Dr. Billy Taylor here for black film festival

By Ida Peters

Dr. Billy Taylor

Dr. Billy Taylor, pianist, composer, recording artist, actor, author, teacher will introduce the first of a series of film programs featuring America's most creative musicians at the Black Musical Film Festival, this weekend at the Afro-American Study Center, 14 W. Madison St. starting 8 p.m. tonight (Friday).

Stuart Hudgins, film archivist and illustrator is presenting the series the first of which is "A Tribute to Duke Ellington In Film" and "An Evening with Billy Taylor".

Hudgins says that one of the rare films to be shown, "Love You Madly" (1967) is a "really moving film, providing a personal insight into Duke Ellington's career as a composer, writer, band leader and lyricist".

He says the film was made while Duke was living at the Fairmount Hotel in San Francisco and writing "A Sacred Concert" for Grace Cathedral. This film produced by Ralph Gleason stars Duke and his orchestra, Earl 'Fatha' Hines, Dizzy Gillespie, Jon Hendricks and the Bunny Briggs dancers.

Other films to be shown include "Black and Tan Fantasy," (1929); "A Bundle of Blues," (1933); "Symphony In Black," (1935; "Jam Session," (1942).

The festival is being sponsored through the cooperation of the Maryland Commission for Black History and Culture. Admission is $2.

Dr. William E. Taylor is serving a six-year term on the National Council of the Arts and is a member of the N.Y .State Commission on Cultural Resources and the New York City Cultural Commission.

Recently elected a Yale Fellow, Dr. Taylor has given several seminars at Calhoun College, taught a special course on the history of jazz piano at the Manhattan School of Music and at C. W. Post College.

He is actively involved with community based musical projects such as Jazzmobile which last year produced and presented 125 free outdoor concerts in New York.

An outstanding jazz artist and performer he has had extended engagements at the Village Gate and performed with the New Jersey Symphonv Orchestra.

The second Black Film Festival on October 8-9 at 8 p.m. will feature Cab Calloway in person as well as his films. "Hi-De-Ho" and "Minnie The Moocher".

Duke Ellington and his Washingtonians, November 19, 1927.

The Ellington orchestra looked like this in 1940, the year the Downbeat poll said the Ellington orchestra was the second best swing band in the country. Benny Goodman was first that year.

Two blacks vie for Miss America title

Deborah Lipford of Elwood, N.J., a senior at the University of Delaware and Marion Watson, representing the state of Nebraska are among the contestants in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City which started Labor Day and ends with national television coverage on NBC-TV at 10 p.m. this Saturday.

For the first time the girls will be scored on their interviews with the judges. The interviews will count for 12½ per cent of the preliminary scores which decide the 10 finalists.

Albert Marks, chairman of the Pageant Board said there were from 200-300 black contestants among the 700,000 local contestants. This will make the first year two black girls made the finals.

'Say No To Rapist'

"How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive," a film which presents the rape prevention program developed by Frederick Storaska, will be shown at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, September 13, at the Pratt library's Fort Worthington Center, 2710 East Hoffman Street.

Executive director of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape, Storaska offers practical, constructive options that are readily available to any woman confronted by a threatening situation and emphasizes recognition of the human element and emotional make-up of both assailant and victim.

An important part of the library presentation will be the discussion following the film showing, led by members of Baltimore's Rape Crisis Center.

Senegalese film

"Emitai" (Lord of the Sky), a film written and directed by Africa's Ousmane Semebe, is set in a small Senegalese village at the close of the second World War. Based on actual events, the film tells of the French conscription of Africans for its army, and its cruel effect on the villagers.

The feature-length, color production will be shown at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, September 15, at the Pratt library's Fells Point Center 606 South Ann Street

An August 31 report from Sydney, Australia says that the coroner there has ruled the May 10 death of U.S. singer Kenneth Walker, 20, a member of the Platters, was caused by self-ingested methadone poisoning, but was not a suicide.

A detective had testified the singer was using heroin, but other members of the group told the coroner that they had never seen Walker use the drug. The coroner said it was obvious foul play was not involved, leaving a tacit conclusion of accidental death.

AND, in Baltimore Buck Ram's Five Platters have won another suit reaffirming rights to the Platters' name.

Federal Court Judge Stanley Blair enjoined Bernard Purdie and others from using the name, New Century Platters, in their performances and ordered them to pay $3,000. punitive damages.

Suit stemmed from May 9, 1973 when New Century Platters performed here at a local club.

• • •

In addition to Purdie, lead singer for the combo, defendants included Van Pressley Jr. of the group, Alva Ford Thompson, Alexandria, Va., booking agent; Metropolitan Talent Agency, also operated by Thompson, and New Century Corp. of Virginia, which manages the business affairs of Purdie's group.

VERONICA Porsche, recovering from her childbirth sequence of recent date here at the home of her relatives, assured by Muhammad Ali that he'll take gooe care of their child ... Walter Haye, the San Diego Chargers' first black PR man, now protocol coordinator for the San Diego Community College's educational cultural complex. I must say, however, I'd hate to have to sign letters with such a long title hanging out. But some of us love lofty and elongated titles, capitalized. Sounds big. Like something out of the Shriners—"Grand Imperial Potentate of Assembled Encampment of Exalted Knights of the Consecrated Mirages."

ROD McGrew grew to national heights in his first movie, McGrew, of radio station KJLH here, does not get shown in the new movie "Car Wash," but his voice is heard, with other deejays voices, in the film as one of the jocks whose programs come through all day long on the big speakers of the car wash where the pic was filmed.

Catholics condemn 'Drum' as unsavory

The U.S. Catholic Conference has slapped its "condemned" rating on Dino De Laurentis' "Drum," released by United Artists. Rating [illegible] the Conference views a film as completely objectionable on moral grounds for U.S. Roman Catholics.

In the Aug. 30 issue of "Film and Broadcasting Review," in which latest pix are scrutinized by the Conference, "Drum " is described as an "unsavory stew of sex and brutality that makes a ludicrous attempt to seem an earnest documentary on the evils of slavery."

Grand Jury jams

Dennis Edwards

By Frederick I. Douglass

Dennis Edwards nixxed the talk about leaving the Temptations, and embarked on a national tour with his longtime singing mates as if nothing had happened. It was Edwards himself who put a stop to the talk, which had erupted reputedly from Edwards himself. The group's new album, "The Temptations Sing The Temptations," is taking off in nice directions of popularity.

Meanwhile, Harold Melvin has regrouped and repaired. He moved his fractured singers over from Philly-International to ABC Records, recording under his own banner and releasing through the ABC distributive facilities. Current members of the Melvin Blue Notes now are Melvin, David Eboe, Dwight Johnson, Jerry Cummings and William Stratley.

Billy Rowe's office in NYC reports that Sammy Davis, Jr., will end his European tour with a big concert the night of October 4 at the London Palladium, featuring Sammy with the Nicholas Brothers, Billy Eckstine and the all-star orchestra of George Rhodes. Should be a great show, and our plaudits go again to Sammy Davis for making room in his shows for the dancing talents of the Nicholas Brothers. Their dancing captivated audiences all over the world some years back, especially through their appearances in movie spectacles. For a time the two Nicholas dancers were apart, but a couple of years ago they began appearing together once more in shows, like on TV's "Cotton Club 75" put together by Joe Adams. Then Sammy tabbed them for his Caesars Palace show in Las Vegas, and later for his international tour.

PAUL Winfield is happy over his reteaming with Cicely Tyson for Bob Radnitz's film production of "Alice Childress' book, "A Hero Ain't Nothing But a Sandwich." Radnitz says he's now ready to come out with "Let's Hope It Don't Rain," shooting title for the sequel they have filmed as a TV pilot for a "Sounder" spinoff. The "Sounder II" film, however, will not be presented on TV, but as a feature motionhouse pic. Taj Mahal wrote the music, and is again acting in the flick.

MICKEY Stevenson getting praises and brickbats with his new club musical "I Heard That," currently showing here at the Whiskey Theatre. The show, in lucid comedy, stars the singers Hodges, James and Smith. One critic wrote that one would have to be drunk to enjoy it, and apparently he was just that when he saw it for he said it was a lot of fun. Our stage critic Terry Fisher said she saw it under adverse conditions — her eyes were open. Of course, anybody could find fault with any show, depending upon the viewer's point of view, mood, bias and sobriety. But "I Heard That," playing in a night club where one can buy drinks, does not purport to be serious, legitimate stage stuff, simply mere nightclub entertainment. And that it succeeds in being. But when one invites stage critics to a nightclub jun ahow it is to be understood that such critics become slightly disoriented, feeling they are in the staid precincts of legit theatre and set to view "Othello" set to music with Roscoe Lee Brownes and Cicely Tysons jumping out at them with sheer thespic abilities from the stage. I'm sure Mickey Stevenson will not fancy himself a lofty stage producer after presenting his wild "I Heard That" here at the Whiskey.

Dee Dee was great on the "Tonight" show spot during Wilson's hosting, as great as she is nightly here in "The Wiz." Girl's a great singer. And Franklyn Ajae's new Little David album, "Don't Smoke Dope, Fry Your Hair," is not coming out with a brother wearing pink pincurlers on the cover. But Ajae comes through like a champ in the new "Car Wash" pic.

The premiere program of "Animals Animals Animals," ABC News' unique and exciting new children's series, hosted by Hal Linden, star of ABC's comedy series, "Barney Miller," focuses on the eagle, now a rare and endangered species. Airing Sunday, Sept. 12 (11:30-11:55 a.m., EDT), the program traces man's relationship with the eagle, from Greek Mythology through various civilization of the world right up to the present day, when the eagle serves as a symbol of peace and power on the U.S. National Emblem.

Film sequences shot in Ventura, California, of a wild eagle named "Lady" demonstrate little known facts revealing that eagles possess, in addition to keen senses, intelligence, personality, memory and the capability of problem solving. Although Lady had been in contact with humans for 6 years, she ultimately heeded the call of the wild, leaving her human friends to join her mate in the mountains.

Mike Smith plays Alton in the Baltimore premiere of Lorraine Hansberry's "The Sign In Sidney Brustein's Window" at the Fells Point Theatre, Oct. 8.

Joe Frazier, former heavyweight boxing champ is on "The Mike Douglas Show", Thurs., Sept. 16.

Grand Jury jams

Man, You should hear Grand Jury jam. You should have heard the sound rebound around Mother Lode's Wild Cherry Niteclub when Grand Jury boogied down, blasting forth from the stage electrified renditions of current hits as well as their own recording "Music is Fun to Me."

You should have seen the way the brothers and sisters reacted to Grand Jury's party hearty music by dancing until closing time and then walking out the door humming the group's popular record.

Many members of the crowd on the scene at the Wild Cherry said that they were going to follow the group to Morgan State University where Grand Jury was to headline an all-nite flick in celebration of Labor Day.

Grand Jury did an especially impressive version of "Free," a jam from the goodie bag of the Commodores. It was on this jam that the heavy brothers really demonstrated their thorough knowledge of music by blasting out some slick Jazz voicing for the brass instruments while the other members of the group provided a churning, burning rhythmic groove.

Finally the Jury got down to the business of playing their popular recording "Music is Fun to Me," a jam that has all of B-More rocking. The tune opens with a bouncy bass riff joined by wah-wah guitar sounds and voices chanting the song's title. When the rest of the band comes in, it's time to party because Grand Jury is really doing a heavy thing fade out and the members of the band jump feet first into a romping, stomping instrumental disco version of the song which features slickaphonic guitar and piano wizardry against a backdrop of a well orchestrated horn arrangement.

Particularly nice about the disco portion of "Music is Fun to Me" is the keyboard work. The song was composed by Lloyd Dorsey and Michael Taylor, produced by the members of Jury in collaboration with Ted Bodnar. It must be said that the group does the on this number. The voices guitars and horns do not come out as sharp as when the group plays in person. Additionally, the recording of "Music is Fun to Me" is slightly slower than the group plays in public. But it's a beautiful song and if the Grand Jury can have some re-mixing done, they just might have a nation-wide hit on their hands.
