of 45 of the young college students. While some of them might not have worked all summer, Mr. King said,

JAMES KING

"The National Brewing Co. went out of its way to help these young people and all of them earned some money which will be used in completing their college education.

"They deserve a lot of credit," he added, "and should be a model for other companies in Baltimore."

Inspite of the dwindling present economy he has found favor with business thanks to Mr. Enright, of National Brewing Co.

United Way sets 1975 kick-off campaign

When the 1975 United Fund-CICHA campaign gets underway next Wednesday, Central Maryland's largest, most efficient voluntary fund raising drive will again seek the Fair Share support of the entire community.

"Setting our goal as 'Fair Share Giving' again this year drives home the contributor the responsibility each one of us has to help support the work of voluntary agencies right here in Central Maryland," said Harvey M. Meyerhoff, 1975 campaign chairman.

Mr. Meyerhoff, long active in community and civic affairs, is president and chief executive officer of Monumental Properties, Inc.

"Fair Share" is a suggested level of giving which was arrived at after a careful study of giving practices by individuals at all income levels right here in Central Maryland, Mr. Meyerhoff added.

"The Fair Share study was conducted by a committee of business, labor, government and community leaders. Since 1972, the United Way campaign in Central Maryland has used Fair Share giving as its campaign goal.

Last year's campaign, the first to combine the social service, community and welfare service agencies of the United Fund with the health agencies of the Commerce and Industry Combined Health Appeal, raised a record $13.2 million, Mr. Meyerhoff noted.

"Even with the uncertainties of the past year, we are committed to carrying the United Way's Fair Share message to the 2.2. million people in the five-county city area served by the United Fund and CICHA, and work with them to again provide the much needed support for these vital human services."

This year's UNITED FUND-CICHA CAMPAIGN will provide funds to help support the operation of 95 voluntary health welfare and social service agencies in Anne Arundel County, Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Carroll County, Harford County and Howard County.

"Because of the wide scope of the campaign and the fact that so many agencies are supported by one effort, the United Way of Central Maryland is able to keep its fund raising costs to less than five cents of every dollar," Mr. Meyerhoff said.

An additional two percent is used for agency program service and only three per cent goes for administrative costs. Thus more than 90 cents of every dollar contributed goes to provide services in Central Maryland.

The kick-off ceremony is set for noon, Wednesday, September 17, at a luncheon at the Baltimore Hilton.

Included on the program are presentations by the Arena Players actors group, proclamations by the governmental leaders of Central Maryland's jurisdictions and ceremonies kicking off the campaign throughout the area.

Later meetings will kick off the campaign in each of five counties.

The 1975 campaign is scheduled to run through November 15, 1975 when a Final dinner is set for Baltimore county's Hunt Valley Inn.

Interim report meetings are salted for the Lord Baltimore Hotel on Oct. 15 and 29.

American Day parade

The mammoth 'I am An American Bicentennial Parade' is set for Sunday, Sept. 14. The event marks an official celebration of the nation's 200th birthday.

The procession will be headed by honorary grand marshals Henry Winkler and Donny Most, stars of the ABC-TV "Happy Days" show, and Mickey Mouse from Disney World as children's grand marshal.

The affair will be graced with the presence of city, state, and national government officials. They include Gov. Mandel, Mayor Schaefer, City Council President Walter Orlinsky, Comptroller Hyman Pressman, Sen. Mathias and others.

Also expected are branches of the military, veterans and ethnic groups in native costums and antique cars.

Family seminar Sunday

On Sunday, Sept. 14, 6:30 p.m., at Lake Clifton High School, Project Family Life will begin its series of panel discussions on the topic "Culture and the Family."

Sponsored by the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, the program will begin with presentations by the following panelists: Dr. Harvey Cox, professor of Divinity, Harvard University; Dr. Thomas Cripps, professor of History, Morgan State University; Arthur Pierce, assistant principal, Northern High School; and Dr. Ruths Sheffey, professor of English, Morgan State University.

Dr. Chester Wickwire, Chaplain, Johns Hopkins University, which will serve as moderator for the panel discussion. Focus on the impact of the arts, drama, literature, media, and film on the family and its values.

Preceeding the program, the Douglas Memorial Community Church Choir will sing. Coffee and doughnuts will be provided.

Future Project Family Life programs will explore the family in its relationships to religion, education, physical environment, politics, and institutional environment. The concluding session will deal with the past and future of the family.

All are invited to attend the series of programs. No admission is charged. Funds for Project Family Life were made available by the Maryland committee for the Humanities and Public Policy, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Campus queens have new image

By Benjamin M. Phillips

Traditionally a college queen was thought of as the most beautiful and popular woman on campus. Until recently this same idealogy has held true on black college grounds.

Black colleges across the country need full utilization of all its students, faculties, staff and representatives. This is particularly true when talking of the position of campus queen.

Requirements for the position have changed from being Miss Popular and Beautiful to being Miss Revelant. In short, the modern black campus queen not only has to be able to communicate a message throughout the community in which she serves, but also the student body which has elected her.

A good example of such a queen is Miss Bowie State, Barbara A. Livers, a senior in Social Work from Baltimore, Md.

Miss Livers conceives her role as Bowie's queen as being an ambassador of the school instead of a figurehead to be seen at the Coronation Ball and homecoming.

As she walked across the campus, she was eager to show-off the assets of her college which have changed drastically over the past few years. The tour was given in a spirit of friendship.

As beautiful as she is, Miss Livers presents herself in a very amiable poise manner. She looks at her title in this way:

"Being in social work, I feel more responsibility toward people—communicating with them and utilizing my title as "Miss Bowie State" not only to promote the college, but to transmit needs and questions between the campus and its constituents.

"As a woman, the dignity of my title allows me to advance the image of all Bowie women on campus."

Miss Livers intends to be a integral part of Bowie's activities in her last year. She is active in the Gospelaires, a student choir, and is a member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

Born under the sign of Libra, the 21-year-old is very much involved in all type of sports. As a matter of fact, as we walked across campus, practically everyone we ran into questioned her about sports activities of which she was eager to talk about.

"If it takes a racquet, I love it." Miss Liver is manager of Bowie's tennis team and an outstanding player. She is the campus' No. 1 Women's Table Tennis player.

After graduation, she hopes to find a position in the recreation department because she loves being active and involved in the field. In her spare time, she aspires to coach.

Miss Livers is a graduate of Frederick Douglass High School, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Livers of Baltimore.

Who is this pretty coed? Miss Bowie is her title, Barbara Livers is her name, and tennis is her game (or any facsimile thereof).

Black Caucus dinner expects 3,000; guest list is extensive

The fifth annual Black Caucus Dinner, to be held at the Washington Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C. Sept. 26-27 will honor two outstanding Americans, Paul Robeson, eminent composer, singer, and humanitarian, and Joe Louis, former heavyweight champion of the world.

Attending will be the 17 members of the Congressional Black Caucus. Chairpersons are: I. W. Abel, president, United Steel Workers of America; the Honroable Patricia Robert Harris, former U.S. Ambassador to Luxembourg; Ralph A. Weller, Cahirman of the Board of Otis Elevator Co.

Congressman Charles B. Rangel of New York serves the Caucus as its chairman. The keynote speaker will be Benjamin L. Hooks, of the Federal Communications Commission; Hal Jackson, Vice President of WBLS Radio, N.Y.C. will be the master of ceremonies.

Some 3,000 invited guests are expected to attend.

In addition to the special recognition of the two outstanding black Americans, the Caucus will also present its annual awards: the William Dawson award for Legislative Development, Adam Clayton Powell award for political achievement, and the George Collins award for community service.

Entertainment for the dinner will be the O'Jays, contributed by Gamble, Huff and Bell.

The Congressional Black Caucus and the Joint Center for Political Study will conduct an all-day workshop under the theme of "From-Changing Structures to Using Structures" (1976-1976).

The evening of the 26th, Gamble, Huff and Bell of Philadelphia Int., Inc. will present a benefit concert. Entertainers include Harold Melvin and the Bluenotes, M.F.S.B., Billy Paul and People's Choice. The concert is to be held at Capital Center, in Landover, Md.

Tables for the dinner are priced at $1,000. Tickets for the dinner are priced at $100 per person. Proceeds from the dinner are used to underwrite the legislative research activites and programs carried on by the Congressional Black Caucus staff. The objective of the Black Caucus is to utilize the legislative process to help bring about full equality for all Americans.

Toni Chavez is a first as campus queen at Morgan State University. In this photo she is proud to be seated by the University's memorial gate which greets all to the urban campus.

MISS MORGAN U.

On July 1 of this year, a long established black institution, Morgan State College, became Morgan State University. The change has been dramatic — one cannot expect the complete transition overnight. Simply, the critical time for this urban university is its first years.

The implications of this statement are far-reaching. More than any other college or university in the state of Maryland, Morgan will be watched closely because it is being tested. New responsibilities have been laid upon the faculty, students, administration of the school to prove that those who advocated the change and those who dreamed of the change were right.

There is no doubt that with a lot of hard work and cooperation, Morgan will pass with flying colors.

Within the campus, there are many dedicated personages who are working hard towards this goal. One of the most dedicated is Morgan State University's first queen, Toni Ramele Chavis from Fayetteville, N.C.

Even though her official crowning is not until October 11, Miss Chavis has been working hard since she was elected. To her, being Miss Morgan State University isn't a figurehead position.

In order for Morgan to be successful in its new role will require that everyone give their maximum effort — EVERYONE.

Miss Chavis has a long standing service record, ranging from acting with Ira Aldridge Players as a freshman, to assistant comptroller for the Student Government Association. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

Her guniune love for the school can be seen in her consistent enthusiasm to be involved in various activities. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P Chavis.

Myrtle Bailey Cockrell is the recipient of a scholarship from the Scholarship Committee in the evening college of Johns Hopkins University. Mrs. Cockrell, a fourth grade teacher at Robert Poole Elementary School in Baltimore, is a candidate for a Certificate of Advanced Study in Education. She is an honors graduate of Morgan State University (1965) and received a master's degree in Education from Hopkins in 1970. She has a daughter, Michele who is a freshman at Seton High School. They attend St. Martin's Catholic Church. (Photo by Leon Perskie)

Speaking of women...

A look at what Black women are doing in this area

Evelyn Douglass, wife of John W. Douglass, contendor in the race for comptroller, worked as her husband's campaign assistant. A Lawrenceville, Va. native, she is a graduate of Morgan State University, having majored in English. During the evening hours and on weekends during the campaign, Mrs. Douglass was found manning the telephones, distributing literature and accompanying her spouse at public appearances. Mrs. Douglass is a full-time administrator at the Department of Social Services.
