Welfare vs. truancy, is the proposal legal?

By Rosalyn M. Hamlett
AFRO Staff Writer

Despite the opinions of several highly placed public officials, students, educators, and two elected state legislators vehemently oppose any recommendations that would seek to cut welfare benefits to families where the problem of truancy exists.

State Sen. Troy Brailey (D-40) and Del. Hattie Harrison (D-45) were both concerned about the legality of such a measure. Del. Harrison said that legality is a first consideration and expressed worry that thinking is going along these lines.

State Sen. Troy Brailey declared, "I think it is a ludicrous proposition. I don't know how they could even determine who is receiving welfare benefits. This has come about mainly to embarrass black people. When something like this comes up, all the bigots seem to crawl out of the walls."

Sen. Brailey went so far as to place calls to the Federal Dept. of Agriculture. A spokesperson told him the only way anyone can take away food stamp benefits from welfare families, is to change the Food Stamp Act.

According to the policy

Patuxent inmate beaten with aluminum baseball bat

By Brion M. Tyson
AFRO Staff Writer

Mrs. Dorothy Smith became alarmed Monday afternoon when she heard during a radio broadcast that her 23-year-old nephew, Douglas Neal, a Patuxent Institution inmate, had been severely beaten with an aluminum baseball bat by another inmate.

"They didn't even contact me. After all, I'm Douglas's last known guardian. When I heard his name on the radio, I was shocked," Mrs. Smith told the AFRO.

According to Mrs. Smith, Douglas was sentenced to a 13-year term for theft and several theft-related charges in 1980. At the time of his run-ins with the law, he lived with his "Aunt Dorothy" in the 1900 block of E. 30th St.

He lived with his aunt because both of his parents were deceased.

Monday at about 10 a.m., Neal was playing basketball in the

Aunt Pauline is back on air

Having been granted 24 hours of broadcasting time, WEBB, in hopes of rejuvenating its station with some riches of the past, welcomes, once again, Pauline Wells Lewis.

"Aunt Pauline," as she is more commonly known will be on the air Mondays through Fridays, from 5 to 6 a.m. as host of her own special show.

Dorothy Brunson, owner of WEBB, said she wished to bring back some of those who "had made the radio station great."

When asked about her long career in broadcasting, Aunt Pauline said, "I'm still healthy and I expect to be around for many, many more . . ."

Provident-Lutheran merger 2/3 done

By R. B. Jones

The delicate negotiations between Provident Hospital and Lutheran Hospital for the merger of the two West Baltimore facilities are more than two thirds complete according to informed sources.

A key question remaining for the negotiators is how much of the identity of Provident will be maintained when the final agreement is signed.

One source stated that the name Provident might be delected from the name of the newly formed institution with Lutheran playing the role of the dominant force in the merger.

Another source indicated that Lutheran would control the departmental administrations and the board governing the hospital and that the name Provident might be deleted due to negative publicity about the hospital in the last year and a half including a doctors' boycott, soaring debts and bankruptcy proceedings, a nurses' strike and a highly publicized medical misadventure that left a routine surgery patient dead.

The question of the hospital's identity is key because Provident is more than just a business, it is a community institution subject to political pressure as well as the trends in hospital care procedures.

Many people both in the political arena and out want to see Provident maintain its iden-

City wants her North Ave. property—she's fighting it!

By Racine S. Winborne

Her first real battle came as a young child at the age of six when Rachel Tutt was just a first grader at School No. 149 and a classmate named Emily bullied her and stole her afterschool nickel.

The next major battle came at a mere 14 when she ran off to join in the fight for racial justice and was enlisted in the war on poverty teaming up with a faction of the Black Panther Party movement.

Today at 30, a mellower Rachel Tutt is waging what could be her toughest battle to date as she takes on the combined forces of this city government in a dispute over a four-story house badly in need of renovation and located smack in the midst of a very important urban renewal project.

The house at 327 E. North Ave. belongs to her, but the city has seen fit to condemn it, alleging that she has not done ample work on the property which stands in a block of mostly vacant four-story buildings, between the 1900 unit blocks of Guilford Avenue and Barclay Street, and diagonally across from the future home of the Baltimore City Department of Education's new administrative offices.

Rachel Tutt

Tutt has been barred from the premises since mid-March and has subsequently filed suit in Baltimore Circuit Court to try and force the city to return the property to her possession.

According to her side of this multi-complex tale, she purchased the property back in 1982 for $1900 because she wanted to live in the area where she had grown up as a youngster. It was her plan to occupy a fourth floor apartment and rent out the re-

African ambassadors coming to the fast

Ambassadors from four African Nations, African-American and area ministers will join Congressman Parren J. Mitchell and other concerned citizens in a 24-hour "fast," this weekend.

Set to begin at 6 a.m. on Saturday, May 10 in the gymnasium of the Community College of Baltimore, Liberty Campus, it will end 24 hours later at a picnic prayer breakfast, 6 a.m., Sunday morning.

This will be a major test of the ability and commitment of black Marylanders to assure the survival of the black family.

Sponsored jointly by the Maryland Federation of Organizations, over 100 strong (NAACP, Urban League, sororities, fraternities, et al) and the Young Democrats of Baltimore, it marks the beginning of the establishment of an endowment fund for the Maryland Black Family Plan.

Other beneficiaries will be African nations in need of medical supplies and the Maryland Food Committee.

Ambassadors from the four nations that have sent word they will join in the effort are: Mozambique-Valeriano Ferrao, Ambassador and Plenipotentiary; Ethiopia — Mr. Girma Amare, Second Secretary Charge D'Affaires; The Sudan — His Excellency Salah Ahmed, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary; and Angola — Mr. Toko Serao, Charge D'Affaires, Mission in New York City.

The Baltimore church community, including African-American ministers have announced from the pulpit their support in addition to "fasting," many preachers and members of their congregations, hopefully will join in the Sunday breakfast celebration at CCB.

During the "fast" of Saturday, church choirs, soloists and other

Black Catholics had old-fashioned revival

Rosalyn M. Hamlett
AFRO Staff Writer

"We black Catholics have been doing some funny things lately," mused Rev. Giles Conwill.

And so it came to pass when the Archdiocese of Baltimore hosted the first black Catholic Revival at the Basilica of the Assumption.

"You must become evangelizers to yourselves and enrich the church with your special unique gift of blackness," stated the late Pope Paul VI, while addressing an African audience.

That is exactly what happened from Tuesday, May 5 through May 7 at the basilica, located on Cathedral and Mulberry Streets, when over 1,000 black Catholics gave new meaning to the term "rock of ages."

Rev. Conwill, a native of Louisville, KY and a Jesuit priest, rocked the cathedral with his zestful and fervent plea to know Jesus of Nazareth and the Gospel intimately.

"We don't make enough fuss over Jesus, Rev. Conwill insisted, "How many of you have brought
