WETA to air minority producers lab production

On Monday, April 17 at 10 p.m., WETA Channel 26 will broadcast its 1988 Independent Minority Producers Lab selection, the 20-minute documentary ESTABLISHING EDUCATIONAL ORDER.

The program documents how the principals of two public junior high schools, Hine Junior High School in Southeast Washington and The Gaskins Home-School in Anacostia, have raised academic standards, instilled values and supervised academic progress in their respective schools.

Producer Willette Brown chose this particular subject to "fill the void that teachers and parents have complained about — that the media neglects to report positive education projects which are being designed to inspire people to take action and involve themselves in improving the educational system."

Ms. Brown was selected to participate in WETA's Independent Minority Producers Laboratory in August, 1988. She was chosen by a panel of Washington media professionals including Peggy Cooper Cafritz, Chair Emeritus of the D.C. Commission on the Arts and Humanities and panelist on WETA's Around Town; Tony Gittens, Director of the Black Film Institute and Co-Director of the Washington Film Festival; Tamara E. Robinson, Vice President for Cultural Programming, WETA Channel 26; Cedric Hendricks, House Committee on Government Operations; Sandra Butler-Jones, WUSA/TV; and Joyce Campbell, WETA/26 Senior Vice President and Program Manager.

A native of New York, Ms. Brown has lived in Washington since 1974 and is currently working towards a degree in psychology from Howard University. The film and video producer has in addition studied journalism at New York University and film at Columbia University.

She is president of her own film company, Sirius-B, Inc. which was founded in 1984 and whose credits inlcude "Black Gold," a documentary on the history of black athletes in the Olympics from 1904 through 1984; and "Say Yes to a Youngster's Future," a promotional video for the National Urban Coalition on math and science programs in area schools.

The WETA Minority Producers Laboratory developed from a pilot project undertaken by WETA and the D.C. Media Task Force in 1980 to fund a local minority independent production.

Independent minority producers in the greater Washington area are invited to submit proposals, by May 12, 1989, for programs suitable for broadcast. Their proposals are evaluated along with samples of previous work by the selection panel.

The production phase of the Minority Producers Laboratory is funded by WETA, the National Endowment for the Arts and a local foundation, and runs from July to December 30, 1989.

SOUNDS

VARIOUS ARTISTS
"M. Walk Productions Featuring The Union" (Capitol)

Here's one for those who want a fresh taste of the L.A. rap scene.

22-year-old Mark Walker, who was Tone Loc's DJ on the hit single "Wild Thing," produced this 12-track compilation of new cuts by up and coming L.A. rap artists.

M. Walk And King Saul lead off the album with "Def/Tunes," in which M. Walk's programmed drums are mixed in with West Street Mob's early 1980's hit "Let's Dance."

The duo also bring us "I'm The King," and on this one they borrow pices of Kool And The Gang's 1970 instrumental "N.T." (People keep borrowing this old Kool And The Gang track... Maybe Mercury Records should re-issue it on CD...) M. Walk also borrows The Jacksons' "State Of Shock" for "Take It To 'Em."

Laurie And Angela perform a track called "Get Off My Tip," an upbeat rap reminiscent of J.J. Fad's "Supersonic." "I'm Just Amazing," performed by Tabb (Semaj Desheiks) features skillful scratching and a smooth, Tone Loc-like rap style.

Other performers on this collection include Double J and Traysky, Funky Fresh, and Quiet Storm And Donny (D.D.N.)

CAROLE KING
"City Streets" (Capitol)

It's been five years since we've heard from this well-known Manhattan-born singer and songwriter. Her new one sounds like it'll be a strong seller.

Carole King, who with Gerry Goffin wrote such classic rock and roll hits as "Will You Still Love Me Tomorrow" and "Go Away Little Girl," will always be remembered for her third solo album, "Tapestry," released in 1971. That album stayed on the charts for nearly six years, and has sold over 18 million copies to date.

Her last solo album, released in 1984, was "Speeding Time."

The first thing you'll probably notice about Carole's latest LP is that the songs have more of a rock and roll edge than Carole's previous work. Eric Clapton, one of the top rock guitarists of all time, plays on the title track, a simple tune in which Carole tries to capture the feelings of the streets in the 1980's — the feelings of joy, despair, decay and hope shared by many.

"Sweet Life" is another up-tempo rocker on which Carole plays synthesizer and rhythm guitar. It will be interesting to see how the public reacts to Carole's tougher sound. It's not wandering anywhere near heavy metal territory of course, but I'm sure some folks will say "it doesn't suit her." And I wouldn't disagree.

The country-flavored "I Can't Stop Thinking About You" is a nice pop tune, and "Midnight Flyer" recalls the style of her early 70's albums like "Tapestry" and "Music."

This is the album Carole King fans have been waiting for.
