Korea's "Gathering"

Nearly 200 guests attended "The Gathering," a reception held Sept. 6 and hosted by Korea, Inc., one of Baltimore's rising modeling and design companies.

The gala 9 p.m. until affair, held at the new Baltimore 100 Club in the downtown Hilton Hotel, was given to thank the supporters of Korea, Inc.

Korea, Inc., headed by Korea Johnson and her brother, Gregory, recently held a highly successful bull roast and fashion show at the Hidden Valley Country Club in Baltimore County.

Guests at "The Gathering" mingled and munched on such delightful items as fried clams and oysters, cheeses and fruits.

During the evening, guests were treated to a fashion show by models who were on hand for the entire evening displaying those creations by Korea.

Little more than elbow room was left on the dance floor as people continuously crowded the floor, dancing to the latest disco sounds.

Among those who could be seen doing their stuff on the floor were Judge Robert M. Bell, City Councilman Kweisi Mfume, three local singers, Sandi Mallory, Allie Williams, Marlin and Walter Hawley, WEAA.

The evening ended on a rather sweet note with the cutting of a huge red and white decorated cake, which was passed out to each guest.

Korea, Inc. will be presented in a fashion show at Coppin State College Friday, Oct. 10 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Wine and cheese affair is being sponsored by the evening student government association and will be held in the Towes College Center.

—NAACP Unity Banquet

Mrs. Carrie Bowie, mistress of ceremonies, introduced head table guests.

Among them were the Rev. Benjamin S. Faust, Mrs. Lillian Jones and Mrs. Margaret L. Dyer, general Co-chairpersons for the banquet; Congressmen Parren J. Mitchell and Clarence Long, Senator Charles Mc C Mathias;

Also, Delegates Lena K. Lee, Walter Dean and Troy Brailey; Attorney Gary Singleton, John M. Wesley, Sam T. Daniels and Malcolm D. Potter, Co-Chair, Corporate Structure; Mrs. Enola P. McMillan, president, Baltimore Branch, NAACP and Dr. Emmett C. Burns, director, NAACP Region VII;

Also, the Rev. Marion C. Bascom, pastor, Douglass Memorial Church; Mrs. Pattie B. Galloway, Baltimore City Public Schools; Paul Showell, Dr. Elizabeth Murphy Moss; M. J. Brodie, the Rev. Sid Arnegn, Pastor, Faith Evangelical Lutheran Church; Judges Joseph Pines, J. Harold Grady and Robert Bell.

Also present were Dr. Yette's wife (Sadie) his children, Michael, 13, and Freddie, 10, and his niece, Evon Yette.

The Rev. Arnegn gave invocation and blessing. John M. Wesley rendered the moving Black National Anthem with guests chiming in.

The proclamation by Mrs. McMillan was followed by the creation by Mrs. Lillian Jones.

Both Malcolm Potter and Dr. Emmett Burns extended greetings.

Entertainment was provided by 1980 NAACP ACT-SO winners, Bernadine Mitchell, ACT-SO and bronze medalist, James Anderson, ACT-SO silver medalist.

Bernadine did the dramatically moving 'I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings'.

On a lighter note but just as dramatic was James' selection from the play 'Lovers and Strangers'.

The Rev. Marion Bascom introduced Dr. Yette, who, holding the audience in the palm of his hand, gave all much food for thought.

He spoke of the black situation in America in terms of its weaknesses and its strengths. "We are potentially a powerful people," he said, "But because we have forgotten the source of our power, we've bought the notion of 'disadvantaged'."

Yette referred to "our embarassing dependence on others." He admonished "Blacks earn now $125 billion yearly. Why do we beg? We are planners and discussers and money-spenders — not doers."

He stated fervently that blacks need to learn to depend on themselves. "Government ought to not to do for people what they clearly can and ought to do for themselves."

Yette decried: "Hardly any black organizations is free of white support. We lack unity of purpose."

He warned that unless we do take steps that will free us from dependence on others, we face extermination.

At various points of profundity during his speech Yette received applause, and at its conclusions, a standing ovation.

Following his remarks, Yette was presented a plaque for great journalistic achievement by Mrs. McMillan.

Others garnering honors during the banquet were Attorney Herb Singleton, who got a plaque of appreciation for service to the Baltimore NAACP, and Mrs. Pattie L. Galloway, who was presented a plaque by Delegate Lena K. Lee for service as a great Baltimore NAACP worker of long standing.

A memorial tribute was paid to the late Dr. William Watts, former Chair, NAACP Life Membership Committee by Dr. Elizabeth Murphy Moss, present Life Membership Chair.

Dr. Moss also recognized those present who now hold life memberships in the organization by having them stand.

Expressions of appreciation for assistance given in making the banquet a success were extended by Mrs. Margaret Dyer.

Following a solo by Gerrie Gates, ACT-SO gold medalist, who did an aria by Puccini the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Faust.

The evening was a memorable tribute to the NAACP and the great benefit it has been and still is for blacks.

Dorsey Family Reunion

Once again Labor Day drew the Dorsey family together for a day of fellowship and fun in Sykesville, Md.

Darnella Beard led the worship service and the president, Patsy Dade, presented the slate of activities for the day.

An air of emptiness was felt; one of the main roots of the family tree was missing. With the passing of Edward Dorsey, no longer will the family hear his personal greeting, "Welcome home, Children, children." The welcome was given this year by Thelma Jackson.

The business meeting immediately followed and included reports from the reunion secretary, Karen Kane; Historian, Edna Greer, the advisory committee secretary, Marjorie Dorsey, and finally the treasurer's report.

Each year many improvements are made to the Family Center. Additional shrubbery was planted to beautify the landscape. Other projects included new black topping and a barbecue pit.

Organized games were a popular activity. Rosie Hutchinson and her committee planned word games such as, "Penny Wise," "Shout It," "Priority" and "Concentration", followed by more physical activities which involved horse shoes, volleyball, basketball, square dancing, etc.

Younger children's games were planned and supervised by Charlotte Bland.

Pat Whalen and her helpers, satisfied everyone's appetities with a tasty meal.

Members of the Dorsey family polished and shared their talents. Marshall strummed his guitar. Myra Dorsey, accompanied by Faith Smith, filled the air with the chiming of bells.

Karen Kane, along with her father, rendered a clarinet selection. Brad Collins, on the sax, and Faith Smith, on the piano, combined their sounds to make beautiful music.

Sarah Dorsey and Louis Kane led the Community singing and the family ended the day with their traditional wiener roast.

In keeping with their motto, "Love, Peace and Harmony," the family said their goodbyes and are lookingeforward to another year at the family Center.

80th Birthday Celebration

Among the many friends and relatives at the gala affair were: James and Margaret Harris Sr., James Harris, Jr., Cecelia Smith; Alisa Reginald and Katherine Harris, Brett Harris, Darrell Harris, Kim Clark, Zelma Bailey, Gussie Lewis, Robert and Evelyn Dyson.

Also John and Fannie Ruchlet, Charles Cothon, Lillian Gooden, Mildred Holmes, Margarite Browne, Crystal Smith, Anthony Smith, Traeey Brown, Mary Hines and Dorothy Thompson.
