What you should know about investments

Taiman Inman, investment executive with Ferris & Company, Inc., member of the New York Stock Exchange, SIPC, at 1720 Eye St., NW., in an interview with the Washington AFRO - AMERICAN, this week, explained the various meanings of terms used in stock transactions.

Inman who is registered with the National Association of Securities, received professional training at New York Institute of Finance and Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut.

The questions and answers are listed as follows:

1. What exactly is an Investment Executive and what do you do?

I am licensed by various governing bodies, NASD, New York Stock Exchange, etsc., to give advice to clients on the suitability of various investment vehicles and to appropriately invest the clients monies.

More specifically I help clients earn money with their money through investments in Tax Shelters, Real Estate, Oil & Gas, Stocks, Bonds, Tax - free Bonds, Money Market Funds, Mutual Funds, Pension Plans, I.R.A.'s etc.

2. What is the Best Investment today?

The appropriate question is what is the ideal Investment approach given an individual Financial situation?

I first take a financial X Ray of an individual — what is the Income, Tax Bracket, Savings, Investments, ability to save, and most importantly I try and determine the goals & temperment of that individual. Once I have a total picture of the assets & attitude of an individual I will either develop a Investment program or advise the individual immediately on the course of action I believe is best suited

3. What is the cost of this Service?

It is free, that is to sit down and talk and have me develop an Investment plan there is no fee. The cost occurs when you actually decide to invest your monies. Some investment vehicles have commissions involved that the investor pays and with others there is no additional cost to the investor.

Thats the beauty of this business from a consumer perspective you can obtain valuable information without financial obligation.

4. What is the role of a brokerage firm, specifically Ferris & Company?

Ferris & Company is one of the leading Regional Investment firms in the area, having served the Washington community for fifty years. A brokerage firm's role is to be a middleman between the thousands of potential Investments, i.e., real estate, stocks, bonds, oil and gas, etc. and the general public.

At Ferris & Company our experts in each product area receive hundreds of potential Investment opportunities and determine which oil & gas, which stocks, real estate, etc. to offer clients the fairest and most lucrative investment opportunity.

Then they inform and train us the Investment Executives and we in turn choose those specific investment vehicles for our individual clients given their goals, attitude and time frame.

5. So when I sit down and speak with you I am receiving the full benefit of fifty years of Investment Experience?

That is correct.

6. Who are your clients?

50 percent from the black communities. Some are wealthy and others are poor. There is no typical client.

7. What amount of money does one need to get started?

If one is willing to save consistently you can accumulate money. I have clients with hundreds of thousands and those who save $50 a month.

8. Are blacks any different when it comes to Investing?

Yes! Only in attitude, you see most people know very little about specific investments regardless of race, income or educational background. The difference is they know they must save money and they save to invest it somewhere other than banks.

Blacks, on the other hand, don't believe in saving, have no knowledge about investments and very little trust in any one.

9. Taiwo how do you cope with this attitude?

I teach workshops, seminars, give speeches, talk about investing at every opportunity. Education is the key I believe if an individual can learn if I can create understanding then they will act on that understanding.

I will teach or speak to any church, any organization or group of ten or more people on any area of Investment for free. I only ask that they are open minded and serious about understanding money management.

10. Are there any final words for AFRO Readers?

Investing is not a luxury but a necessity. If we as a people are to have a better tomorrow we must stop this gross consumerism. We must use some of our money to create wealth for our families our communities and our future.

There is always an excuse for failure but we as people who spent over one half a billion dollar on alcoholic beverage and potato chips have no excuses.

Excuses! Excuses! build movements of nothingness those who make frequent use of them seldom excel in anything else.

Let us excel.

SBA moves to help small firms under a new law

Research and development grants in the amount of $275 million will be earmarked each year for small businesses under the Small Business Innovation Development Act, Small Business Administration (SBA) officials estimate.

SBA Administrator James C. Sanders said this week that within the next 120 days the SBA will be issuing guidelines for nine federal agencies to follow in awarding federal research and development funds to small businesses and to see that incentives are provided to convert the research results from small science and high technology firms into commercial applications.

"Small businesses have proved themselves to be more innovative than large companies," said Sanders. "Small firms, for example, have been responsible for more than half of the new product and service innovations since World War II. And almost every energy-related innovation of the past century has come from small business."

The Small Business Innovation Development Act was signed into law last week by President Reagan who said "small business is a tonic for what ails this country" and that by signing the Act "we're showing our resolve to unleash this mosti innovative sector."

Under the Act, the agencies — Defense, NASA, Health and Human Services, Energy, Transportation, National Science Foundation, Agriculture, Environmental Protection Agency and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission — must not only provide funding for small businesses but create a Small Business Innovation Research Program beginning October 1.

According to Sanders there is no minority set in the Act but minority participation will be strongly encouraged.

Sanders added that the Act will require that the agencies set-aside two-tenths of one percent of their research and development budget in Fiscal 1983, with the set-aside total rising to 1.25 percent in Fiscal 1987. The Defense Department must set aside one tenth of one percent of its outside R & D budget in 1983 and has five years in which to reach the 1.25 percent total.

Sanders pointed out that there is no minority set- aside provided in the act but that it will be strongly encouraged.

He also estimated that in Fiscal 1983, which begins October 1 between $30 million and $50 million in R&D funds will go to small firms with an increase to between $250 million and $400 million in 1986 and between $275 million and $450 million in fiscal 1987 when the Act becomes fully effective.

"While small businesses will benefit from this legislation, the greater significance will be the potential benefits for the government and the country," Sanders said, adding that he has created a special SBA task force to supervise the implementation of the Act.

He said in carrying out this responsibility, the task force will make sure that the paperwork and regulations will be kept to a minimum and be clear and simple emphasizing the needed "the lightest possible paperwork and regulatory burden on the small firms wishing and able to take part in federal research and development."

Black Africa seeks tourism

By Arnold de Mille
UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, NY — Improving a sagging economy is a prime concern for most of the Black African nations. Many of these nations are now looking beyond the horizon of their own borders for additional and new means to improve and increase their national gross income.

All of these nations are hard hit by the increasing world - wide inflation cancer.

One of the major industries which looms over the new horizon is the increasing lucrative international tourism, especially from the United States, Western Europe and Japan. Black Africa is now vying for a piece of that apparent gold.

This fact was brought into sharp focus at the recent 7th Annual Conference of the African Travel Association, an international organization of persons engaged in the travel industry, held in Lome, Togo.

In attendance were some 300 professionals from 23 countries, including Australia, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, China, England, Ireland, Japan, the U.S. and West Germany.

Also present at the Conference were official representatives from several Black African countries, among them being Benin, Garbon, Gambia, Guinea - Bissau, Nigeria, Zambia and Zimbabwe. Each government representative made a pitch on behalf of his - her country. The government of Togo was the host to the Conference.

The minister of tourism for the Republic of Zambia, Rodger C. Sakuka (Member of Parliament), presented the most progressive and comprehensive program designed to cut out a larger slice of the tourist traffic.

Beware of dividers

Murphy family to Schmoke efforts, Gibson had this assurance.

"The Murphy family, including the owners of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers chain, have been unstinting in their support, both reportially and editorially. This includes Judge Murphy's mother, Mrs. Madeline Murphy, whose column has consistently supported Kurt."

Gibson added there has been no evidence whatsoever the black political leaders in East Baltimore secretly are hoping the Schmoke drive fails and the same can be said of Raymond Haysbert.

Both factions, according to Gibson, went on record early in support of the Schmoke campaign.

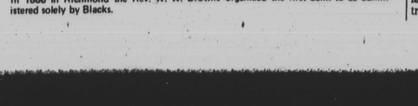
Having "set the record straight," Gibson then sounded what amounts to a chilling warning, which black Baltimoreans will do well to never forget.

"At best the author of the column is misinformed. At worst, it's merely another devious effort to divide and conquer," he said.

Larry Gibson is an intelligent and exceedingly perceptive man. I hope he is right.

Otherwise black Baltimoreans have learned absolutely nothing from the past bitter history of political exploitation and racial manipulation.

September 14th will determine if we have finally learned our lesson, or whether we, as a group, are still locked in the clutches of psychological slavery.



In 1888 in Richmond the Rev. W. W. Browne organized the first bank to be administered solely by Blacks.

—NAFAD

NAFAD was founded thirty - three years ago by Jeanetta W. Brown who feels the organization "is dedicated to the role of professional development in the vast fashion arena."

Fifty - eight senior members from Denver, CO. to Bluefield, WV competed in four categories for trophies of silver and mahogany.

The Hall of Fame is a division of NAFAD that allows a designer entrance if he or she has won three first place prizes.

Once in the Hall of Fame, designers compete for cash awards.

Baltimore's own Catherine Wooten now qualifies for induction in the Hall of Fame.

There were many exciting activities the delegates took part in once they settled in the Hollenden House Hotel on Superior and 6th Ave. in Cleveland.

Many receptions were held, including a cocktail party at the elegant home of NAFAD public relations person, Dargan Burns.

A visit to Dalton Mills offered much insight into the mechanisms of clothes manufacturing.

A lecturer from the Ameritrust Bank provided information on the ins and outs of "Investment."

A workshop on Millinery and Design provided more indepth fundamentals of fashion design.

Thirteen Junior NAFAD members participated in a junior fashion show as one of the highlights of the convention. In addition, Gloria Jennings coordinated and commentated the "Extraordinaire Fashion Show" which allowed members to contribute and display some of their own designs.

Also held that Friday, was the "Founders Banquet" where Catherine Wooten was installed as the Eastern Regional vice president and Jean Taylor installed as the national reporter.

The Baltimore NAFAD Chapter will soon be scouting the area for new and talented designers to join as members.

All interested professional designers should contact Jean Taylor at 448 - 2499.

Alma Wiggins of Washington, DC is national president.
