CCB seminar to feature women social scientists

In recognition of International Women's Year and the Bicentennial, the Community College of Baltimore Bard Library Seminars will feature this year three women social scientists in a series of lectures on American history, it has been announced by Mrs. Minnie Hoch, CCB Bard Library director.

Mrs. Joan Andersen, acting chairperson of CCB's Department of Social Sciences, will inaugurate the series on Monday, Dec. 8, 3 p.m., in the College's Bard Library with a talk on "Baltimore Women and Oral History: The Headmistress."

Mrs. Andersen is a member of the Organization Historians, the American Academy of Political Science and the Oral History Association and is coordinator of the Oral History Research Project at CCB.

She has contributed biographies to Maryland's One Hundred Notable Women and the chapter on "Consumer Law" in Teacher's Resource Guide for Consumer Education published by the Maryland State Department of Education.

In February, Dr. Elizabeth B. Warbasse, assistant professor in CCB's Department of Social Sciences, will talk on "American Women in the Revolutionary Period."

In April, Mrs. Barbara Murray, assistant professor in CCB's Department of Social Sciences, will complete the series with her discussion, "Should Blacks Participate in the Bicentennial?"

All Community College of Baltimore Bard Library seminars are free and open to the public.

Parents meet Dec. 8 at Northwood

Over 100 parent representatives are expected to attend the Region IV Parent Representative Meeting scheduled for Dec. 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Northwood Elementary School, 5201 Loch Raven Boulevard.

According to David Luber, regional specialist, the purpose of the meeting will focus on the roles and responsibilities of the parent representative.

There will also be a slide shown of the region as well as presentations made to the parents by the regional staff members.

Mr. Lee named coordinator with Standard Oil Co.

Dale G. Lee, urban affair representative for AMOCO Oil's 13 state eastern region has been promoted to the position of coordinator of urban affairs for Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in Chicago on January, 1976.

Lee has been active in many Baltimore civic programs. He was president of the prestigious Baltimore Frontiers Club, and recently stepped down to be replaced by George Carroll. He was on the Morgan and Howard University N.A.B. Industrial Cluster, the Business League Board of Director. He has worked with the AFRO-AMERICAN Clean Block Program, the Scottish Rites Masons of Carroline Street, the Maryland Conference on Social Concern.

In his new position at Amoco Oil, Lee will handle and coordinate a broader aspect of the corporate social and civic responsibility.

He along with his wife, the former Ethel Marie Robinson of San Antonio, Texas, and two sons Dale and Douglas Ashville Lee, will depart after Christmas for their newly bilt home in De Pauge County near Chicago.

• • •

Mr. Lee will be replaced by Hugh W. Bobbitt of Chicago. His new address is the Standard Oil Co. (Ind.) 200 East Randolph Drive, Chicago 60601.

The Frontiers Club will hold a Christmas dinner party and a salute to Dale on Dec. 14 at the Ramada Inn, Security Blvd. Those interested in attending should contact Samuel W. Marlow at 367-0818.

Douglass to perform 'Messiah'

The Douglass High School will perform Part One of Handel's "Messiah" and Hallelujah Chorus in the school auditorium at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4.

Bruce Horner will conduct the affair while a solo will be performed by guest alumna Miss Anita Courtney.

According to Mrs. Lois Wright, in charge of the performance, Ms. Jewel Burn will conduct the choir with Julius Tilghman as organist Muriel Fitzgerald, pianist; and instrumental accompaniment by the Douglass High School Band.

• • •

Soloists include Royce Marshal, soporano; Miss Anita Courtney, contralto; Carlois Williams, tenor; and Claude Lambert, bass.

Joseph takes over school board

Mayor Schaefer swore in Wednesday Mark K. Joseph as the fifth president of the Board of School Commissioners.

Mr. Joseph, well versed in urban, social, economic and governmental affairs, presided Thursday over the school board meeting, hearing such issues as Dr. W. Eugene Scott's presentation of the suspension rule and the controversial desegregation plan.

"I don't claim to be an expert on the school system or on education in general," Mr. Joseph said. "Right now I'm going to school."

• • •

Mr. Joseph pointed out he intends to do things his way and has no intention of trying to be like his predecessors Dr. John Walton and Norman P. Ramsey. He said he will do things the way he had been doing them in government.

"Current board members," he said, "come to an issue with fewer preconceived notions, sets of principles and guiding dogma. The result is that the board has a much more issue-by-issue pattern than one based on racial conflict."

• • •

Mr. Joseph said the board can make the difference in the school system by not trying to solve day-to-day problems.

"No group of lay persons who meet every two weeks can do that. The way to make a difference is to get the right people running the system. Of course, we have a tremendous opportunity now to do this in choosing a superintendent and it would be a shame to make a mistake," he said.

Mr. Joseph was confirmed as the new president Nov. 25, by the City Council after several weeks of controversy and speculation over his appointment.

Mr. Bennet to speak at Morgan

Lerone Bennet Jr., internationally acclaimed historian and senior editor of Ebony magazine, will participate in the Morgan State University Student Government Lecture Series at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 10, in the Carl Murphy Auditorium.

Born in Clarksdale, Miss., Mr. Bennet attended Morehouse College and worked as editor of the student newspaper, The Maroon Tiger.

He later joined the staff of the Atlanta Daily World where he eventually became editor.

In 1960, he became the first senior editor of Ebony magazine. In addition to his outstanding career in journalism, Mr. Bennet has managed to earn an international reputation as an outstanding historian.

Some of his books are: "What Manner of Man: A Biography of Martin Luther King Jr.," "Before the Mayflower," "The Negro Mood" and "Confrontation: Black and White."

Waxter to cite senior citizens

As part of the one-day workshop of the Maryland Advocates for the Aging and the Maryland Conference of Social Concern two outstanding senior citizens will be honored for their volunteer services at 8:30 a.m. at the Waxter Center Dec. 6. The workshop will develop a Continuum of Care for older people.

After the six workshops on home care, day care, sheltered housing, domiciliary care, foster homes and nursing homes; an action plan will be drawn up.

As the highlight of the day, the two outstanding citizens will be honored by the presentation of two certificates by Dr. Mathew Tayback, director of the Office on Aging.

The honorees are Albert Witzke who has developed the SECO organization and has labored to improve the quality of life for older citizens in southeast Baltimore and has served as the guiding spirit of this organization for many years.

The second honoree is Mrs. Grace Morrison of Carroll County, an active member of the Advisory Council for Title VII programs. Mrs. Morrison combines the qualities of devotion to family and devotion to community that make her an outstanding senior citizen.

Several other seniors will receive honorable mention:

Mrs. Gladys Johnson for her work at the Lafayette Square Center in Baltimore City; Mrs. Nancy Wiggins of Elkridge, Maryland who has been most active with the Howard County Commission on Aging and was instrumental in getting the Elkridge Senior Citizen Satellite started. The Rev. Irene Williams of Severna Park, Anne Arundel Co., Maryland.

In addition to her work as an ordained elder of the church, she has been extremely active in all Senior Citizen clubs in the area.

Allen C. Pzul of Annapolis, Maryland who has devoted the last seven years of his life to the implementation of the Food Stamp Program. He is also chairman for the Red Cross Motor Service in Anne Arundel County.

Levi orders review of King-FBI relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward H. Levi revealed Wednesday he has ordered a review of all "relations" between the FBI and Martin Luther King, including harassment of the civil rights leader as well as the investigation of his assassination.

Levi told reporters he has asked Assistant Attorneys General Richard L. Thornburg, head of the criminal division, and J. Stanley Pottinger, head of the civil rights division, to review the relationship between the FBI and King "an make recommendations to me."

Meanwhile, congress learned that J. Edgar Hoover and King held a "love feast" at which the FBI director warned King about the company he kept and King pledged help in FBI civil rights investigations — but their "unfortunate feud" continued.

• • •

Cartha D. DeLoach, former assistant to the late Hoover, told of the meeting in testimony before the Senate Intelligence Committee, which is looking into a second-year program of surveillance and harassment of King by Hoover's FBI.

His testimony came in a morning session. The committee arranged to hear three former attorneys general in the afternoon: William Rogers (1957-61), Nicholas Katzenbach (1965-66) and Ramsey Clark (1967-69).

• • •

DeLoach said he once went with Hoover to a meeting of the National Catholic Women's Press Club, where Hoover called King "a notorious liar."

DeLoach said he passed notes telling Hoover . . . "to either retract it (the comment) or say it was off the record . . . He told me to mind my own business."

He said King retorted Hoover was "becoming senile" — but a meeting between Hoover and King and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was held and went surprisingly well.

"It was more of a love feast," DeLoach said. "It was an amiable meeting between the two leaders. Hoover told him to be careful of his associates and King said he would do all possible to help in civil rights investigations."

But, DeLoach said, Hoover's animosity continued, and "it was an unfortunate feud."

Another former FBI official told the committee that Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy authorized a 30-day "trial" telephone tap of King in October of 1963, but it continued for five years until King was assassinated in Memphis April 4, 1968.

Courtney Evans, assistant director in charge of the FBI investigating division, said Robert Kennedy approved the taps — but not electronic "bugs" in homes, hotel rooms and offices — because Hoover suspected King of being under Communist influence.

Evans said he wrote a memo Oct. 7, 1963, giving the 30-day trial approval, and a memo on Oct. 21, 1963, extended it another 30 days. He said he did not know if any "Evaluation was was done — President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in that time (Nov. 22, 1963), and apparently the taps simply continued.

• • •

DeLoach said that when King, speaking during "great strikes and violence" in Albany, Ga., charged "Southern-born, reared and educated FBI agents could not be trusted on civil rights investigations," Hoover became angry at King.

"Mr. Hoover became very resentful of this because it was difficult to get information on civil rights," he said. "Hoover also felt this cast a slur on the integrity of the FBI."

Former Attorney General Katzenbach testified that J. Edgar Hoover risked the reputation of the FBI "this life's work" — in a vendetta against Dr. King.

Katzenbach testified he knew of telephone taps on King but was unaware of "unlawful and grossly improper" FBI tactics.

Katzenbach was questioned concerning three memos to him written by Hoover and dated in May, October and December, 1965. Each — using roughly the same language — informed Katzenbach that without prior authorization, a bug had been placed in a hotel room occupied by King in New York and removed within 24 hours.

• • •

Although Katzenbach said each memo contains initials "that appear to be mine," he said he had no recollection of receiving or reading them. If he had received such documents "I strongly believe that I would have such a recollection," Katzenbach said.

Clark gave no details of what he knew during his tenure, but said the FBI efforts were to destroy the desperately needed moral leadership of Martin Luther King."

Dec. 9 fete will honor Dr. Vavrina

Dr. Vernon S. Vavrina, retired deputy superintendent of 44 years of service in the public schools, will be honored at a testimonial dinner at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 9 at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Dr. Vavrina began his career in 1931 as an elementary school teacher. In the next 22 years he advanced to the position of principal of the Fortview Junior High School.

He also served in the classroom on the junior and senior high levels.

At Forest Park he was head of the history department. For a short time his day-to-day life in the classroom was interrupted as he successfully discharged the duties of assistant supervisor and then supervisor of history in the secondary schools.

His extensive background in both the elementary and secondary levels made him a logical choice to serve as principal of Roland Park Elementary and Junior High Schools.

In 1956 he was moved into the Central Office as director of junior and senior high schools.

• • •

Four years later he was named an assistant superintendent with responsibility for the administration of secondary, vocational and adult education.

In 1965 he was one of three named to the newly created positions of associate superintendent and was responsible for the curriculum and instruction of all levels of the system.

In 1973 with the advent of complete administrative reorganization of the Baltimore Schools he was named deputy superintendent, Bureau of Education.

• • •

Dr. Vavrina retired March 1, 1975.

At that time he summarized his philosophy of education gleaned from years of distinguished service when he said, "Undergirding my thinking about matters educational, is a firm belief in the personal worth and dignity of each individual, child, youth, adult. I want each person to have opportunities to discover, to develop, and to use his capacities; his 'gifts', his talents, and to share these with others."

For information about tickets to Dr. Vavrina's Testimonial Dinner, call Evelyn Albright, 655-7007 or Kenneth Horvath, 945-2154.
