Squeegee kids to be washed off streets

In a way it could be called a split decision.

Both sides got what they wanted and peace reigns once again within the Baltimore City Council.

A resolution in the three month old dispute over the fate of the squeegee kids, who captured the imagination of their supporters and incurred the wrath of their detractors came on Tuesday night during a special holiday session of the Council at City Hall.

It will more than likely change the face of the street hustling game here forever.

Not only will squeegee kids be confined to the curb in the immediate future but newspaper and flower vendors will face similar legally mandated restrictions.

The question now is, will the Baltimore City Police Department enforce all or only part of the law banning pedestrian solicitation, whether gratuitous or non-gratuitous, in city public streets.

That remains to be seen.

Despite its intent to nail down once and for all the law concerning pedestrian interference with the flow of vehicular traffic in and around Baltimore, Bill 609 was originally inspired by these clever squeegee kids and will be forever associated with the cause.

What happened on Tuesday night was simple. Both the majority and the minority opposition won their cases.

The end result was that an ugly, dangerous rift that saw black members of the City Council pitted against their white counter-

PROVIDENT HOSPITAL CRISIS:

'They're talking!'

Edmondson Senior High School students Tara Wilson (10th grader) and Ernest Anderson (10th grader) were part of several busloads of Baltimore City Public School youngsters who participated in an archaeological dig project at the old Mount Clare Mansion in Carroll Park on Wednesday. The project sponsored by the Baltimore Center for Urban Archaeology has been underway for several weeks and was organized in hopes of unearthing an 18th Century apple orchard planted by the late Charles Carroll.

By R. B. Jones

After months of escalating charges and counter charges and unprecendented actions, the two disputing sides in the Provident Hospital Medical Staff versus the Board of Trustees of the hospital and President Oakley Saunders conflict sat down to a dialogue Thursday night that both sides termed "productive."

The meeting, co - chaired by Dr. Uthman Ray Jr. and Rev. Harold Dobson, brought together Dr. Saunders, Dr. Earnest O. Brown, president of the medical staff at the hospital, Dr. Margaret Fountain, president - elect of the medical staff, both of whom have been barred from hospital grounds and numerous clergy, doctors and community leaders.

The meeting which lasted five hours, including dinner at the Manor House on Eutaw Place was considered progress in the bitter dispute that has plagued the hospital since November of 1984.

"What we were attempting to do by bringing the two sides together at the meeting was to save a beleaguered, dying hospital. We asked the two sides to put aside their petty differences," said Dr. Ray.

He added, "We asked both sides, 'If you love Provident Hospital, don't just say it, show it.' We had a constructive, structured meeting. The main emphasis was the survival of Provident. I think the meeting was positive because it got people talking who had not spoken in months."

Dr. Ray also told the AFRO that it was suggested in the meeting that Drs. Brown and

'China White' drug poses death threat to addicts

By Brion Tyson

Federal drug enforcement authorities are on the lookout for the deadly man-made pseudo-drugs which are reportedly responsible for a number of deaths across the country.

Alarmed by the recent death of nine people in the D.C. area caused by Sentanyl or "China White," an imitation heroin drug, state and local drug authorities have launched a campaign that will hopefully prevent a similar tragedy in Baltimore City.

Although no reported cases have surfaced in the Baltimore area, drug enforcement agent Bob O'Leary insists that there's need for drug users to be concerned.

"Often the synthetic drugs contain chemicals that make them many times more potent than the real thing. When a user is unaware of this, it's fatal."

Responding to inquiries of the drug seeping into the Baltimore area, O'Leary said, "It doesn't appear that Baltimore would be a victim of the kind of tragedy that occurred in D.C. Most of the heroin that enters our area comes from New York and not from California where most of the synthetic drugs are produced. New York dealers are the most sophisticated dealers in the country, it's highly unlikely that they would handle the phony drugs. However, there's always the possibility, and one shot is all it takes."

Sentanyl is among a number of synthetic "designer" drugs that are chemically produced imita-

$1,500 reward in missing Coppin coed case

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

"Dear God, please bring her home safely to us."

This is the anguished plea of the relatives of Miss LaRone Quinones McBryde, the 19-year-old Coppin State College freshman nursing school student who has been missing 11 days (today Friday).

The relatives, mother, grandmother and other close kin from as far away as North Carolina and New York, have posted a $1,500 reward for information as to the young lady's whereabouts, and/or her safe return to her home.

The reportedly quiet, well-bred young woman who so mysteriously disappeared from her grandmother's home, in the 5500 block Rubin Street, just off Northern Parkway, May 21, has not been heard from since. (Call Police — 396-2334 — for confidential report and reward.)

What makes it so amazing to her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth McBryde, there is absolutely no clue. The fact that the family has not heard one word from her is still more mysterious.

The family states that there is no suspicion that the young woman was robbed. Still where she left them are her purse, her wallet, her identification card and money in the drawer of her dresser. Her 1985 automobile is still parked in front of her house.

In all her life, the grandmother states, she has never left home without a goodbye or where she was going and never has she been absent without calling, "since she knows we would be worried."

A very particular person, neat, quiet and unassuming, Miss McBryde has never caused her relatives anxiety. Her mother, Mrs. Annie McBryde, told the AFRO Wednesday, "It is just not like her at all to be away with no one knowing where she is."

Mrs. McBryde, a Western Electric employee, moved to Richmond, VA. recently when the company switched her job. She always calls her Baltimore home Rubin Street and returns there each weekend.

The grandmother told the AFRO that the missing young

Youth Fair moves to W. Balto.

By Tea Montier
AFRO Staff Writer

The Baltimore Youth Fair which has had its carnival set up on the corner of Bond and Aisquith Streets in East Baltimore for the past two weeks is moving its location to the west side of town.

Spurred by what he calls a "real change in attitude" Rev. Willie Ray says moving the fair from east to west will allow more youth the opportunity to share in the positive benefits of a carnival atmosphere.

"I am moving the entire carnival to the Franklin Square Elementary School lot at Calhoun and West Lexington Street," said the carnival organizer. "The coalition has seen a real change in attitudes of not only the youth but the leaders of the community and the religious community as well."

Olympic Expositions Inc. will again be supplying their giant midway for the west side move which is being called "Baltimore Youth Fair II."

The westside carnival will open today (Friday, May 31st) and run through Sunday, June 9th. The carnival will be open after school hours, Monday through Friday, 5 p.m. to midnight and 1 p.m. to midnight on the weekends.

On Sunday, June 9th at 3 p.m. the 'Coalition to Stop the Youth Killing' is organizing a parade to start at the Mondawmin Mall parking lot and end at the site of the new carnival at the corner of Calhoun and West Lexington Street.

"Everyone with compassion and concern for our youths well being needs to be there," proclaimed Rev. Ray. "We need every student, teacher, parent and grandparent to be there. I'm asking you to prepare a banner, a sign or just come on out and show our youth our concern."

According to Rev. Ray on Sunday, June 9th, the 'Coalition' as well as carnival organizers will offer a special price for all rides also. To everyone who participates in the parade a one time charge of $3.00 will allow them to ride all rides from 4 p.m. to midnight.

Cat owners must get felines vaccinated

By Valerie Smith-Madden
AFRO Staff Writer

It's been said that a black cat crossing one's path is an unlucky omen.

But a rabid cat, whether black, white or checkered, crossing your path, and more importantly, coming in contact with you can be a deadly one.

Governor Hughes has recently signed into law, a bill that mandates feline rabies immunization.

Owners of cats four months or older, must have their pets vaccinated because of the rapidly spreading epidemic of rabies.

Rabies clinics are set for June 2, rain or shine, at the following locations: Mondawmin Shopping Center; Montgomery Ward, 1000 S. Monroe Street; Pimlico Junior High School; Gardenville Shopping Center;

Maryland National Bank, 5655 The Alameda; Erdman Shopping Center; H. W. R. Community Center, 3643 Falls Road, and Westside Skill Center.

The cost is $4 per cat or dog. For details, call the City Health Department, Animal Control, at 396-4684.

ASALH CONTROVERSY:

Court rejects Banks' bid to remain prexy

WASHINGTON

A federal court judge has refused to bar efforts by the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History's executive council to fire its president, Samuel L. Banks, the Washington AFRO-AMERICAN has learned.

In a five-page decision handed down last week, U.S. District Court Judge John Garrett Penn said Banks failed to demonstrate he would suffer irreparable injury if the court denies injunctive relief.

"Banks receives no pay for his services as president," the court said. "That he may suffer humiliation and injury to his feelings is not sufficient reason to grant the relief he seeks."

ASALH executive diretor, Bonnie J. Gillespie, refused to comment on the case. A Dwight Pettitt, Banks' attorney, said, however, since the court refused to get involved. "There is no finding that the executive council acted properly and therefore Dr. Banks is still the president."

No other details were available at presstime.

Banks had filed suit in March charging that the organization's executive council had no authority to remove him as president.

The council in February had voted to oust Banks as the national president after he supposedly failed to adhere to several policy recommendations made last October.

They also claimed he was ineffective as president and "was primarily responsible for the association's dire circumstances.

Banks was elected ASALH president in1982. His term was to have expired this December. He had claimed in his suit that the council's action violated its own constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations" by removing him.

He also sought $5 million in damages and an additional $10,000 to be set aside in a special account "for the purpose of fulfilling the goals and objectives of the organization."

Banks also wanted the court to remove all the changed locks on
