Cab Calloway

Jazz Institute of Coppin State College

NEW CULTURAL INSTITUTE IN N.W. BALTIMORE

The opening of the Cab 'alloway Jazz Institute at Coppin tate College brought a new ultural program to N.W. altimore. The Institute opening as jointly hosted by the Cab 'alloway Jazz Institute and the 'oppin State College Foundation oard.

The guests, consisting of the 'alloway family, trustees, aculties and donors of Coppin, ongratulated Mrs. Camay 'alloway Murphy, Chairman of he Institute, Dr. Calvin Burnett, 'resident of Coppin, Mrs. Greta urnett, Mr. and Mrs. Cab alloway, Chris Calloway and rs. Cabella Langsom daughters).

Leon Bridges, board member, ntroduced Mrs. Murphy, who oke of the historical prospecive of the Institute which began ith a proposal to the city in 1978.

She further stated that it was rovidential that this proposal id not materialize and that hrough the efforts of The onorable Clarence "Du" Burns hat the Institute with the comlete Calloway Collection will be ermanently housed at Coppin nder the auspices of the State of aryland.

The mission of the Institute inludes the preservation and proliferation of jazz music as an art form; establish an archive of Maryland Jazz History (the showcase being the total collection of Cab Calloway memorabilia as preserved and catalogued by Mrs. Nuffie Calloway); offer Saturday workshops in jazz improvisation to selected high school students; and offer adult education in jazz appreciation as well as concerts and performances.

Dr. Calvin Burnett explained the relationship between the College and the Institute, giving special recognition to the Hon. Clarence "Du" Burns, President City Council, Dr. Parlett Moore, President Emeritus of Coppin, Judge William Murphy, The Honorable Clarence Blount, and Chairmen of the Foundation and Trustee Boards of Coppin.

Cab Calloway was introduced by Billy Taylor, internationally-known pianist, who cited the contribution to "the music" made by Calloway especially as the leader of some of the most outstanding bands in the country. Taylor acknowledged that he studied the Calloway music as he launched his own career in jazz music.

Cab Calloway beamed his favorite smile and thanked the College while expressing his happiness on this occasion.

The ribbon cutting by the Calloways marked the official opening of the Collection at the Parlett Moore Library and also opened another site of black history for the City of Baltimore.

Background music for the occasion featured Christopher Brooks, guitarist (grandson of Cab Calloway), and Stan Sargent, bassist. They demonstrated their talent with several numbers from the Calloway era.
