District youths included

By Vincent Taylor

For the past few weeks, Joanndra Halliburton has been calling up and arranging meetings with high school and college students, churches, band members, and just youth groups in general. She is gearing up to mobilize the city's youth to take part in the Sept. 19 "Solidarity Day" demonstration.

She is a member of "Frontlash", the youth component to the AFL—CIO, and her job is to reach and strike a responsive chord in the youth in the nation's capital.

The "Solidarity Day" demonstration was conceived by the AFL—CIO and is intended to let President Reagan know that a number of his proposals and budget cuts are out of touch with the will of the common people.

Organizers said the key spark to have the demonstration took place last February when Reagan told AFL—CIO President Lane Kirkland that he, Reagan, represented the will of the workers of the nation and the union did not.

Throughout the nation, labor organizations and their sympathizers are gearing up for the march, lining up chartered buses and carpools to descend on the District Sept. 19.

The effort has drawn widespread political support. Leaders of civil rights organizations, church groups, youth groups, college students, and community organizations are joining labor in a many-faceted protest of certain conservative policies.

Haliburton has contacted the highly touted Mayor's Youth Leadership Institute, the leadership of the Washington Teachers' Union, and numerous other groups to forge a solid, young delegation to represent the youth of the city.

She is polishing plans now, so that when public schools start classes Sept. 8, she can address the student population about the significance of the march and what it means to them.

Petitions are being circulating calling for jobs, guaranteed civil rights, decent housing, health care, women's rights and voting rights, and "tax justice".

Three-by-five inch blue commitment cards are being desseminated seeking support for mobilizing for the event.

The issues hit home, she explained. "We lay it out to them what the issues are," she said. "These are things that anyone can relate to."

The issues could not be laid out any clearer than in the flyer outlining the proposed budget cuts.

Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds for jobs in the public sector are earmarked to be totally wiped out.

Student loan grants have been targeted for stricter eligibility requirements.

School lunch prices will go up. Stricter qualifications have been called for for those applying for free lunches. Some critics have argued that in some localities, the school lunch program will be stripped entirely because of an inadvertent result of reduced funds.

And the demonstration is just the beginning. An intensive lobbying effort will be conducted after Congress reconvenes to pressure Congressional committees to ease the pain of the budget resolution passed this summer.

Sixteen-year-old Kelly Lafayette, an alumnus of the Mayor's Youth Leadership Institute, said it is important that the message of the march be delivered to youth in the appropriate manner.

"Put it where it's going to affect youth," he explained. "Your allowance got cut back because your father got laid off."

He continued, "They (youth) want to know what's up, but they don't want anything heavy...They don't want a lot of rhetoric."

He said the youth contingent should be respected and acknowledged as an equal part of the coalition. They should not be divided from the rest of the group but should be perceived as competent individuals, he said.

NAACP plans confab

By James M. Abraham

Morgan State UniYersity and the Baltimore branch of the NAACP will unveil a new strategy for black electoral triumph at the first annual Leadership Conference, slated for Saturday, Sept. 12 at Morgan State University.

"We want to point out the need for and the skills necessary for blacks to assume leadership in the metropolitan area of Baltimore City. We are a predominantly black population, yet to date we haven't done very well coalescing the leadership to the point where we were able to get the things done that need to be done," said NAACp head Enolia MacMillan.

"This is a targeted effort to develop a systematic process of getting blacks to vote and informing them," said Paul Sbowell first vice-president of the organization.

Various black political scentists and community leaders, such as Dr. Alvin Thornton, Dr. Toni Cooke, Dr. C. Vernon Grey, Jesse Williams, Pat Quann and William Devance will lead a series of seminars which will focus on increased black voting patterns and a corresponding increase in black elected officials.

A View from Capitol Hill:

AN INDEPENDENT REPORTS ON WASHINGTON

By Gus Savage
Member of Congress

I must interrupt my reports from Africa to insert this urgent commentary on an event in Africa which occurred since I returned to the United States.

Angola has appealed to the United Nations for help in repelling the recent, large-scale, deep reinvasion of its territory and the continued occupation of Namibia by fascist South Africa.

Well, as you know, I just returned from visiting both South Africa and Angola, including a region of previous invasion by South African troops and American mercenaries. I met with Angola's brilliant 43-year-old president, Jose dos Santos, and he warned of this pending invasion. He begged to know why the United States insists on siding with South Africa, against practically all other nations of the world, on the question of Namibian independence.

My findings in Africa further convinced me of what are the two greatest dangers now facing Africa. First, is the neo-colonial greed of United States and European big business. Second, is the belligerent intransigence of the fascist South African government, evidenced by its reinvasion of Angola and continued occupation of Namibia.

I am ashamed to report, that the fascist South African government has been supported by the Reagan Administration in nine instances during its very first six months in office. Without these nine instances of U.S. encouragement, I do not believe South Africa would have again challenged the courage and committment to freedom of Angolans and Namibians.

After all, South Africa was defeated in its last American supported invasion attempt in 1979. In fact, while in Angola, I saw American-arms captured from South African forces.

Let me list the nine instances of the Reagan Administration's support of the racist, anti-Christian, South African regime. 1.) The Reagan Administration vetoed sanctions against South Africa, proposed last April by Third World nations. 2) It has upgraded military attaches between the United States and South Africa. 3.) It is training South African coast guardsmen. 4.) It is encouraging increasing United States investments in and imports from South Africa.

5.) It has established friendly sports relations with South Africa, as indicated by the United States granting visas to South African's Rugby team, to play in Chicago on September 19th, though South African sports representatives have been banned from Olympic competition and by all other African nations and most other nations of the world.

6.) Reagan personally has received top South African fascist leaders in the United States, and cooperation with South Africa, Reagan's Administration has evaded UN supervision, in Namibia.

8.) He has called for repeal of the Clark amendment, which prohibits U.S. military aid for South African-backed counter revolutionary violence in Angola.

9.) On technicalities, he is leaning on two prominent South African exiles: Professor Dennis Brutus, Northwestern University (with tenure of 10 years), is under order to leave the United States; and Professor Cosmo Pieterse, of Ohio State University (with tenure of almost 10 years) was refused a re-entry visa to the United States last fall.

It was a disgrace and a sin for Reagan to merely respond to Angola's plea by noting that the South African side of the issue should be considered, while even other Western world nations condemned the aggression.

I am happy to conclude by noting two major speaking engagements of mine, both scheduled for Sept. 12 in Chicago.

At 10.a.m. that Saturday, I will make my third public accountability report, on Operation PUSH's weekly rally, at 930 East 50th St. It will be broadcast by three local radio stations, and will be devoted mainly to my African trip.

At noon, I will address an open air rally in the Civic Center Plaza, against the appearance of South Africa's national Rugby team set for Sept. 19.

Incidentally, if you do not know, as much as my workload permits, I am available for speaking engagements anywhere in the country. Just phone 202-225-0773, or write to me at 1233 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Famous writer

the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Board of Directors; Mrs. Coretta Scott King of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Rev. Jesse Jackson at the 72nd national convention of the NAACP in denver bespoke the gravity of socio-economic issues facing 21 million black Americans and the nation's poor, young and elderly.

ALL AMERICANS

The dueling apocalypses that Mrs. Margaret Bush Wilson believes has been unleashed against blacks and the poor has, in fact, been unleashed against all 227 million Americans. The contaminent of the horrors of the apocalypse (viz., war, famine, pestilence, death) constitutes a supreme and imminent challenge for our total society.

It is an effort which transcends race and class.

The prodigious needs of black Americans and the poor and excluded dictate the imperative of a strong and vigorous Black Press in the present and future. The Black Press, as urged by its precursors and stalwarts of the past, must continue its powerful advocacy and support of human uplift and equal opportunity for all.

The "empty promises," correctly and trenchantly identified by T. Thompson Fortune 91 years ago must be transformed into demonstrate opportunities and relsies for the excluded and suppressed.

the Black Press remains a vital and redeeming part of this process in an era of disbelief, apathy and secil economic retrenchment.

ENTIRE NATION

The Black Press has made not only a singular contribution to $1 million black Americans, but to the entire nation through its forthright and indomitable advocacy of freedom and justice for all.

Langston Hughes' poem, "I Dream A World," symbolizes the fierce and irrepressible commitment of the Black Prese to freedom:

"I dream a world man
No other will scorn.
Where love will bless the earth
And peace its paths, adorn.
I dream a world where all
Will know sweet freedom's way,
Where greed no longer saps the soul
Nor avarice blights our day
A world I dream where black or white,
Whatever race you be,
Will share the bounties of the earth
And every man is free
Where wretchedness will hang its head.
And joy, like a pearl,
Attend the needs of all mankind.
Of such I dream -
Our world!"

THE BALTIMORE AFRO - AMERICAN, on the occasion of the 90th anniversary of its humble and proud beginnings, represents a heartening and buoyant exemplar of black newspapers througnout the nation.

Black America and the nation are well - served, to be sure, that the Black Press continues vibrant, strong and tenacious in its dedication to freedom and social justice which are demonstrable.
