Florida judge faces Congress

Judge Hastings battles impeachment

By Olive Vassell
and George Wilson

"This is the first time in history that someone who was acquitted is being brought before Congress, and who is it? a black man," said Patricia Williams one of the many lawyers representing Federal judge Alcee L. Hastings in impeachment hearing on Capital Hill last week.

And Hastings speaking after testifying before the House's Subcommittee on Criminal Justice — part of the Judiciary Committee — said, "if I was white this would not be happening," adding that he was "suspicious of the motives," behind the hearings.

"Congress is trying to go behind the jury and overturn its verdict," Williams said.

Hastings — the first black appointed to the bench in the Southern region was acquitted of bribery charges by a Florida jury in 1983. However, he could face impeachment for being involved in "alleged union and political corruption."

He is now being tried under a provision of the eight-year-old Judges Disability Act, which relates to the professional conduct of these officers of the court, following proceedings initiated against him by a group of judges in the 11th Circuit.

But according to Williams the act is normally used to investigate judges who are for example "senile or alcoholic." However, this is not considered a constitutional case.

It is this issue too which worries Hastings. He said the hearings raise serious questions about "judicial independence; how Congress conducts its business in reference to the removal of judges; and the collegiality among judges."

John Doar, chief counsel for the investigating committee for the Judicial Council of the Eleventh Circuit, said that new evidence concerning telephone calls allegedly made by Hastings would be introduced into the hearing, but Hastings denied that there was new evidence to be used. "Most of it was utilized in the trials where I was found not guilty," he said.

According to an unnamed source while "the standard of proof in court is high," whether or not Hastings is im-

Morgan graduation stirs student pride

By Alisa Samuels
AFRO Staff Writer

Finally.

After four-and-a-half years of final exams and late night studying, I did it. I graduated cum laude from Morgan State University.

What a thrill.

Although May 22 started off foggy and gloomy, the Almighty let the sun shine through and allowed 800 of us to graduate on the university's stadium.

There was wide-spread speculation among the graduates earlier on as we lined up, that it would rain on our parade and we would have to graduate inside a blistering and bulging building, instead.

But it was our day and not a single rain drop fell.

Hundreds of relatives and friends packed the football bleachers and shouted words of joy as the Class of 1988 marched in and out.

Marching in was like heaven and marching out was like super heaven.

I still can not believe it.

As I sat through the ceremony, my mind flashed back to when I was a freshman, waiting impatiently in long registration lines to begin my college studies and wondered if this was worth it. I know now that it has been.

I made my family proud, especially my parents, John

Civil rights pioneer Mitchell honored

Some 53 years ago, 1935, Donald Gaines Murray — was victorious in a law suit filed by the NAACP that saw him become the first black student to be admitted to the University of Maryland Law School.

This Tuesday afternoon, over 200 persons gathered on the north lawn as the most well - known building on the College Park Campus — The Administration Building — was dedicated and renamed in honor of the late University Board member and one of America's foremost civil rights leaders — Clarence M. Mitchell, Jr.

The historic dedication was held on the 34th anniversary of the landmark Supreme Court Decision, Brown vs. Board of Education, (May 17, 1954), which integrated the nation's schools.

Dr. John B. Slaughter, University of Maryland Chancellor, who presided at the ceremonies, and Dr. John S. Toll, President, spoke of the service Mitchell rendered during his tenure on the Board of Regents, 1982-84. Doctor Slaughter recalled that when Mr. Mitchell asked him to accept the Chancellor's position, he offered to consider the opportunity and to give an answer at a later date.

A patient Clarence Mitchell persisted, received the answer he sought, and Doctor Slaughter became the school's first black Chancellor.

Mitchell who for nearly 30 years was the chief Washington lobbyist for the NAACP and is credited with leading the successful passage of civil rights legislation in the 1950's and 60's, was affectionately known as the 101st Senator.

His friend on Capitol Hill during this period, Senator Charles Mc?. Mathias of 12-year-old's death shocks Frederick

By Ejike Obineme
AFRO Staff Writer

A young Waverly Elementary School student in Frederick went to the funeral services of a schoolmate without being accompanied by his parents. As the coffin was being closed, he passed out.

That was a scene at the Quinn AME Chapel Church Saturday, as a cross section of the city gathered to pay their last tribute to 12-year-old Jimmie Lee Lyles, who was gunned down last Tuesday on his way to school allegedly by his mother's former boyfriend, Sylvester Morris.

Frederick Police chief Keith Ashton said yesterday that the motive for the killing is still not known.

"The only one who knows that could be Morris, Ashton said, "everyone else is speculating."

What is known is that Morris, who got out of jail five years ago for killing his first wife, Betty Morris, was friendly with Gloria Lyles, Jimmie's mother.

For nearly three years, they both lived together in a North Frederick apartment but when the relationship did not work out they separated, and Lyles went to live in a new apartment in Waverly Gardens.

Lyles, at one time, told Mor-

Retired policeman dives to his death

William C. Mack, a retired police officer, Saturday night jumped to his death from the 6th floor of the Wyman Park Medical Center, one day after his 46th birthday. Mack, who had committed himself to the hospital, where he had stayed for over two weeks, was due to be released last Sunday.

Before committing himself to the hospital for reasons he did not disclose to anyone in the security department of the Baltimore City Sheriff's Department where he worked. Mack was described as a God-fearing man who always talked about the Bible by his boss.

The chief of security at the Sheriff's Dept., Willie A. Cheeks, who had known Mack for about 18 years, also described him as a conscientious, quiet and a regular family man, who performed his duty well. He said nobody he was aware of at the department, knew of any problem that could have made Mack take his own life.

Mack's hospital roommate, Arthur Edwards told the police that Mack had been depressed and withdrawn, but had never mentioned suicide. Edwards said he last saw Mack in a meeting-room, where they both attended a lecture, about 15 minutes before he jumped.

Hospital security officers had received a call from unknown sources that someone had jumped out off the building. The police was then notified.

When Police Officer Charles Nelson arrived, an ambulance crew and two hospital people were already administering mouth to mouth resuscitation on Mack.

AFRO Editor Art Carter dies

Arthur (Art) Carter, former publisher of the Washington AFRO-AMERICAN, died Sunday, May 22 at the Washington Hospital Center after a lingering illness.

Funeral services will be held, 11 A.M. Friday at Simpson Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison Sts., NW. The body will be on view, 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursday at the church.

A native Washingtonian, Mr. Carter was educated in the D.C public schools. He was a graduate of Howard University and LaSalle University Home Extension.

Mr. Carter's journalistic career spans nearly a half century, beginning at Howard University where he handled news releases for the athletic teams. He joined the Washington AFRO as a police reporter and sports writer in 1937, and later took the post as sports editor for the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers, working out of Baltimore.

In 1943, Carter was among five black war correspondents covering World War II in North Africa and Italy. His reporting, often under life-threatening conditions, of the historic missions of the first black military air squadrons, 99th Fighter Squadron, 332nd Fighter Group and the 92nd Infantry, was cited for journalistic excellence by the War
