Northwestern Hi. alumni launch fund raiser

A $50,000 fund raising drive to benefit Northwestern High School was announced, Saturday, March 20, at a celebration of the School's 15th anniversary, sponsored by the School's Alumni Association.

About 250 alumni, teachers, parents and students who assembled in the Grand Ballroom of the Lord Baltimore Hotel, witnessed the kick-off of the two year project entitled "The Northwestern Fund: Campaign for Excellence."

Mayor William Donald Schaefer is honorary chairperson for the fund raising effort. Henry G. Parks, Jr., founder of Parks Sausage Company and former city councilman, is honorary co-chairperson.

"The young people at Northwestern High School are very lucky to have a group of concerned citizens working to keep the educational programs alive in the City of Baltimore, especially when the Federal Government is cutting back on so much financial aide," Mayor Schaefer said in a statement read to the gathering.

The "Campaign for Excellence," believed to be the first fundraising effort of its kind on behalf of a public high school, is designed to establish a self-perpetuating trust fund.

"By 1989, the income from this trust fund should exceed $10,000 each year," predicted Alumni Association founder and president, Michael Waring Lee.

Mr. Lee, a 1971 graduate of Northwestern who now practices law with the firm of Mitchell, Mitchell & Mitchell, P.A., suggested this income could be used to supplement the reduced school budget in such areas as library acquisitions, musical instruments, athletic equipment and health care.

"This fund would make it possible to increase scholarships enhance faculty development by bringing nationally-recognized scholars to the campus, and hiring educational testing experts to devise strategies for improving student performance on college entrance examinations," Lee said.

Al Sanders, noted television newscaster, served as master of ceremonies for the program, which also featured recognition of three veteran members of the school faculty.

In presenting the honorees, alumni 1st vice president Arschel Morrell, Jr., said "these are the first recipients of three annual alumni association awards named in honor of Edward L. Goldsmith Betty Williams and the late Angelo Fortunato, the school's founding Principal and assistant Principals, respectively.

"The Edward L. Goldsmith Award for strong, steady and imaginative leadership was presented to Assistant Principal Warren Grant. The Betty Williams Award for dedication above and beyond the call of duty was presented to Language Department Head Elizabeth Harris," Morrell said.

The Angelo Fortunato Award for total school involvement was bestowed upon Business Education Department Head Hubert Simmons. Principal James T. Lamar said "it is a joy to work with these fine educators."

Highlights of the school's 15-year history were reviewed by Barbara Arnoff '68, Sharon Roberson Pinder '71, Denise Bates , and Lorenzo Bellamy '82.

City Councilman Michael B. Mitchell, representing Mayor Schaefer, presented a proclamation designating March 20, 1982 as "Northwestern High School Alumni Day in Baltimore City."

Greetings from the Governor and General Assembly of Maryland were extended by Del. David Shapiro, a 1973 graduate of Northwestern. Other public officials in attendance included City Councilmen Norman V. A. Reeves and Thomas J. S. Waxter, and Northwest Regional School Superintendent Kathleen D. Luchs.

Guests travelled from several out-of-town locations, including Washington, D.C., various cities in Virginia, Newark, New Jersey and Boston, Massachusetts.

The out-of-towners included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and Jeanette (Marshall) Watson, of New Jersey, who were high school sweethearts at the time of their 1971 graduation from Northwestern High School.

U.S. military aid to El Salvador Protest

More than 2,000 Baltimoreans joined the more than 20,000 demonstrators who marched to the White House in protest of President Reagan's El Salvador policies.

The protestors marched almost three miles in northwest Washington to Connecticut Ave. and onward to LaFayette Park where speakers denounced U.S. military aid for the Salvadorean government.

Richard Hill, spokesperson and coordinator of the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador in Baltimore was one of more than 10 organizations which made up the March 27 Coalition sponsoring the demonstration.

The March 27 Coalition which will disband was formed to draw other organizations to oppose the (U.S.) involvement, Hill said.

But his coommittee, CISPES, will continue to educate and be involved in other peace activities this sprin and summer, he said.

National black leaders who opposed Reagan's foreign policies were Rev. Ben Chavis, National Black Independent Political Party and formerly of the Wilmington Ten and Rev. Herbert Daughterty, National Black United Front.

Bob Lopez of the United Auto Workers and Dr. Helen Rodriguez, opponent of sterilization abuse of minority women, also opposed the president's support in El Salvador.

Hill said 12 buses left the East Stadium parking lot early Saturday morning. Churches and community groups participated.

School Notes

O's will win AL

By Sam Lacy

The writer is not in for slogans, although some adopted by the Orioles have been quite catchy.

This time around, however, it's a little different. Confidence in the Birds' ability to win it all in 1982, produces an "our Year is Here" battle cry.

This marks a twofold departure from the norm at the AFRO sports desk. Not since 1978, when the O's were picked to win (they finished fourth) have they been seen as pennant winners. They won in 1979.

Despite the gloom which seems to have gripped the media elsewhere in the city, the AFRO feels the infusion of youth on the left side of the infield (Lenn Sakata at shortstop and Cal Ripken Jr. at third base) will not be jurtful.

This desk regretted the departure of Mark Belanger and Doug DeClinces and wondered out loud whether their leadership in last summer's player strike had something to do with it.

But it was obvious that Mark had become strictly a late - inning defensive player and Doug was expendable because of the presence of promising younger Ripken. Moreover, the question - mark that is the DeCinces back dictated the trade for Dan Ford, a trade that has all the earmarks of an excellent one for Baltimore.

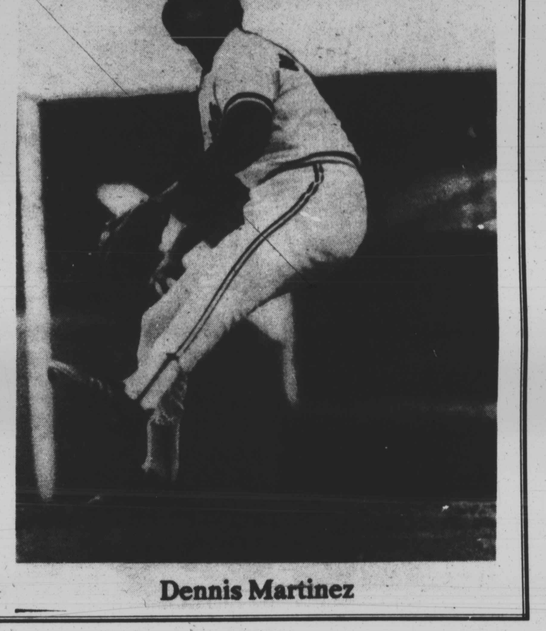

The pitching which suddenly has become suspect with injuries to Mike Flanagan and Steve Stone, plus the chronic questionability in Jim Palmer, is likely to attain adequacy with the blossoming of Dennis Martinez and Sammy Stewart, and the return of a no - nonsense Ross Grimsley.

"Our year," then is predicted to read Baltimore winning the American League East, with the Yankees (after changing managers again) second, Detroit, Cleveland and Milwaukee battling for remaining positions in the standings.

Our year is here!
