LOTS OF LEVERS — Lew Bradford, an employee for the Board of Elections, demonstrates the way the levers work on the new voting machines. Although the new equipment voted differently than the machines it replaces, voters should not notice the difference.

New voting machines: not really different

The city has 280 new voting machines for the Sept. 11 primary election which are, as far as voters are concerned, exactly the same as the old ones.

The only difference, according to Gene Raynor, supervisor of elections, is the way the machines indicate results.

To obtain individual tallies using old machines, precinct workers had to read figures on the back of each machine.

The 280 new machines print out a written tally.

Raynor said although it is difficult to given an exact cost for the purchase of the new equipment because it was tied in with the cost of preparing all machines for Sept. 11, he estimated the new equipment cost "a couple hundred thousand dollars."

Abernethy elected head of state teachers' group

Rufus Abernethy

"Parents should view the teacher as a partner in rearing the child. It should be a mutual relationship between parent and teacher."

This was the comment made by Rufus S. Abernethy, newly elected president of the Maryland State Teacher's Association (MSTA).

At a press conference this week, Abernethy stressed the need for teachers to learn effective ways to discipline students. He suggested workshops that would better equip instrudtors with ways they can better handle their classrooms.

But he also pointed out that parents must be involved as wiell in the discipline process.

Abernethy, who is only the second black to ever head the 113-year-old teacher organization, is a veteran teacher with 19 years experience in the Anne Arundel County public schools.

"As educators, we must give children the best possible chance to develop their full potential," said Abernethy. "I know this is a big order, but we must meet the challenge."

He assumed the presidency of MSTA Sept. 1 following a year's service onthe board of directors as president-elect. Prior to his election to the MSTA office, he was a teacher at the Cape St. Claire Elementary School.

Abernethy, who will serve as preisent until Sept. 1, 1981, is a past president and vice-president of the Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County.

Schaefer raised $200 G's for election campaign

Mayor William Donald Schaefer has raised more than $200,000 for the mayoral primary campaign, according to financial reports filed with the Board of Elections.

Candidates in the Sept. 11 city primary were required to file their financial reports by Sept. 4. But election officials said a large number of candidates for city office had not filed their statements by the legal deadline.

Records show that most of Schaefer's $2000,326 war chest was raised at a $100-a-plate rundraising dinner last year. The dinner grossed $174,000.

Democratic mayor challenger Clarence Davis said he raised only $2,000. Davis did not file his statement Tuesday.

Comptroller Human Pressman reported raising $21,000 for his campaign compared to the $25,658 reported collected by his challenger, De-legate John Douglass, D-Baltimore.

Continentals provide fun for 400 campers

More than 400 youngsters attending summer camp at Camp Farthest Out were entertained during July and August by members of the Baltimore Chapter of Continental Societies Inc.

The Continentals brought movies, a magician, held an aerobic dance workshop, and provided shows featuring synchronized swimming, modern dance, African dance and ballet. The children also participated in disco contests, complete withspecial prizes.

Kach of the activities was complemented with refreshments provided and served by the Continentals.

Volunteers praticipating in the summer camp activities included dancers Melvin Cooper, Stephanie Powell and Annette Holt of the Baltimore City Cultural Arts Center, and 12-year-olds Stacey Mitchell and Valerie McNeil who performed the water ballet.

The 24-year-old service group, with 24 chapters in the United States and Bermuda, although national in scope, implements the main thrust of its program on local levels.

The members, in keeping with the purpose of the organization, dedicate themselves to the well-being of all socially and economically disadvantaged children and youth. The summer activities comprised part of their national HEER (health, education, economic, and recreation) program.

During the paast year the Baltimore chapter's charities included awards of two $500 college shcolarships to high school graduates, clothing for the House of Ruth, contributions to Camp Glyndon, Kings Landing Camp, Direct Search for Talent, Maryland League for Crippled Children and Adults, and a school shoe fund.

Mrs. Louise Mapp is president of the group. Members include: Mesdames Cathering Gross, Lillie Branch, Delores Young, Mattie Mumby, Deolores Sykes, Anne Parker, Audrey Harden, Priscilla Marshall, Odessa Dyson, Sevilla Carroll, Phyllis Thompson, an;

And, Margaret Turner, Serena Holmes, Sue Jones, Marlene Mohamed, Frances Branch, Connie Butler, Zelma Brown, Elmira Washington, Doris Smith, Mary Tucker, Helen Quarles, Helen Mae Chamberlain, Misses Daisy King and Emily Peck.

CONTINENTALS AND KIDS — Every year is the Year of the Child for members of the Baltimore Continentals pictured here preparing refreshments for youngsters at Camp Farthest Out this summer. MISSING — Patricia Watson, 12 was last seen Sunday, Sept. 2, when she left home to visit her girlfriend Crystal Relatives state she was wearing yellow pants and a black and yellow blouse. Patricia is 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. Her mother told the AFRO, "I try not to think the worse but my daughter has never left home." If you have seen Patricia call 396-2525.

Committee for children relocates

The Maryland Committee for Children has moved to a new, larger office on the edge of the financial district and near low income housing.

"We just wanted greater accessibility for the people we would like to serve," said spokeswoman Betsy Runkle.

An official opening will be held Sept. 9 with Mayor William Donald Schaefer officiating.

The committee has a center for recycling discarded industrial materials into toys and teaching aids and is involved in lobbying for better day care.
