SEVERAL HUNDRED people observed the planting of an oak tree at S. Sharp and W. Hill Sts. in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., by civil rights activists Juanita and Clarence Mitchell and Archbishop Borders. The tree was planted next to an elm tree believed planted by Frederick Douglass as a slave as the mayor, city council president, Clarence Du Burns and other political figures look on.

counting on a large black voter turnout to counter Schaefer's popularity.

In a city that is 58 percent black and nearly all Democrat, Murphy has sought to mobilize THE BLACK VOTE WITH A CAMPAIGN THEME DENOUNCING THE THREE+TERM Schaefer as unsensitive to black interests.

In his 12 years Mayor Schaefer has been credited with the transformation of the city's Inner Harbor and other areas into popular tourist centers, as well as with the rehabilitation of a number of neighborhoods.

But Murphy claims that such projects have benefitted white business interests while leaving the city's black poor and minority-owned businesses out of the economic picture.

Also at stake in the Sept. 13 Democratic primary, considered the deciding forum because of the city's predominantly Democratic electorate, is the make-up of the city council, which could become black-controlled for the first time in the city's history.

Marchers say Reagan will get the message

By Barbara Rosewics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will be out of town, but organizers of this weekend's 20th anniversary "Jobs, Peace and Freedom" March on Washington say he had better mind their message if he wants to stay in office.

Tracing the footsteps taken by Martin Luther King Jr. in 1963, marchers will coverge on the Lincoln Memorial Saturday to demand not only equal rights, but also peace, jobs and aid for the poor, the national director of the anniversary march said Monday.

Del. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., said short-term goals for this decade's March include only one piece of pure civil rights legislation — toughening the fair housing act.

But he said one reason behind the demonstration is that key civil rights laws passed in the 1960s are being undermined and not being enforced by those at the command control of government today."

"I believe this administration, if it wants to remain in office," Fauntroy told a news conference, "may well change on issues of jobs, peace and freedom in much the same way it's about to change" on creation of a holiday to commemorate King, the hero of the 1960s civil rights movement.

After years of opposition in Congress, the House this month voted for a King holiday and sent the issue to the Senate. Reagan, who is in political trouble with blacks, also appears to have softened his position and now may support it.

Reagan will miss witnessing the march. He is scheduled to be vacationing at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch. Unveiling their Congressional wish list for 1983-84, planners of the march endorsed a bill sponsored by Sens. Charles Mathias, R-MD., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., bolstering enforcement of the Fair Housing Act. Fauntroy said that measure goes farther than Reagan's fair housing proposal.

Organizers also called for passage of a public works bill that promises funding for one million new jobs, an alternative to the administration's immigration reform bill and the Equal Rights Amendment.

In its foreign policy plank, the group called for defense spending cuts. It also endorsed legislation to cut off aid or new business for South Africa, which is ruled by a white minority, and to halt military aid to El Salvador unless the government negotiates with guerrillas.

The coalition is urging the Senate to follow the House's example and pass a resolution urging a U.S.-Soviet freeze and reduction of the stockpile of nuclear weapons.

The coalition planning the march avoided taking positions on abortion or gay rights because, Fauntroy said, "the issues are too divisive."

PUSH audit questions some expenditures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Education Terrel Bell said Friday that "further review" may clear up audits that questioned or disallowed nearly half of $4 million in Federal grants to a branch of the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Operation PUSH.

Auditors at the Education Department said that of $3,903,516 in grants to Push for Excellence — an Operation PUSH affiliate that deals with issues of education — auditors have disallowed the expenditure of $1,90,332 and questioned $1,005,407 spent on salaries, expenses and other items.

Grants from the Commerce, Labor and Health and Human Services Departments are part of the total, though the Education Department is overseeing the audits.

Executives of Operation PUSH failed to return repeated telephone calls and Jackson, scheduled for two appearances in San Francisco Friday, could not be reached for comment.

Douglas Ponzi, chief of the contract audit branch of the Education Department, said PUSH-Excel was provided with opportunities to comment on the audit reports and failed to do so.

Rights leader praises AFRO

By Charles Lewis

Amid controversy swirling around his head the busy chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights took time out to reflect on his athletic career while growing up in the District of Columbia and attending schools here.

Clarence M. Pendleton Jr. praised the AFRO - AMERICAN along with veteran and respected sports editor, Sam Lacy, for inspiring black youth by reminding them of the accomplishment of their peers.

Pendleton noted that District schools were segregated during his youth because of racial discrimination and black students attended what was called "neighborhood schools." He pointed out in a statement that black instructors were inspirational, but the net result in many cases left a mental scar that lasted long into adulthood.

CLARENCE PENDLETON

The civil rights chief said his participation in sports helped prepare him for desegregated living and enabled him to meet many other challenges; when he reached adulthood. He indicated that such past athletic experience develops a competitive spirit, ability to make quick decisions and to treat adversaries fairly.

Pendleton, a former president of the San Diego (Ca.) Urban League from 1975 until 1982, was appointed to the commission. The panel has since become embroiled with veteran civil rights groups due disagreement on job quotas and enforcement of court-ordered busing to achieve school desegregation.

Earl Jenkins

Earl Chester Jenkins, Sr. was born to Daniel and Donny Jenkins on July 7, 1905 in Florence, S.C. He died on Saturday, Aug. 13 at Union Memorial Hospital.

Memorial services were held at William C. March Funeral Home on Wednesday, Aug. 17. Burial was at the Maryland Veterans Cemetery.

Mr. Jenkins attended school in Florence and at an early age came to Baltimore.

In the early 1940's, he entered the army and later became a construction worker until his retirement in 1970.

Arriage came in 1961 to the former Frances Hughes.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, Thomas and Earl Jr.; two daughters, Denise and Gloria; four brothers, Lawrence Sr., Daniel, Moses and Daniel W.; two sisters, Minnie and Beatrice; eight grandchilden, five great-grandchildren.

Accountant/Attorney in Baltimore since 1976. We need to upgrade the schools' curriculum to bring it into the computer age and encourage continuing education programs to keep graduates up to date on current state of the arts in their chosen fields. The City Council should establish a system of rent control since this was mandated by the people in 1979. Also, a program should be established to prevent foreclosure proceedings against the unemployed. Maryland has proposed two Enterprise Zones for the 6th District, without guaranteeing that the jobs go to 6th District or even city residents. I will lobby to have this changed and watch to see who is actually employed.

Washington at Rhythm Skate. Early Birds at meetings won plants and 12 won push brooms courtesy of George Larkins Jr. and Roy Rogers Restaurants. At the June 20 meeting at Arena Playhouse speakers were Sedric Ware of the Walters Art Gallery, Judge Billy Murphy and Walter Thomas of the Penn-North Association.

AFRO Clean Block helped kick off the Murphy Homes Beautification Parade and M.J. Brodie presented the Clean Block with $2,500 to buy paint.

By July 1, 226 blocks were registered. We toured the Sixth District with Mrs. Marguerite Campbell and took pictures of trash in Leakin Park. Milton Branson Jr. of the Gas and Electric Co. "Button Up" program visited the meeting at McCulloh Homes July 1 to show residents how to caulk up doors and windows to save energy.

At meetings held at Dunbar High School we were greeted by Del. Hattie Harrison, Mayor of East Baltimore. At each meeting students enrolled in the Cultural Arts Programs under Norman Ross who entertained. They included students under Mrs. Rebecca Syndor Henderson; the Dunbar Jazz Band under John Lampkin and Urban Services Players under Bob Russell and Diane Nichols.

At Dunbar meetings Deputy Commissioner Bishop L. Robinson spoke on police problems in blocks and later had his public affairs officers and Captains talk individually with block leaders.

The last meeting of the 1983 campaign was Aug. 5 at the Arena Playhouse; 340 blocks were signed up and working. Workers and block residents signed up to march in the AFRO's 91st Birthday and 49th Clean Block Honors Day, at which time blocks showing the most progress received honor flags. This year 160 blocks received flags which cost $1,120.

The parade and birthday on August 12 was a glorious affair and 28 persons were honored for serving in the campaign for 10 to 49 years.

Lillo Thomas, the singer, flew in from L.A. to be Grand Marshall for the parade along with Midnight Star the singing group opening for Rick James that night at the Capital Center.

Highlight of the AFRO's Day at War Memorial Plaza was the presentation of a proclamation by Mayor Schaefer and the singing of the 50-voice CCB Chorus under the direction of Hugh Carey Jr. There were queens, city officials, AFRO executives as well as AFRO Murphy family members including grand, great-grand and great-great grandchildren of John H. Murphy Sr., founder of the AFRO Newspaper.

Jesse Jackson says Reagan anti-black

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Rev. Jessie Jackson has criticized President Reagan for widening the gap between rich and poor and representing an anti-black, anti - labor minority.

Jackson told 750 people at the California conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church Friday night that the Reagan administration has widened the gap between rich and poor and has "weakened our national resolve to be one nation."

Jackson accused President Reagan of representing "not the majority, but a well - organized minority" which is anti - black and anti - labor.

Jackson, who said he has not decided whether to become a full - fledged presidential candidate, told the conference that the 1984 Democratic convention could be the "time for change."

Black politicos should expect no blanket nod

ANN ARBOR — Black Americans say they will not give rubber-stamp approval to black political candidates, although many favor the formation of a separate black political party, University of Michigan investigators found in their National Study of Black Americans.

Researchers James S. Jackson, Phillip J. Bowman, Shirley J. Hatchett, and Gerald Gurin of the U-M Institute for Social Research (ISR) report that a majority of black Americans in the 1979-80 survey did not agree with the premise that blacks should always vote for black candidates, but said they would vote for the candidate with the best platform for blacks, regardless of party affiliation.

Sixty percent of the 2,107 black Americans surveyed in the nationally representative study disagreed with the statement that "blacks should always vote for black candidates when they run."

Sixty-nine percent of those interviewed identified themselves as Democrats, 6 percent as Republicans, 16 percent as Independents, 6 percent as neutral, and 2 percent gave other responses.

Most of the Independents and non-party identifiers were younger blacks, the U-M researchers report. When those who identified as something other than Democrat or Republican were asked which party they felt closer to, most said, they felt close to neither.

Eighty-two percent of blacks who identified with the two major parties said they would vote for the candidate with the best platform for blacks regardless of party affiliation.

Jackson, director of the ISR Program for Research on Black Americans, which conducted the national study, noted that following the Harold Washington mayoral victory in Chicago, critics of the election said that blacks were racist in not voting for a candidate because he was white, while voting for Washington because he was black.

"Our study suggests that black voters are more sophisticated than that," Jackson said. "They won't vote for someone just because he is black. They vote for candidates they believe have the interests of blacks at heart. This is a real example of interest group politics at work."

Jackson said it may be true that blacks are more likely to feel that black candidates may reflect the interests of blacks more than white candidates.

"However, when presented with white candidates who truly champion issues pertinent to blacks," Jackson added, "they will likely be receptive to them. And it is this aspect of black political behavior which will make the coming election an interesting one."

Prague peace meet pulls thirty black delegates

PRAGUE (UNIT) — Thirty black Americans joined 3,000 delegates from 132 nations this summer to protest against policies "that will lead us all to a nuclear war" if world leaders go unchallenged.

Attending the World Assembly for Peace, Life and Against Nuclear War, were persons from 1,843 national organizations and 119 non - governmental groups and inter - governmental bodies. Among the 30 blacks was Rev. Ralph Abernathy, columnist Ethel Payne, and Berkeley, CA. Mayor Gus Newport.

The black and Third World delegates made clear the connection between nuclear build - up and support for racism and "economic injustice." The blacks urged all delegates to come to Washington, D.C. on August 27 and join the "Peace, Jobs and Justice March" which will mark the 20th anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King's historic "I Have A DREAM" speech.

During a ceremony, members of the Czechoslovakian Peace Committee presented a plaque to Rev. Abernathy vn honor of Dr. King's contribution to world peace.

Representatives from Third World liberation movements explained that while billions of dollars go to weapons each year, and a large part supports "reactionary regimes," world hunger, disease and poverty is increasing.

Frank Chapman, president of the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, said dollars for war means more unemployed and fewer social programs for the needy.

Other topics during the week long conference were: the role of the United Nations toward disarmament; social and ethical aspects of the arms race, liberation movements, and expanding the peace movements.

The major press in the U.S. declined to cover the session as well as the peace rally here that attracted 200,000 supporters.

The Assembly criticized the Reagan administration for promoting the suicidal idea of "a winnable nuclear war." And, for planning to install first - Europe this fall.

Speaking to the opening ceremony, Romesh Chandra, World Peace Council president, called the gathering "a reply to those who do not want to listen. He charged that "a third world war would be the last, as all mankind would be annihilated."

An Appeal issued by the Assembly said the preparation for nuclear war is "the most serious crime against humanity." However, people for peace can and must influence governments.

Here are other highlights from the Assembly's Appeal:

Never before has the arms race reached such threatening proportions as today.

All formal peace talks are being blocked, while new weapons are being designed.
