—Ebony Fashion Fair

The models aired the fashions with classy flair. Their modeling techniques symbolized whatever they were modeling, with modeling performance being at times, demure, at other times sensuous and sophisticated.

On stage for this year's performance was Baltimore's own Avalon Jackson. Others were: Paula Bond, Lisa Hall, Vicki Claytor, Valerie Hines, Christina Clements, Karen Dawson, Celeste Johnson, Nivia Souffront, Kathleen Swanson, Lisa Solwold, Glenn Biagas and Orlando Cruz Lozada. Models hailed from various states as well as from Puerto Rico.

Special highlight during the evening show's intermission was the Outstanding Achievement Award presented by Delta Soror Thelma Cox to Norman V.A. Reeves, 5th Dis. Councilmanic candidate. Mr. Reeves accepted his plaque with words of appreciation and lauded Delta on being civic as well as social.

The Ebony Fashion Fair is sponsored in Baltimore annually by the city's alumnae chapter of Delta Sigma Theta.

Their sponsorship of this affair enables them to continue its thrust for the betterment of education through scholarships, grants, student counseling, donations to the United Negro College Fund, revolving loans to area college and to the Distinguished Professor Endowed Chair. The latter pays the salary of a professor to teach at a United Negro College Fund institution for one year.

Chairperson for this year's Ebony Fashion Fair was Soror Mary Demory.

Hints For Homemakers/Inez Kaiser

How to cope with greasy, oily stains

DEAR INEZ: My son is an active "grease jockey," always tinkering with cars. So I have my hands full, trying to remove the grease and oil stains from his clothes. I've tried a number of different detergents, but none has done a good enough job to suit me. What can I use to remove these soils and stains? HARRIED MOTHER.

DEAR HARRIED MOTHER: Grease and oil stains, like those on your son's clothes, are some of the very toughest stains to remove. However, CONCENTRATED "all" works especially well in removing these stains, and that's the product I would use.

CONCENTRATED "all" can remove the difficult spots and stains. It's the best kind of powdered detergent for getting out the worst kind of dirt. In fact, it outcleans other leading powders on tough, greasy dirt.

That's because "all" has a special formula with concentrated cleaning power that starts to lift off tough dirt within seconds.

For extra-dirty grease or oil stains I suggest pretreating them by rubbing the soiled areas with a stiff paste of "all" mixed with water. You might also try using an extra one-half cup of CONCENTRATED "all" in hot water for these special problems.

The next time you shop, look for improved CONCENTRATED "all," which now contains new ingredients that show even better results with repeated washings.

CONCENTRATED "all" has a low-suds formula that works with your machine to get your whole wash really clean—from dirty sports clothes to wash-and-wear items. And its low suds help make for clean, clear rinsing.

DELICIOUS SYRUP WITH TASTY, BUTTERED FLAVOR

WITH COOLER WEATHER finally arriving, these Sunday mornings I now find myself either preparing pancakes or waffles for my family's breakfast. It's a hearty way for everyone to start the day.

To give added taste appeal to the meal, I serve MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S syrup, which is so thick and rich. In fact, it's twice as thick as the leading syrup on the market today.

No one likes syrup that runs all over the plate, as so many syrups do. MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S is so thick that it lazily rolls down the sides of French toast, waffles and pancakes.

In addition, MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S actually contains two percent real butter, which makes it the No. 1 buttered syrup.

The unique glass figure of MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S is easy to distinguish on the store shelves. So look for it when you next visit your grocery store.

HOW TO KEEP ACTIVE BODIES CLEAN AND FRESH

EVEN THOUGH THE mornings get cooler, the parks and streets are still crowded with people—young and old alike—jogging and walking every day. This adds up to a lot of perspiration.

Whenever we engage in any type of active sport, we are exerting lots of energy. And that's when we most need some extra help to get rid of perspiration odor.

Now, improved super-strength LIFEBUOY deodorant soap is the answer to everyone's problems in this area.

The new LIFEBUOY, with a super deodorant ingredient, now offers more effective protection than ever before. It washes away the sweat and dirt that collects on your body while exercising.

The protection against odors provided by new LIFEBUOY soap helps keep your body clean all day and helps you smell fresh, too.

What more could you ask from a deodorant bar?
