Ministers endorse Davis

Three of the city's strongest religious organizations have announced their endorsements for the Sept. 11 primary election.

The groups which include the Baptist Ministers Conference, Baptist Clergy in Action and Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance endorsed Clarence Davis for mayor.

For comptroller, the groups chose John Douglass as the Democratic candidate and Rev. St. George Crosse as the Republican.

In the second district, Clarence "Du" Burns, vice-president of the City Council was bypassed and Nathan Irby and Calvert Milbur Jr. was selected.

Harold Dobson, nephew of Rev. Vernon Dobson who heads the Baptist Ministers Conference was endorsed along with Phyllis Douglass in the 3rd District.

Michael Mitchell was the only incumbent endorsed in the 4th District race. Newcomers Agnes Welch and Kweisi Mfume were also supported.

In the 5th District Anthony Robinson, Earl Banks and Norman Reeves were endorsed and in the 6th District Peggy Jackson and Gerald Manning were chosen.

A massive get out the vote rally is scheduled Sunday, Sept. 9 at Mondawmin Mall. The motorcade will assemble at 3:45 p.m. at the shopping center and travel to the Masonic Temple where the rally will be held.

Budget committee volunteers

The Columbia Council will begin its planning for the Fiscal 1981 budget.

The committee's purpose is to advise the Columbia Council on all financial matters.

If you are interested in where and how your assessment taxes are spent and how the financial future of Columbia will be shaped, the committee needs several volunteers. For more information contact Dick Rubinstein (997-8893) or Ed Harrington (596-5856).

Provident holds career seminar for students

Some 25 Baltimore City Public School senior high school students recently participated in a health career program at Provident Hospital that featured discussions with physicians, dentists, radiologists and a group of externs from Meharry Medical School, Nashville, Tenn.

Highlights of the seminar was a film entitled "Code Blue," a documentary showing why minority doctors are needed. In addition, the students were present when the Meharry externs, who have been practicing at the hospital this summer presented Dr. Joseph Miller, director of medical education, a plaque expressing appreciation for his dedication and leadership during their stay.

The program was coordinated by Dr. Oakley Saunders, vice president of Medical affairs, Provident Hospital Inc.

3 named assistant secretaries of health, mental hygiene

John L. Green

State Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene Charles R. Buck Jr. Wednesday, Sept. 5 announced three senior appointments, including a black and a woman, as part of major department reorganization.

John J. Kent will be assistant secretary for administration; John L. Green, assistant secretary for health regulation and policy analysis, and Adele Wilzack, assistant secretary for medical care programs.

Buck said the reorganization, which includes two new posts, is designed to provide more leadership and caps the search for outsiders with a broad knowledge of health care problems.

He also said the department has had problems because its programs were poorly cooordinated, lower-level administrators were not sufficiently supervised and minorities were not adequately represented at the assistant secretary level.

"These appointments will improve our ability to deal with important issues...and to gain a better understanding of the high-priority health needs of the citizens of Maryland," Buck said.

Kent, the only insider among the appointees, will move from the post of assistant secretary for medical care programs. He will be in chmarge of planning, budgeting and personnel.

Ms. Wilzack, thhe department's first female assistant secratary, is assistant commissioner of health, health services and aging for Baltimore. Her new job will involve administering the state Medicaid program for low income persons.

Green, is vice president for operations at Lutheran Hospital. He will be responsible for coordinating existing health programs and creating new ones.

Buck said the new positions filled by Kent and Green, which pay $43,000 annually, will be funded with money already allocated for other unfilled posts.

THE LADIES USHER Board of John Wesley A.M.E. Zion Church will hold the installation of officers and an award's banquet at Fred Water's caterers in Rockville, Md., Sunday. Thomas Washington, (C), chairman trustee board, and Mrs. Washington, are seated with other members of the Ladies' Usher Board as they hear Corina Moffit, president, Ladies' Usher Board, explain the purpose of the occasion. (L - R) next to Mrs. Moffitt are Julian P. Marshall, Helen Roundtree and Ida Jefferson on the (R). The Rev. Dr. Cecil Bishop is minister of the church.

CARDINAL'S PRAYER:

Pope's visit will bring 'closeness'

Washington is making elaborate preparations for services involving Pope John Paul II's activities in D.C. during his visit to six U.S. cities and the United Nations, Oct. 1

The pope is expected to celebrate mass for a large outdoor congregation in Washington, arriving here Oct. 6, and leaving next day for the return flight to Rome. He is also expected to meet with President Carter at the White House.

William Cardinal Baum, archbishop of the Washington Archdiocese has issued a statement which includes a prayer that the Pope's visit "will contribute to the spiritual wellbeing of all our people."

The statement says: "The Church of Washington rejoices at the announcement of the visit of the Holy Father, Pope John Paul II, to our country and our city.

"His visit will provide us with an incomparable opportunity to profess our faith in Christ Jesus. The Bishop of Rome is the successor of the Apostle Peter, His proclamation of Jesus as the Christ and the Eternal Son of God secures the faith and the unity of the church.

"He is the apostle who comes to strengthen our faith, as the Lord commanded Peter. We welcome the opportunity to celebrate and reaffirm the bond of communion that unites the local Catholic churches with the bishop and the holy Church of Rome.

"At the same time, we have in mind those who believe in Jesus Christ but who are not in full communion with us. We are thinking of the Orthodox Church, the bearer of ancient apostolic traditions.

"We consider also the christians of other communions who profess the Lordship of Christ and discover Him in the inspired words of Holy Scripture. May the visit of the Successor of Peter move us to offer our faith in the Redeemer of Man to all who seek God with a sincere heart.

"May the visit of the Holy Father also bring us closer to all who worship the One God, especially the children of Abraham whose scriptures we receive as the Word of God, and whose patriarchs and prophets we venerate.

"Finally, we pray to the Father of mercies to bless our country, and to grant that this visit will contribute to the spiritual wellbeing of all our people."

Black church subject of Seymour lecture

Dr. Martin L. Kilson, professor of government at Harvard University in Massachusetts, will present the first in a new lecture series sponsored by the William J. Seymour Pentecostal Fellowship of Howard University, Saturday, Sept. 15, at the university's Seymour House, 100 Bryant St., N.W.

"Black Intellectuals and the Black Church" will be the title of Kilson's address, the first in the William Joseph Seymour Memorial Lecture Series to be presented each semester by the Seymour Fellowship.

Beginning at 2 p.m., the format will include a formal speech by Kilson, followed by four respondents, and an open forum between Kilson and the audience. Respondents will be Kali Hill, president of the Howard University Student Association; Dr. James S. Tinney, Howard University assistant professor; Eugene Rivers, a student at Harvard and the Rev. Stephen N. Short, Pentecostal Chaplain at Howard.

Dr. Kilson is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the Harvard University faculty since 1961, a consultant to the Ford Foundation, and the author or editor of several books. He has also been a research fellow at Oxford University, and in West Africa.

Washington Cathedral hosts music meetings

Washington Cathedral will host two conferences on church music this fall.

The first, sponsored by the Washington Diocesan Commission on Liturgy, will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 14 and 15.

The conference will explore the two newest publications of the Standing Commission on Church Music, "Hymns III" and "The Book of Canticles."

Conference leaders will include James Litton, SCCM member and chairman of the Service Music Committee, and Raymond Glove, chairman of the Hymnal Revision Committee.

Registration, limited to 50 participants, includes meals, copies of the the publications and resource materials.

Additional informational may be had by telephoning the Rev. James Holmes, St. John's Church, at 347-8766 or Douglas Major, Washington Cathedral at 537-6216.

The second event involves the Royal School of Church Music, headquartered in England, which will sponsor a week-long conference on church music at the cathedral Nov. 12 to Nov. 17.

The RSCM has been the official organization for promoting church music in England for over 50 years, and is expanding its program in this country, stressing final choral singing for youth and adult choirs in all Christian denominations.

The theme of the conference, intended primarily for organists and choirmasters, is "Church Music: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Speakers will include Dr. Alec Wyton; Lionel Dakers, director of the RSCM; Allan Wicks, organist of Canterbury Cathedral, and Theodore Marier of the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School.

For more information, or registration forms, write John Van Sant, coordinator - Washington RSCM Conference, 333 Poplar Ave., Linwood, N.J. 08221.
