Provident Hospital honors outgoing board chairman

Mrs. Rosetta F. Sands, R.N., Ph.D., was honored recently at a lavish reception for her dedicated services as chairman of the Provident Hospital Board of Trustees.

Some 400 guests, including Dr. Sand's family members, colleagues, neighbors, church members and many other friends came to toast her.

When the honoree arrived at the affair by specially arranged limousine service, there were already some 150 persons there ready to proceed through the receiving line.

The receiving line included Provident's president, Thomas W. Chapman; Judge William H. Murphy Sr., new chairman of the Provident Board of Trustees; Oakley H. Saunders, M.D., vice president and director, medical affairs, Provident; Louis Bernard, M.D., dean, School of Medicine, Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn. and Mrs. June Caldwell, special assistant assigned to Provident from the National Institutes of Health.

The affair, hosted by the Board of Trustees, was held in the multi-purpose room of the hospital's Community Mental Health Center which was decorated in the color scheme of red and white.

Beautifully arranged floral displays adorned the room and tables which were delicately filled with an assortment of cold cut meats, crab balls (the size of golf balls) creamed scallops, exquisitely displayed steamed fresh salmon, a stuffed roast suckling pig (with an apple tucked in his mouth), butterfly fried shrimp, swedish meatballs, an assortment of salads and fresh fruits.

Accolades to the Provident Dietary department headed by Mrs. Lenora Booth for such an elegant menu and display.

Let us not forget the flowing champagne and punch fountains, the danish breads and pastries or the colorful petit fours. There were also two open bars — one on each side of the room — and live music by the Lionel Jiggets trio.

Judge William H. Murphy Sr. served as master of ceremonies for the affair and lead off special presentations by giving Dr. Sands a beautifully inscribed plaque from the Board of Trustees.

Thomas W. Chapman, Provident's president, presented the honoree with the hospital staff gift — a suit of designer luggage — followed by Dr. Nan Hechenberger who presented Dr. Sands a floral arrangement.

Dr. Hechenberger, a colleague of Dr. Sands, is dean of the School of Nursing, University Hospital.

Highlight of the affair was a special tribute to the honoree by the Baltimore Dance Theatre. The young adults — the men dressed in black tails and women in white dancing gowns — performed a classical jazz routine entitled, "Rhythms" choreographed by director, Eva Anderson. The talented young men and women were highly commended for their performance by rounds of applause.

The affair was coordinated by the Office of Public Relations and Development staff, Mrs. Helen M. Shaw, vice - president and Mrs. Michele McNeill, special assistant. Members of the hospital auxiliary served as hostesses.

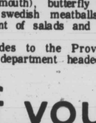
If you ask me



By Bettye Moss.

Do it anyway!

Hilda M. James, 63, was a specialist with the U.S. Housing Department before her retirement in 1971. She was a grand person.

In her leisure time, she spent many hours volunteering her talents and services.

It was a shock to family and friends when she was found dead in her Washington apartment on Jan. 10.

We were struck by the following verse entitled, "Anyway," which family and friends used on her funeral program:

People are unreasonable, illogical and self - centered. Love them anyway.

If you do good, people will accuse you of selfish ulterior motives. Do good anyway.

If you are successful you win false friends and true enemies. Succeed anyway.

The good you do today will be forgotten tomorrow. Do good anyway.

Honesty and frankness make you vulnerable. Be honest and frank anyway.

People favor underdogs but follow only top dogs. Fight for some underdogs anyway.

What you spend years building may be destroyed overnight. Build anyway.

People really need help but may attack you if you help them. Help people anyway.

Give the world the best you have and you'll get kicked in the teeth. Give the world the best you've got, anyway.

Orlando, Fla.

When we travelled to Orlando, Fla., last month with the official University of Md. party for the Tangerine Bowl, (where we lost), we never dreamed we'd get involved with local politics, but we did.

With time to spare before the bowl game, we visited what almost everybody does who gets to Orlando — its no. 1 drawing card — Disney World (billed as a $400 million amusement park).

If you get an opportunity to see this glorious land of make - believe, go see for yourself.

It's almost unbelievable that we would be standing at an entrance where the ticket - taker on duty was a tall, pretty black girl who turned to us for help. Here's what happened —

As we were waiting for a change in our ticket book a group of white young adults came up.

The ticket taker explained she could not admit them without further identification.

At this point, one male member of that party started verbal abuse of the ticket taker . . . with racial overtones too ("You people don't know what you're doing.")

After a hall day inside, we returned to the entrance area to find the black ticket taker reporting she had been notified of disciplinary action, and would we be a witness. Ho hum!

We took the ticket taker's name, Barbara Williams. We'd had several phone calls from Disney World investigators (who work out of what employees at the area call a city hall of its own.)

Since leaving Florida, we've put the young woman in touch with the NAACP president in her area.

In a recent phone call, he advised the association is on top of the case.

The NAACP exec is Mr. Willie Williams. The NAACP there is known as the Orange County branch. Mr. Williams says Disney World is one of the larger employees of black people. So is Martin Marietta, where he is employed.

Mr. Williams' wife is Marty, a media specialist in the public schools. They have two children, Stacy, 18, a freshie at Fla. A & M, where her parents graduated and junior who is 12.

People, things

People standing straight and tall in times of distress . . . you have to admire them.

Like a week back at the Baptist Ministers' Conference at Enon Baptist Church.

The incoming president, Rev. Leroy Fitts, had just introduced Rev. Harold Dobson, who was giving the Sunday School lesson. There was a thud.

Fellow Baptist ministers rallied to the side of the Rev. W.A. Hall, Nazarene Baptist, and longtime conference secretary.

There was no panic. The lesson went on, as several ministers aided the stricken pastor and removed him to an anteroom.

Glad to report that Rev. Hall is much improved and feeling better. Glad to note that in times of crises like this, minsters stand straight and tall.

Also standing straight and tall are Mrs. Samuel R. Owings (Barbara), and her mother, Mrs. Ophelia Moore (here visiting her from Tenn.

Word from their Nashville, Tenn. home tells of a fatal fire in the home of an uncle, Joseph Brown Moore. He perished.

Daughter, Deborah, suffered cuts and bruises after fall from upper window. She is an administrative aide of Tenn. governor.

OOPS! In this space a week back, we failed to mention that officers of Enon Baptist Church were the ones who prepared the family meal for members of the family of Gladys Jackson Parker. They did a beautiful job. Big Sisters, whom we inadvertently credited, gave the church gift in their member's name. Sorry.

More people

Clarence Dyson, the interior decorator, is out of the hospital, resting at home.

Best wishes to Provident Hospital for Samuel Adams, the elementary school administrator.

People doing nice things for others: Leone Felton gave a family - close friends surprise birthday dinner on Thursday evening for her hubby, Joe, at their Dennlyn Rd. home.

Dr. Dennis Tribble was surprised with party on his birthday last week, arranged by wife, Janice.

The Super Bowl television show sparked a number of gatherings in B - more on Sunday.

The George Judes (Vashti), entertained at Gatsby's.

Dr. and Mrs. George Woodland (Ada), had a group in their Columbia home . . . and people are talking about the large number who headed out Martin's West way.

And, people are talking about the very fine manner in which Isolene Crowner, chaired the League of Women Voters' evening trip to the Arena Players . . . so many people there who had not had an opportunity to visit their neighbors in the Inner City . . .

Wedding bells ring Saturday, Jan. 31, at 5:30 p.m., for Paul J. Beckham Jr., and Dorothea Carney Watts. Event is at Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church.
