White supremacists still lurk

By Olive Vassell
AFRO Staff Writer

A terrorist group — called The Order — made up of several white supremacist groups in America has a long list of murders, and other crimes to its name, according to the Center for Democratic Renewal, an organization that has investigated racial crimes in the U.S.

And a Missouri couple arrested on charges of conspiracy to assassinate Democratic presidential Jesse L. Jackson recently, belonged to that group, reports stated.

According to a book "They Don't All Wear Sheets," produced by the center earlier this year which catalogues these crimes, "The Order" was responsible for a number of murders including that of Denver talk show host Alan Berg in 1984. Berg, a Jew, who was nicknamed the "The Last Angry Man," because of his combative style, had ridiculed organized anti-semites on his radio show. He was gunned down in the driveway of his home by members of the group.

The order is the "military arm" of white supremacist organizations, Eva Sears, of the Center said.

It was established by the now dead Robert Matthews — killed in a shoot-out with the FBI — in the late 70s. The group is a blue-print described in a book called "the Turner Diaries," written under a pseudonym by the white supremacist ideologue, William Pierce.

The self-declared aim of the group, according Sears, is to force a "white radical revolution," and eventually establish "white republic" in the U.S.

In 1985 approximately two dozen members of the group were apprehended and tried on charges, including racketeering and armed robbery. But according to Sears, no-one knows exactly how many members the group has; although the group seems to be made up of the "most radical" members of groups like the Klu Klux Klan, National Alliance and the Aryan Nation.

The arrested couple, Londell Williams, 30, and his wife Tammy J. Williams, 27, of Washington, Mo. were arrested over a week ago in Franklin County, Mo., after an informer told local police that Williams had allegedly said that he would kill Jackson, "because he was getting too close to being president of the United States."

The two, who are being held without bail pending grand jury action, were also charged with possessing a fully automatic weapon, and a machine gun not properly registered to them.

Jackson, however, is undaunted by the plot, according to Eric Easter, a spokesman for Jackson campaign, the candidate "won't let it (the threat) destroy the moral tone of the campaign. He will keep on speaking out on racism and anti-semitism in this country and worldwide," Easter said.

Officer, man shot
Mondawmin shooting

By Ejike Obineme

Wallace Johnson, Jr., 25, of the 600 block of Charraway Road is being held without bail for shooting two people, including a police officer during a robbery at Mondawmin Mall Tuesday evening.

He has been charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of armed robbery, two counts of attempted armed robbery, and a series of felony handgun violations.

Events leading to Johnson's apprehension started after 5 p.m., when he attempted to rob two men in the lower level men's room at the mall. One of the men, Hurel Hinant, Jr., of the 5600 block of McClean Blvd. struggled with Johnson, who fired a shot hitting the other man Bernard Hurton of the 3400 block of Fairview Rd. in the neck.

Officer Guy Gerstel, 29, a 6-year veteran was leaving his off-duty job at Marianne's Clothing store on the first level of the mall when he heard the gun shot. Police report said he went into the bathroom to investigate.

At the same time, mall security guards responded, and were rendering aid to Hurton, who told them that Johnson went into the main tunnel beneath the mall.

Keswick Road in Hampden looks like a normal street in the United States until you get to apartment No. 3018. There, a policeman stands in front of the house looking up and down the street.

A group of newspeople including a TV crew is also hanging outside the house. Small groups of white neighbors gather in front of nearby apartments talking among themselves and glancing back and forth at apartment 3018. An atmosphere of tension hangs in the air.

If that sounds like a state of seige, that is correct because, 3018 Keswick Road is the apartment where a black couple moved into nearly three weeks ago, and since then, their lives have not been the same.

The problem is that some of their white neighbors want to keep Hampden strictly white and are prepared to even firebomb the house, if it will force the young couple out.

Inside the house, things are a little different. Three children aged 4 years, 2 years and 7 months play around, but their mother, Carolyn Braxton-Bey, 21, complains of severe headaches.

She says she is tired of talking about their problem to the

The Council for Economic Business Opportunity, in limbo for several months wondering if it would receive federal money or not, is expected to be awarded over $600,000 from the federal government afterall, a city official said.

William 'Bill' Toohey, spokesman for the Department of Housing and Community Development, said DHCD wrote a letter earlier this month to the Department of Housing and Urban Development stating CEBO appeared to meet federal regulations to receive Community Development Grant Funds.

Toohey said, "We have no need to block the money."

One month prior, St. George I.B. Crosse, Baltimore HUD manager, after HUD workers conducted a routine review of CEBO's files, wrote a letter to the mayor and said his department "was unable to conclude the CEBO was in compliance with the appllicable (CDBG) regulations and polic . . ." which could have blocked their federal funds.

HUD is the local federal agency which receives CDBG funds and the city decides which recipients will be awarded federal money.

After receiving Crosse's correspondence, Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke wrote to CEBO board chairman John H. Murphy, III, and told him "after June 30, 1988 CDBG funds may no longer be used to fund CEBO," because of the alleged non - compliance to federal standards.

Apparently, the minority business development agency had failed to show documentation that its business

7-Eleven owners protest 'redlining'

Several black owners of 7-Eleven stores are accusing Southland Corporation, the parent group of the stores, of discriminating against them by steering them to less lucrative areas while at the same time "squeezing" their profits.

Redlining is the name given to steering franchisees to a specific area.

Jim Ransom (J.P.), founder of the Minority Franchise Owners Association, Inc. cited Southland Corporation as the culprits and it being the responsibility of the black business owners to inform the public of the travesty at hand.

"We need to educate everybody around the country on what is happening," he said.

"The message will go through the black community," said Ransom

One 7-Eleven owner said redlining is definitely a Association Inc. (MFOA) said he was steered to his store's current location at Washington Boulevard.

Johnson said he went to Southland's District office that was in the area of his preference and inquired about some property at Charles and Stevenson Lane in Baltimore County.

"I was told the property was not available," said Johnson.

Baltimore City Police Commissioner Edward J. Tilghman is now listed in satisfactory condition at Mercy Hospital after the seizure he suffered last Monday night during a meeting at the Engineering Society of Baltimore.

Police spokesman Dennis Hill said yesterday that if the commissioner continues to improve at the present rate, it is likely that he might be released from the hospital as early as this weekend. He said

Edward J. Tilghman

Tilghman has now been moved from the intensive care unit to a private room.

Tilghman, 53, was struck by the seizure at about 7:15 Monday night just as he was expected to give an invocation at the meeting after being introduced.

An eyewitness account said that Tilghman collapsed and came to within seconds. He was then taken by a city ambulance to Mercy Hospital where he has been improving steadily.

This is not the first time Tilghman has suffered a seizure. While attending a convention with other black police officers in California last summer, he passed out momentarily after a seizure. When he came back to Baltimore, he underwent a brain surgery at Sinai Hospital, at which time a non-malignant brain tumor was allegedly removed.

The cause of last Monday's seizure is not yet known. According to Hill, it will be some time before the tests are completed.
