Rooting for Bears nets $5 for pretty senior

Pretty 21-year-old Paula K. Barge of Rockville, Md., was cheering Morgan to victory when they met Virginia State recently.

Miss Barge visited the AFRO with proper identification and collected her $5 prize in this newspaper's "Were You There?" contest. She had been spotted by AFRO staff photographer Ben Phillips.

In each edition of the AFRO photos are published of persons taken in candid situations at sports events or public gatherings.

You are leigible to win if your picture appears. Yo need only to visit the AFRO office with proper identification before the deadlines. They are Tuesday noon after the Friday yards late in the third entertains Virginia Union

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur (Mary) Barge, Miss Barge is a senior at Morgan and a sports enthusiast. She plays forward on an intramural basketball team for recreation.

"A schoolmate, Vincent Lewis, told me he saw my picture. Of course, I was curious and rushed over to the Student Union Building. I was quite surprised for Ihave never won any thing before," Miss Barge told the AFRO.

She said the sports section is her favorite in the AFRO and she thought the picture page of the Morgan game was "superb."

Miss Barge's brother, Arthur L., Jr., is a recent graduate of University of Maryland, College Park, and her sister, Carol, is a junior there.

THE BADDEST TIGER — Grambling's James Hunter (25) who was in the hair of the Morgan Bears all afternoon, knocks down pass meant for Michael Palmer (81) during course of 40-7 rout of the Baltimore eleven in Washington's RFK Stadium last Saturday. Hunter ran 80 yards for one touchdown, set up two others, intercepted one Morgan pass and otherwise proved himself the baddest tiger of the Louisiana lot.

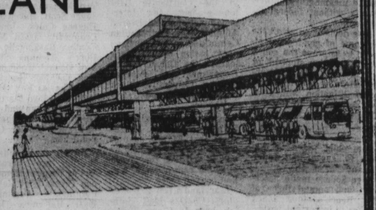
COLD SPRING LANE



Rapid Transit Station
OPEN MEETING

THE MTA
Will hold an Open Meeting to introduce interested citizens, community groups and businesses to the final design phase of development of the Cold Spring Lane rapid transit station. The purpose of the meeting will be to acquaint area citizens with the principal transit representatives who will be involved with the design of the station and trackway section, and to explain the steps required to design the Coldspring Lane Station. Citizens' questions and comments will be addressed with regard to the transit station, its utility and visual impact on the community area it will serve.

FINAL DESIGN TEAM
Will present the general activities to take place within the community in connection with the design phase of the Cold Spring Lane Station. An approximate time schedule for design and construction and for additional meetings with the community as design progresses will be discussed. It is expected that commentary from the community at large will assist the station Final Designer and Architects in addressing the concerns of community and business.

INTRODUCTION
This Mass Transit Administration Introduction Program on the Cold Spring Lane Station has been developed to accommodate the needs for community reaction and response.

All questions and requests for additional information should be directed to the Community Department of the Mass Transit Administration Rapid Transit Division.

Ali describes Frazier fight as 'the matador vs the bull'

By Vicente Maliwanag

MANILA (UPI) — Muhammad Ali said Tuesday he'll be as smart and as speedy as a matador when he defends his heavyweight crown against Joe Frazier Oct. 1.

Frazier, in turn, skipped his roadwork in the morning and said he was already in top condition and confident of knocking out Ali and regaining the heavyweight championship.

The champion and the challenger held separate afternoon workouts.

• • •

"He's in condition now?" Ali asked, referring to Frazier. "That's bad. He's ready too early. I've still got weight to lose. I'm not in top condition. I'll work out my two weeks and come out just right.

"You know why the matador beats the bull although the bull is tougher, stronger and bigger? The matador uses his brains. And with my brains, my speed, my knowledge, my timing, my reflexes, I'll win."

Asked what fighting advice he would give Frazier, Ali said "Just tell him to keep his head out of the way."

• • •

Near the end of his sparring session, two of Frazier's sparring partners, Willie Monroe and Scrap Iron Johnson, showed up at ringside and began taunting Ali, shouting that Frazier was the true champion and that he would close Ali's mouth forever.

Ali went into his act, climbing out of the ring and trying to go after them — half seriously it seemed — but naturally was held back by police escorts and other members of his own entourage.

A near fullhouse crowd of about 4,000 watched Ali's workout, with the ringside spectators paying as much as $1.50 to watch the 33-year-old champion train.

• • •

Luis Tabuena, chairman of the government's Games and Amusements Board which is promoting the fight, said that advance ticket sales, closed-circuit television bookings and other revenues showed the Oct. 1 bout will be a financial success for the Philippines.

He said the Philippines will pay $4 million in purses — $3 million to Ali and $1 million to Frazier — and is spending about $600,000 in preparations for the fight. However, a-buena said, estimates showed that the final accounting figures will show a net profit of about $1.5 million for the Philippine government.

• • •

At his workout preceding Ali's session, Frazier sparred only two rounds but logged seven rounds in shadow boxing, skipping rope and with the speedball.

• • •

Speaking of Ali, who has been repeatedly jeering him as a gorilla, Frazier said: "He's got to be nice to me from now on. It's a showdown. The damage has already been done. So we got to settle it on the four squares (the ring)."

When told that Ali was also mad at him for caling him by his former name, Cassius Clay, Frazier said "That's his name. I'm the man that knocked him down and then they called him by that name and I'm gonna do it again."

AKA MASTER DIPLOMAT — Muhammad Ali, also known as a master diplomat, plays his role to the hilt in this shot. Ali saw a little native girl running along ahead of his party as he did his roadwork Wednesday morning in Manila. The heavyweight champ playfully lifted her and ran with the youngster in his arms to her delight. Ali is training for his Oct. 1 title match with Joe Frazier.

Ex-Terp out

Rookie running back Louis Carter has been placed on the injured reserve list by the Oakland Raiders.

The former Maryland star had made a good impression prior to sustaining a knee fracture that will sideline him for the entire season.

'To be or not to be' that is O's question

Frustrated if not completely shattered by the split of the 2-game series with the Red Sox in Fenway Park, Oriole manager Earl Weaver called on history for strength as he and his Birds awaited tonight's (Friday) game with Milwaukee.

The Brewers are in for the first of the O's final six home games of the regular season. On Tuesday night, the Detroit Tigers open the last 3-game set.

Following the 0-2 and 5-2 decisions in Boston, Baltimore was 4½ games back of the division lead and able to claim no real shot at overhauling the Sox.

Earl Weaver calls on history

Earl recalled collapses of the 1951 Dodgers, the 1964 Phillies and last year's Red Sox, in adopting his never-say-die stance.

And one of his key players in Wednesday night's 5-2 victory, Tommy Davis, had his own experience to toss into the memory hopper.

"I was with the Dodgers in 1962 when all they had to do was win four of seven games to win th pennant," said Davis, the Orioles' eternal designated hitter who homered and scored two runs Wednesday night. "We blew it, though, and the Giants went on to beat us in a playoff."

As though hoping to bolster his own morale, Weaver pointed out that the Red Sox must win seven of the 10 games remaining on their schedule in order to clinch the division title.

And they're going to have to face Mickey Lolich, Catfish Hunter, Dennis Eckersile and Jim Bibby, said the Bird skipper.

Obviously, Earl overlooked the fact that his team has to sweep its last 11 games; and that the O's will meet up with the same quartet of tough pitchers.

The most positive approach for Oriole fans in their club's to-be-or-not-to-be-champions posture is a backward look to Baltimore's own performance of last September.

That was when the O's won 10 of their final 11 games—the last nine in a row.

Including tonight's (Friday) clash, Baltimore has 11 games to play . . . SAM LACY.

"Skill. Determination. Self-confidence. That's what it takes to wear these wings."

Navy Wings of Gold. They mean a lot to Lieutenant John Burton, from DeKalb, Mississippi. And they say a lot about him, too. Skill. Determination. Self-confidence.

After finishing college, John entered the Navy's Aviation Officer Candidate School. He worked hard, and it paid off. Now, he's a helicopter pilot facing new and different challenges every day. But, more important, John had what it takes to earn his wings and fly Navy.

If you're a college senior or graduate, the Navy offers you a program that can start you on your way to an exciting career in the field of aviation. It's called Operation Challenge. It all begins in Pensacola, Florida with the basics: the theory of flight, principles of navigation and Navy customs. From there, you'll be trained to pilot jets, multi-engined aircraft, or helicopters. You'll learn formation flying... take cross country hops...and fly at night and by instruments. The ultimate test is landing on an aircraft carrier. That means a short runway—and one that's moving. Sure it's tough, but we teach you to handle it.

There's more, too. After graduation, you'll work with a great team of professionals. Plus have a chance to travel...see the world...and have some fun. Call your Navy Operation Challenge Recruiter, Lt. Ron Jadlocki collect at 202-436-2072, or call toll free 800-841-8000. (In Georgia, call toll free 800-342-5855.)
